'The stuff that fears & dreams are made of'; student talents reverse age-old superstitions

There it is. It's in our movies, our cereals, our games, our literature, and in all parts of our lives; but we don't believe in it at all. Still, we knock on wood, carry a special charm, and read the daily horoscopes; but we don't really believe in all that stuff. We cross our fingers, wear a special pair of socks, and turn around when we spy a black cat. Next year we'll even brag about doing well this school year...Newman Smith's thirteenth year!

Though we all claim we're not really being superstitious, we use lucky charms and other items because we just don't want to take a chance because superstitions seem to contain a grain of truth or because they give us pleasure. Some superstitions are funny, many involve magic, and most of them comfort us in some way. They are supposedly "the stuff that fears and dreams are made of."

When the Iliad staff faced the situation of publishing a yearbook for the school's thirteenth year, the decision was made to try the reverse and claim the year as "Lucky Thirteen." As the year progressed, the accomplishments made at Newman Smith showed that once again not luck but talent brought in the rewards.

'Break a Leg'

Blending perfectly, Arts' performances show finely tuned talents of the Trojan troupes

One minute until show time, and someone backstage cries out "Break a Leg." Whether the script declares that someone is going to sing dreamy Christmas carols, play an instrument in beautiful arrangement with the band or orchestra, or fly to Neverland with Peter Pan, that wishful phrase makes something extra special happen. Maybe the burst of confidence is caused by the spotlight or the countless pairs of eyes focused on the stage. But it is much more likely that the magic comes from within where a passion lies to hit that high note just right or time the punch line perfectly. Luck may have played a role when an actor's hair looked great for an audition, or a musician's instrument tuned up quickly, but a strong performance requires much more than simple luck as proven at Smith this year. Without the talent and training of Newman Smith's numerous performers and instructors, the stage would have been empty, the lights dim, and the seats vacant... and the performances and dreams could have never come true.

Santa (Scott Barnes) awaits his next customer with his wish list.

Student Life

Let your fingers do the walking through the pages of the other sides of school life

Everyone underestimates the trials of those who have to endure high school life... sure, for the most part it can be fun, but sometimes it can be a drag. Studying for four major tests which happened to fall on the same day, forgetting gym clothes, or losing pages of homework in a bottomless locker are definitely not most students' ideas of a good time. But the important thing is that the trials do end (knock on wood). But how does one get over all the problems to get to that little pleasure in a world that has gone mad? The answer is within walking distance... so uncross your fingers and let them do the walking through the pages of Student Life.

Let It All Out

expression \ik-'spresh-en\ noun : the act of communicating with creative activities

People have to show their feelings and frustrations in one way or another. They have to let it out, whether their expression turns to a pout, or if they "twist and shout", and that's what life is all about...expressing yourself. Have you ever seen anyone actually show their emotions? Sometimes it can be SCARY. Some people can be very strange or just plain stupid when they decide to let it "all hang out."

Two Much

The dynamite duo of Homecoming and Beat Turner Weeks' big victories delight everyone

When a Varsity football team wins the Homecoming game and the district rival game, the team's entire season is classified as complete. Winning the two most important games of the season, the Varsity football team responded appropriately to the school spirit of Homecoming Week and Beat Turner Week. Mums covered with various bows, ribbons, feathers, whistles, and bells provided a colorful touch and a cheerful jingle to the decorated halls of Homecoming Week. Friday's pep rally honored past graduates who stood on the downstairs gym balcony and aroused enormous support for the football team. The Varsity players left the rally fired up for the evening's confrontation with the J. J. Pearce Mustangs.

At the conclusion of the game that night, the fans, excited over the 16-3 Smith victory, poured from the stands onto Standridge's track in the last minutes of the game, but policemen held them back until the final buzzer sounded. The students ran to join their victorious team in the center of the field for the playing of the Alma Mater.

Saturday night brought the Homecoming Dance for current students and graduates. Balloons, streamers, and confetti portrayed the Cruisin' Into '88

theme. The senior executive committee organized the dance, complete with a professional disk jockey and photographer. It was truly a weekend to remember.

The Trojans tasted of another sweet victory at the closing of Beat Turner Week. Following four crazy days of wearing pajamas, nerd attire, college sweat-shirts, backwards clothes, the students wore spirited green and gold to encourage the football team for the rival match-up. The pep rally and Key Club's Car Smash ended the school day with a bang.

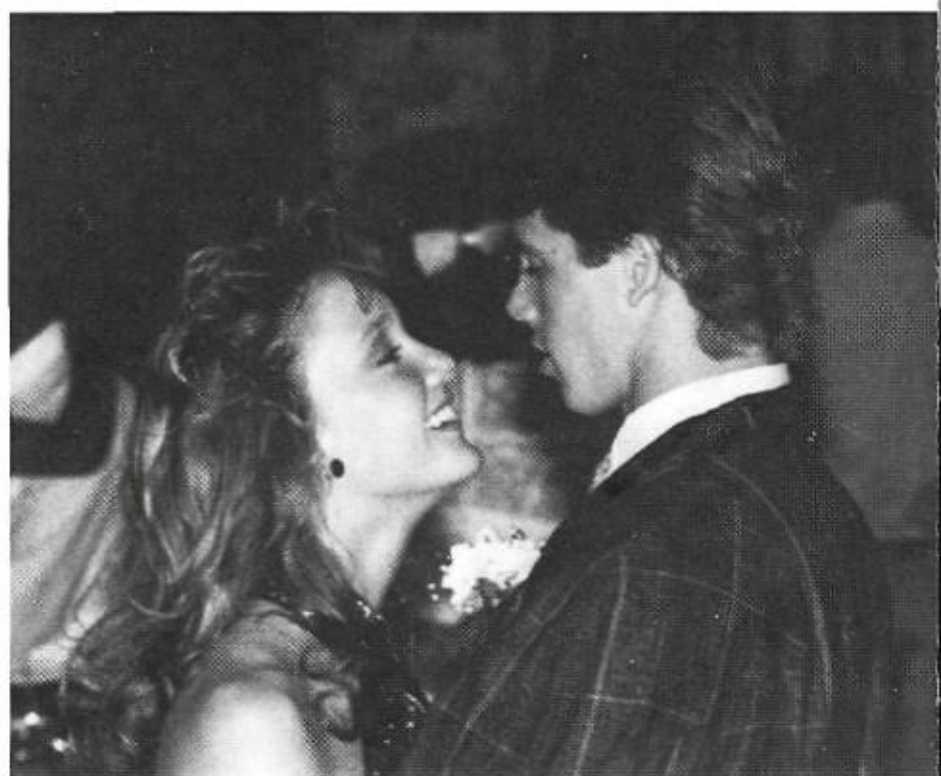

Standridge stadium hosted the district battle. In the end, the Trojans came out on top with a dazzling Lion defeat of 23-3. Again the team was surrounded by proud fans on the field as their season was brought to an end with a satisfying victory.

Luck often plays an important role in the difference between victory and defeat. Throughout Homecoming and Beat Turner Weeks, the "luck," which resulted in outstanding wins, was wished to athletes by the entire student body as everyone dedicated an entire week to the occasion. Clothes, bows, yells, and bells sounded out great student support and spirit as well as the best wishes of luck.

Act One

Drama's superb acting is number one in every aspect of competition and entertainment

As the heat of the summer days went by, the theatre arts students, under the direction of Mildred A. Peveto and technical director Patricia Mills, were hard at work preparing for the 8th Annual Pre-School Workshop. The week long activity featured Dallas area professionals as they taught seminars focused on competitive forensics. The workshop paid off as the 1987-88 competitive squad, led by president Robin Henry, took a sweepstakes award home from every tournament attended. Qualifying for the Texas Forensic Association's State Meet in Austin were almost 20 individuals in 26 events. Susan Calvert and Mike Gensler accomplished a feat never before achieved by any department: they were the first quadruple state qualifiers. Newman Smith's own tournament, Spontaneity '87, once again maintained their tradition of being one of the best tournaments in Texas. Tournament Director Mike Gensler and staff played host to over fifty schools from across the southwest. As a result of ten long years of maintaining a high caliber of excellence, the National Forensic League Chapter captured the Outstanding Chapter Award. This coveted honor is given to only 25 schools from across the nation.

The theatre opened its doors once again for the fanatic fall show, The Canterville Ghost. The show not only featured the talented juniors and seniors, but also marked the first show directed via video cassette as Ms. Peveto suffered from a "war wound." January flew by as the cast and crew created magic in Peter Pan. While working diligently to build "Neverland," Foy Interprises arrived in Carrollton to teach the technicians and actors the "art of flying." Jenni Page, Juliana Smith, Kristen Arens, Todd Harlow, Zoocy Wharton, and Brian Young twisted and turned their way to opening night as the ensemble of over fifty members created a fantasy that nobody could forget. The spring activities began with a bang as the U.I.L. One Act Play, A Midsummer Night's Dream, successfully presented Shakespeare's comedy. Individual honors went to: Matt Crawley, Susan Calvert, Jenni Page, Jenny Matejka, Juliana Smith, Jeff Hoffman, Scott Barnes, and Todd Harlow. Assistant Director Gwyn Richardson and the stage crew Joel English, Kevin Dedmon, and Andre Archimbaud joined forces with the cast to create an unforgettable show. The spring show, Up the Down Staircase, was presented by the theatre arts first and second year students during the month of May.

The year ended with a fond farewell to the 1987-88 seniors and a warm welcome to the Class of 1989. But now, the sawdust is gone, the costumes are hung, and the trophies are put away. Only the lingering memories and memorable lines are left as the lights fade on another year. By Robin Henry

In the One Act Play, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Justin Achilli and Jeff Hoffman act out a play within a play.

Brooke Harper, Jenny Matejka and Joel English all join hands to rid the house of unwanted spirits.

Virginia, Susan Calvert, turns her attention towards Lord Cecil, Scott Oxendine.

In The Canterville Ghost, Juliana Smith shows her fright of ghosts.

Wendy, Kristen Arens, and Micheal, Bryan Young, are exhilarated after their first flight.

The Crocodile, played by Lara Anderson, skips after the delectable Captain Hook.

Conia Meadows, an Indian, gets carried away by the pirate Trey Troxel.

Zoey Wharton, portrayed as Peter Pan, uses a special magic to fly above the stage.

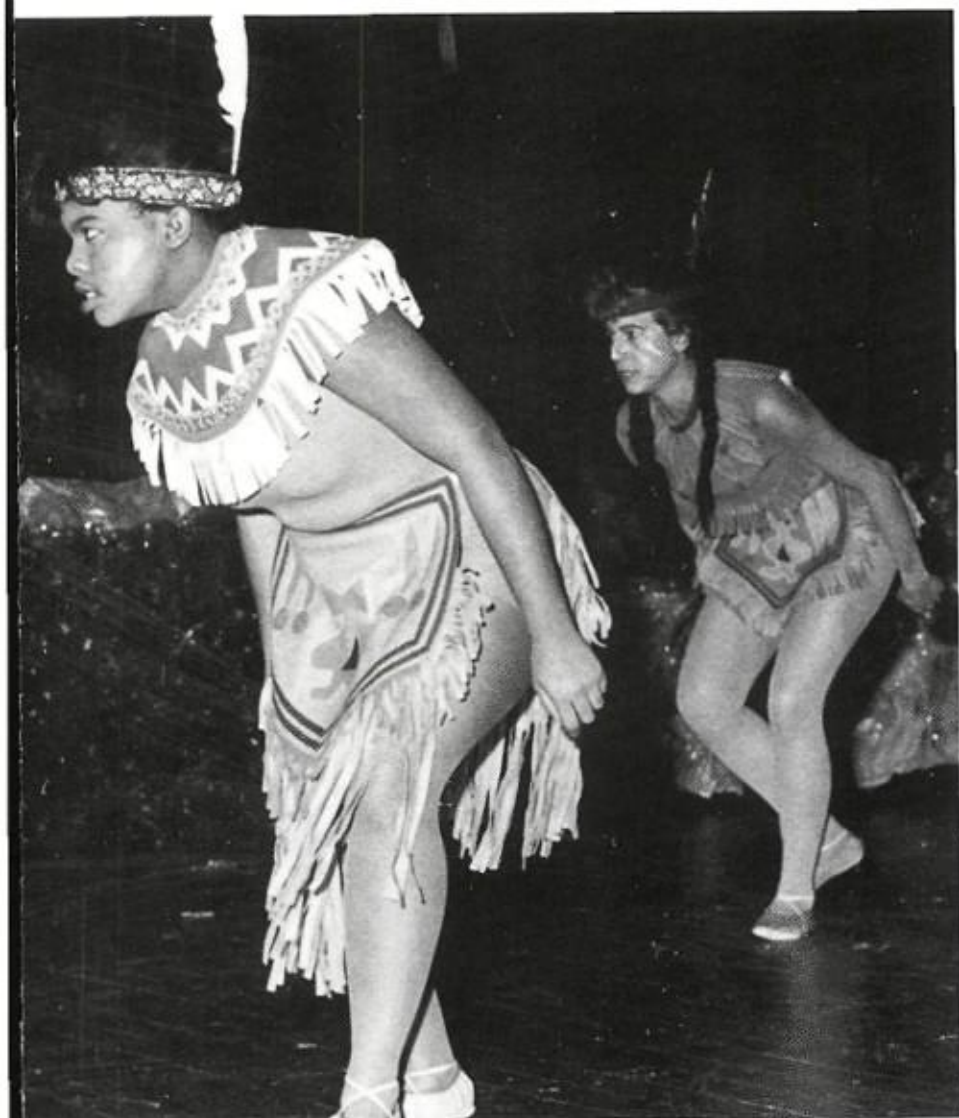

The pirates listen intently to Captain Hook's "Days of Yesteryear."

The Lost Boys congratulate Peter Pan, on his victory over Captain Hook.

Thomasa Dunlap and Shelly Drew have the utmost concentration on their Indian dance.

Mr. Darling, Blaine Crimmins, darts to escape from Nana, the dog, played by Scott Barnes.

On a High Note

The Choral Department sings their way to a year of entertaining and accomplishments

This was a year of performance and competition for the students in the Choral Department. The group presented three major concerts, performed a full-scale musical and competed in the district, area and state levels.

In October the Women's Choir, A Cappella, and the Vocal Ensemble began the year with a fall concert. This show featured a patriotic medley with solos by senior officers. This medley was later performed at the Horatio Alger Assembly. Also in the fall, students competed for the All-District and All-Area Choirs. Those selected for All-Region were: Matt Apple, Candy Bailey, Colleen Biggard, Billy Bradford, Wendy Hackworth, Alan Little, and Erika Lundy.

As usual the Christmas Holiday show was the highlight of the year. Playing to a standing-room-only crowd, A Gift For You featured special appearances by a faculty ensemble and officers from 1984, 1985, 1986, and 1987.

In February, the Choral

Department turned Newman Smith into a tap dancing Broadway Avenue. Members of the A Cappella Choir presented the musical 42nd Street. The show, known for its fast costume changes and lively dance routines, required that the entire choir learn tap dancing. Crowds responded each night with applause and well-earned standing ovations.

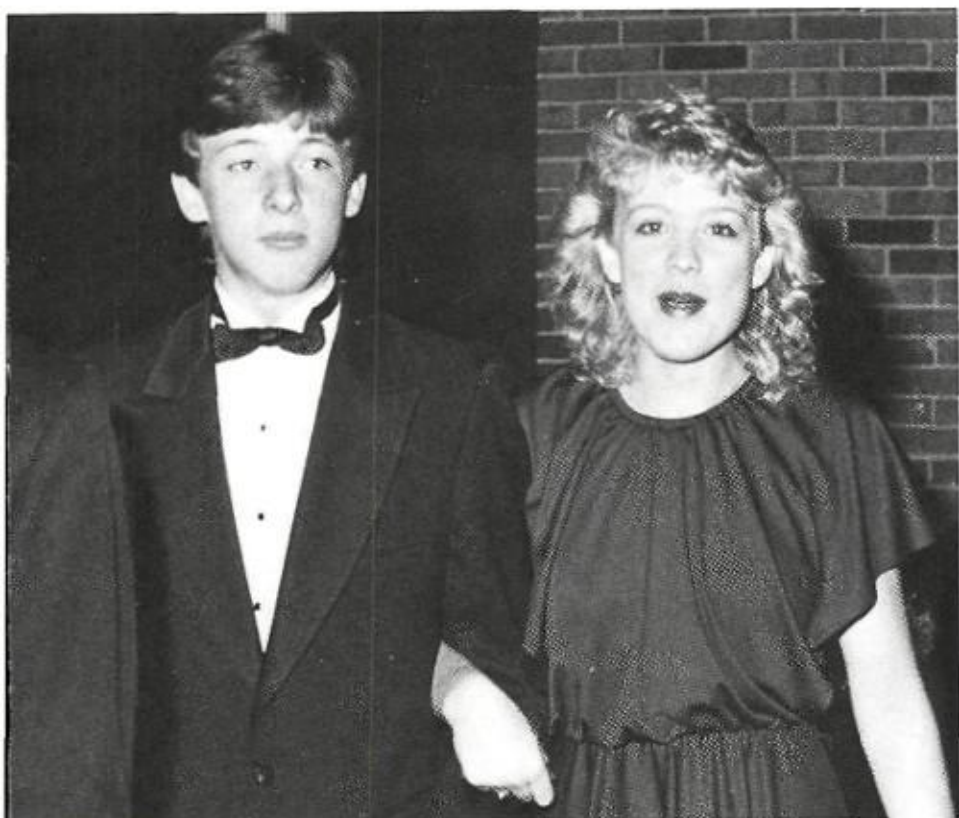

The year was topped off with U.I.L. Solo and Ensemble Contest and also the Spring Review. This show used the theme 1987-88 Choir: A Show Stopper and featured a salute to George Gershwin, a special senior farewell, and the traditional "One Voice Closing."

For the Vocal Ensemble, this was a year in which the group presented over six shows. There were conventions held at the Harvey Hotel, DFW Hilton, and the Crescent and performances at the West End Market Place, and radio shows from the Adolphus Hotel, Valley View Mall, and Loew's Anatole. There were also shows for elementary schools, junior highs, and local organizations. The ensemble closed its year with performance in the Amphitheater for the community and with the group "Evening Encore" in late May. Written by Mr. Jim Sparks.

Matt Apple, as Julian Marsh, dresses the cast of 42nd Street.

During the Horatio Alger Assembly, Debbie Garrison contains her laughter while Alan Little escorts her to her spot.

Amanda McKnight, Lisa Drechsler, and Tina Blackshear make a beautiful melody.

Shannon Leyrer, Kim Eddy, Kelly Teller, and Krista Helms sing a little tune at a restaurant in 42nd Street.

The A Cappella guys sing "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year."

Billy Lawdor, played by Kris Stone, dips Dorothy Brock, played by Amy Parker, during an audition.

The Big Pain

At home and at school, brothers and sisters inflict the pain that only family can endure

Most of us have brothers and sisters. Sometimes our little siblings look up to us, and they worship us. They want to be "just like" their brothers and sisters. Imitating dress and speech, menace they can be! They blame their big brothers and sisters for things they did and then tell mommy that so-and-so "hit me back." Whether the truth or not, big brother or sister always gets in trouble. On the other hand, you could be the younger child who gets more privileges and seems to get away with murder.

Sometimes problems can arise: competition, favoritism, and sibling rivalry. As several students testify, living with brothers and sisters offers a variety of problems... and advantages.

"We ALWAYS fight about clothes, because I want to wear something of his or he wants to wear my clothes. We compete in grades and school, too, because he's 4th in class rank, and I'm about 856th."

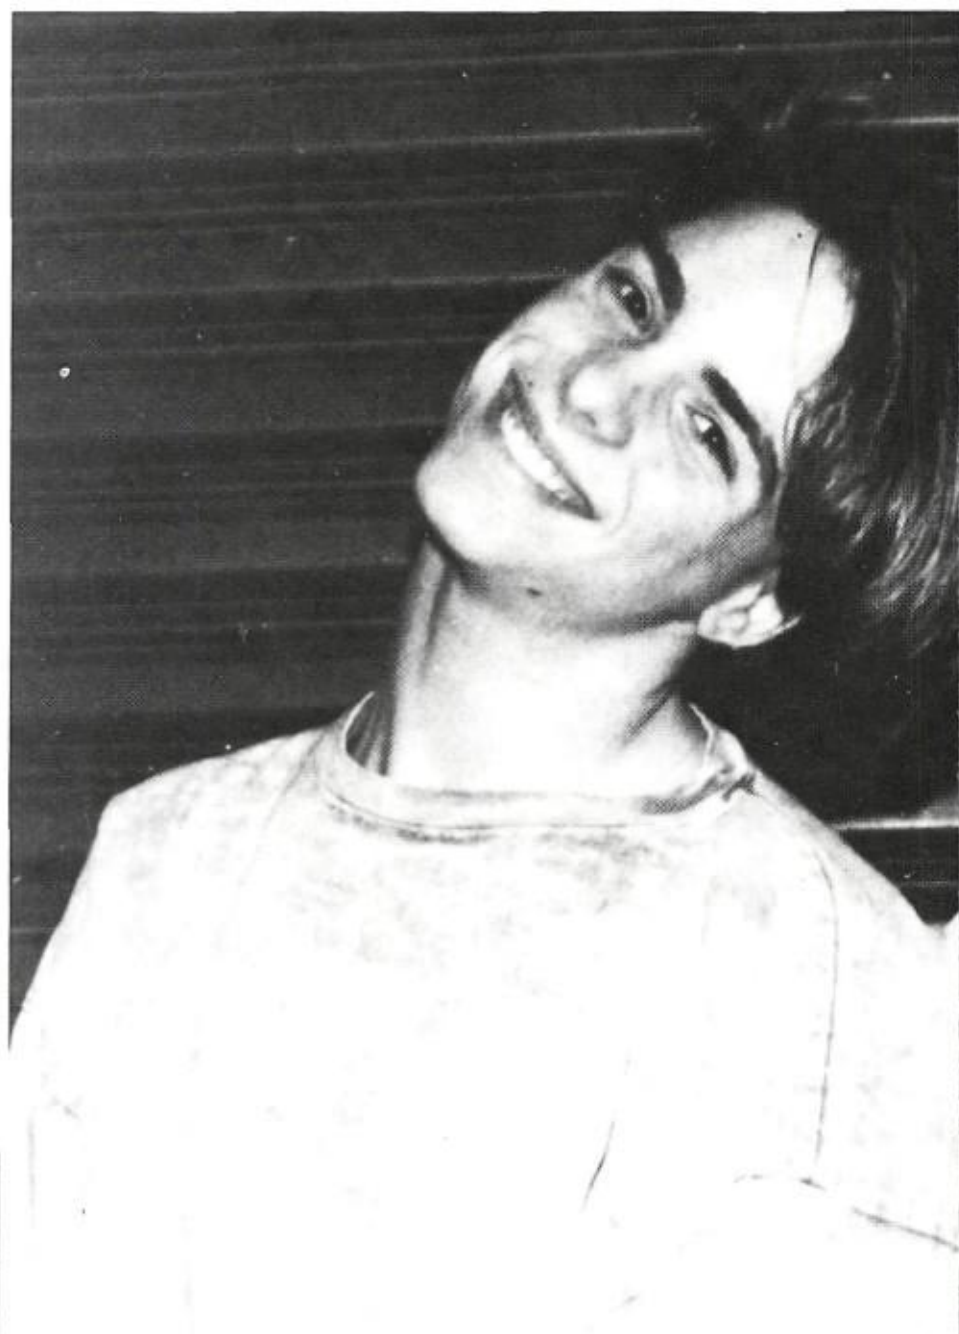

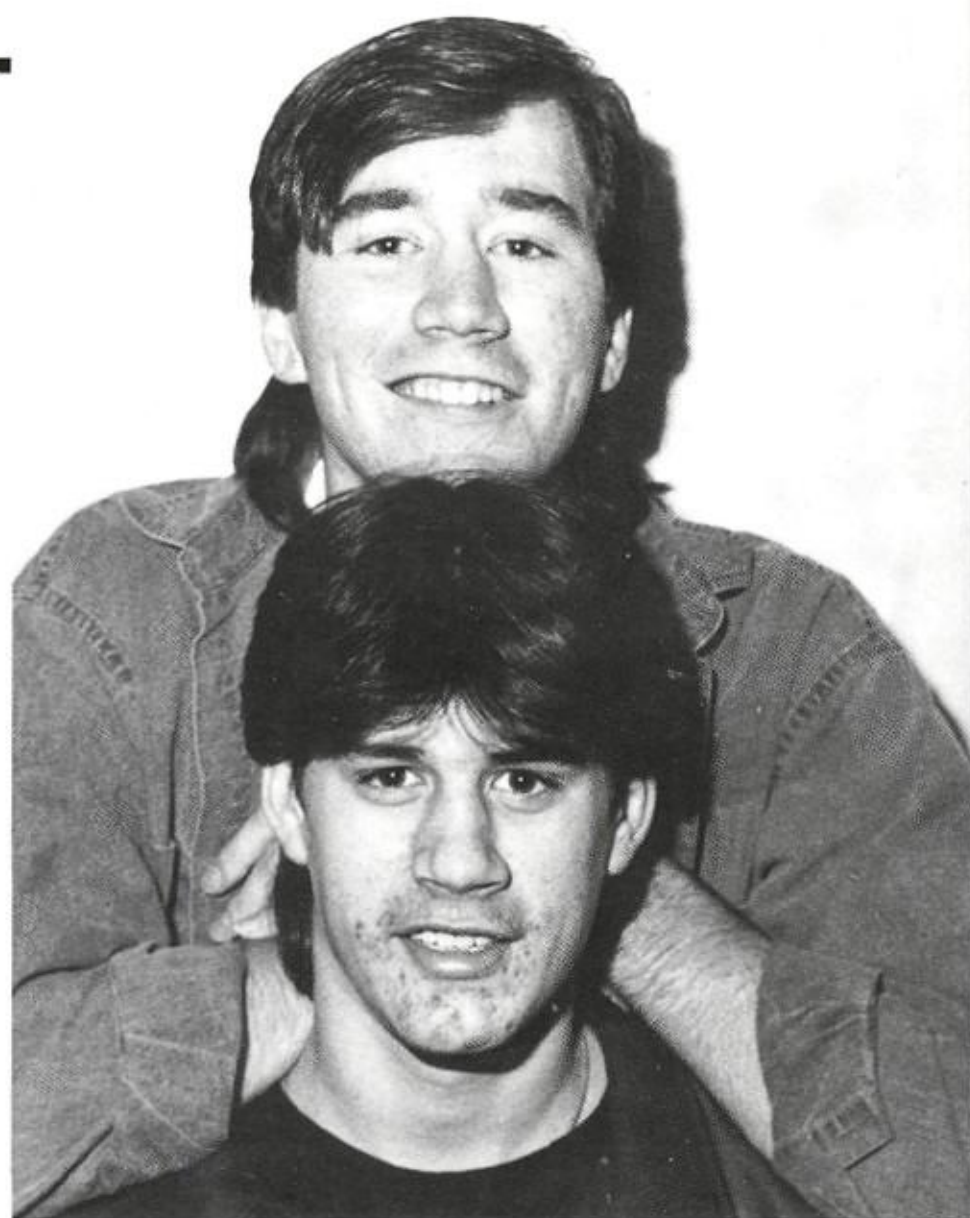

Kit Van Arsdale, 10

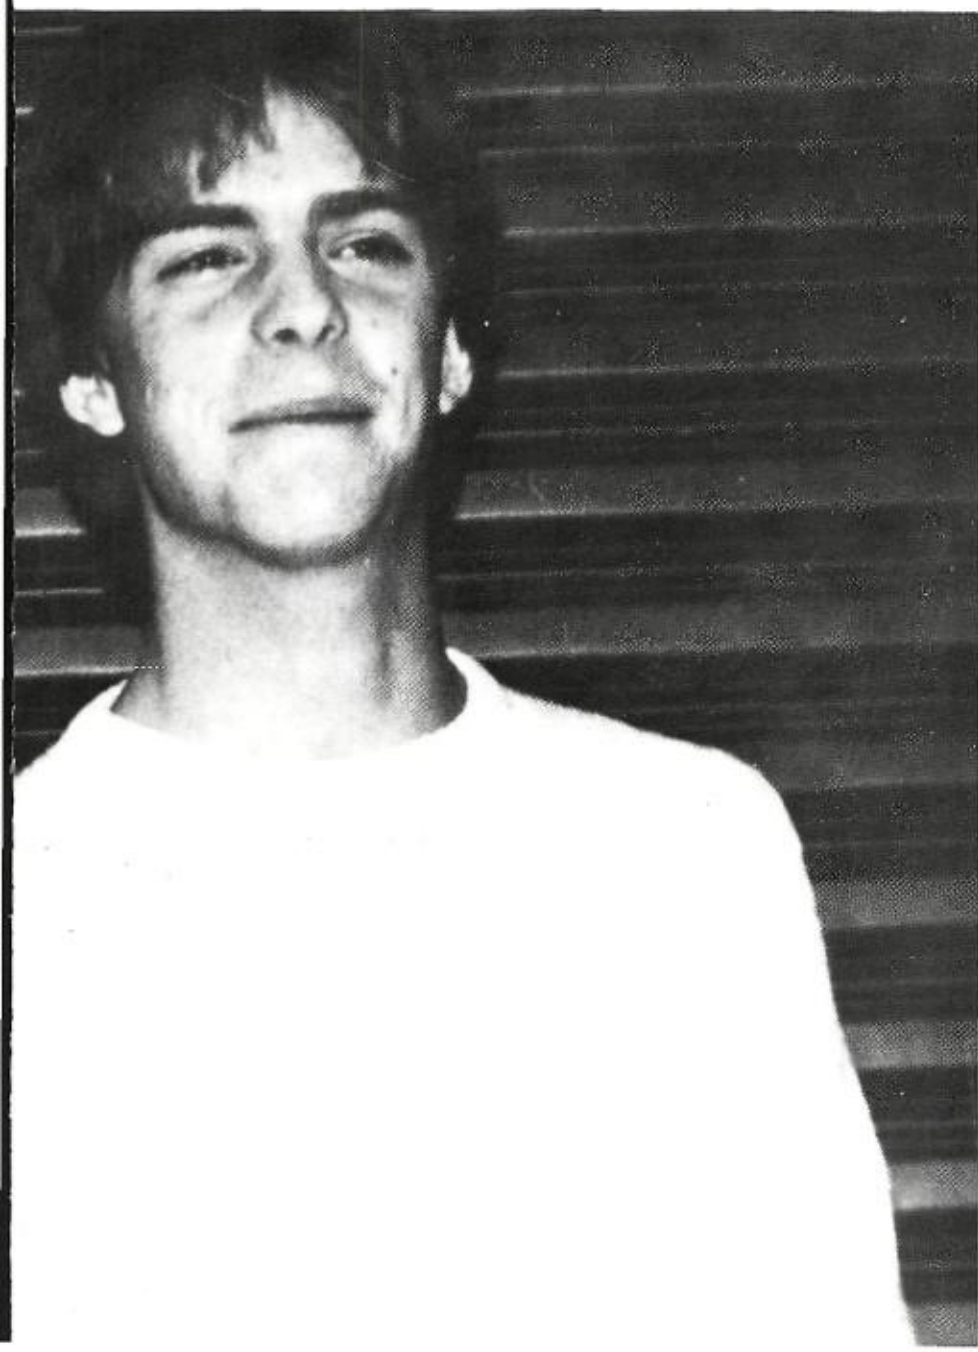

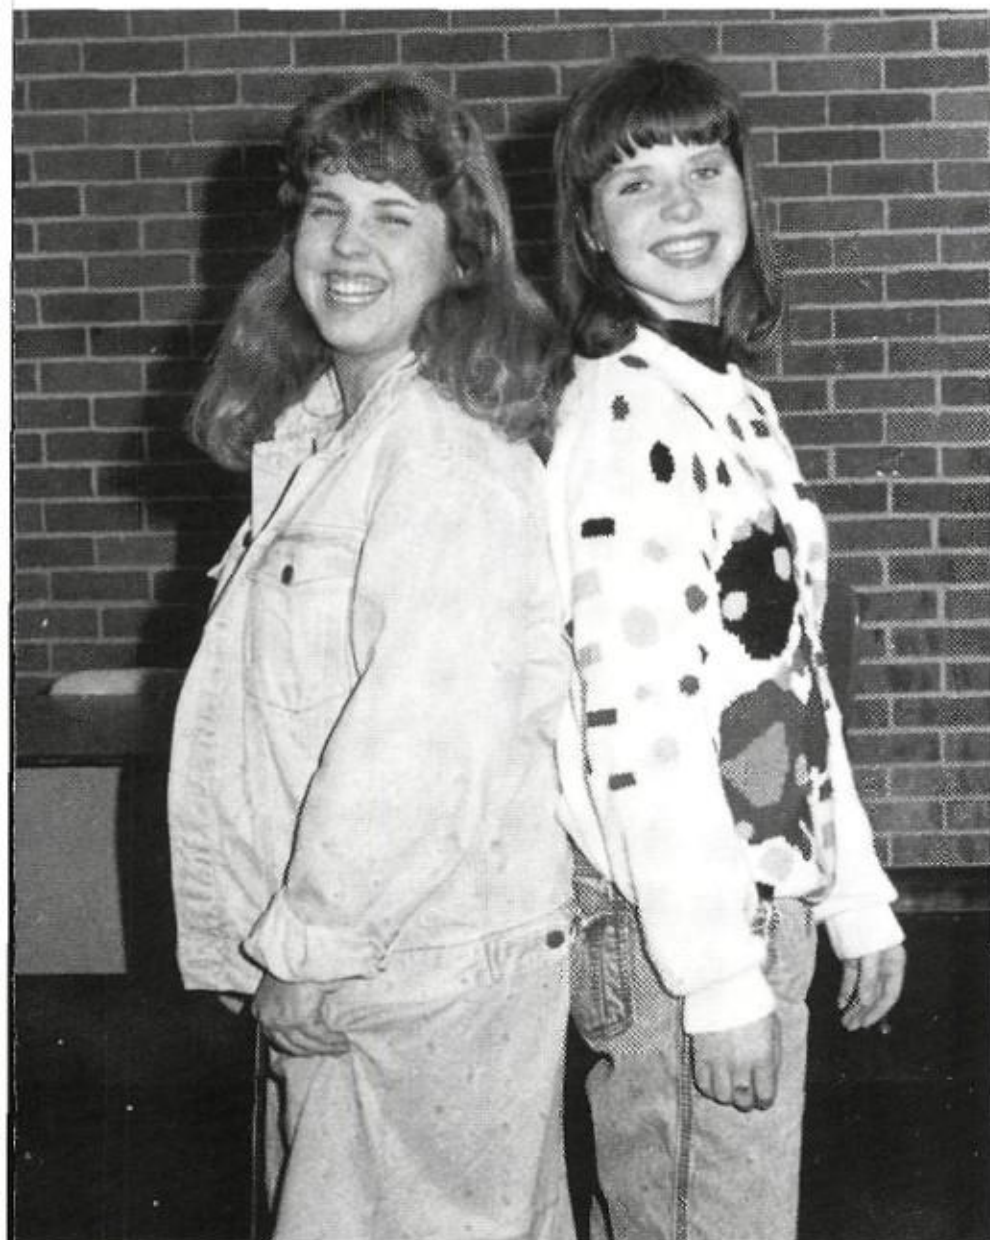

"David is one of my best friends."

Robert O'Donnell, 12

"It's nice that we can spend these last years together before the 'Big Senior' goes off to college."

David O'Donnell, 10

"Having eight brothers and sisters is like having a party twenty-four hours a day."

Diane Sammon, 12

Eight brothers and sisters? "It's like being in an insane asylum."

Katie Sammon, 11

"In the morning, when he is forced to take me to school, he sometimes drives off without me."

Terry Gemilli, 10

"I want to be better than my older brother. My littler brother is jealous of me because of my grades because he's kinda failing."

Katy Frank, 9

"We hardly ever fight, because we don't have anything to fight about."

Regina Hsieh, 10

"My sister Connie bosses us around because she's the oldest. She also thinks that because she's older, she's taller, but SHE'S NOT! She's a full inch shorter than Roberta. Connie is only 5'8" and Roberta is 5'9". I'm 5'7 1/2" but I should be 5'10" so I can be taller than all of them."

Anne Marie Willer, 9

"Our parents try to treat us like individuals. Sometimes our friends call us THE twins instead of Alan and Dwayne, and when they ask us a question, they direct it to both of us instead of just one, but we don't fight very much, and we even think alike. Like today, for lunch we BOTH had two things of Jello and cupcakes."

Dwayne McDonald, 10

Powder Power!

If the going gets tough, the tough play powder puff football, and the men mock cheerleaders

It seemed like football season once again when the halls were highlighted with green and gold in honor of the annual Powder Puff game, but, contrary to the usual football games, the girls were wearing the football jerseys and the guys were outfitted as cheerleaders and Troymen. The morning pep rally revved up the juniors' and the seniors' spirit and girls from both teams insisted that they would win. "The juniors will win because we're better!" said Candy Evans enthusiastically.

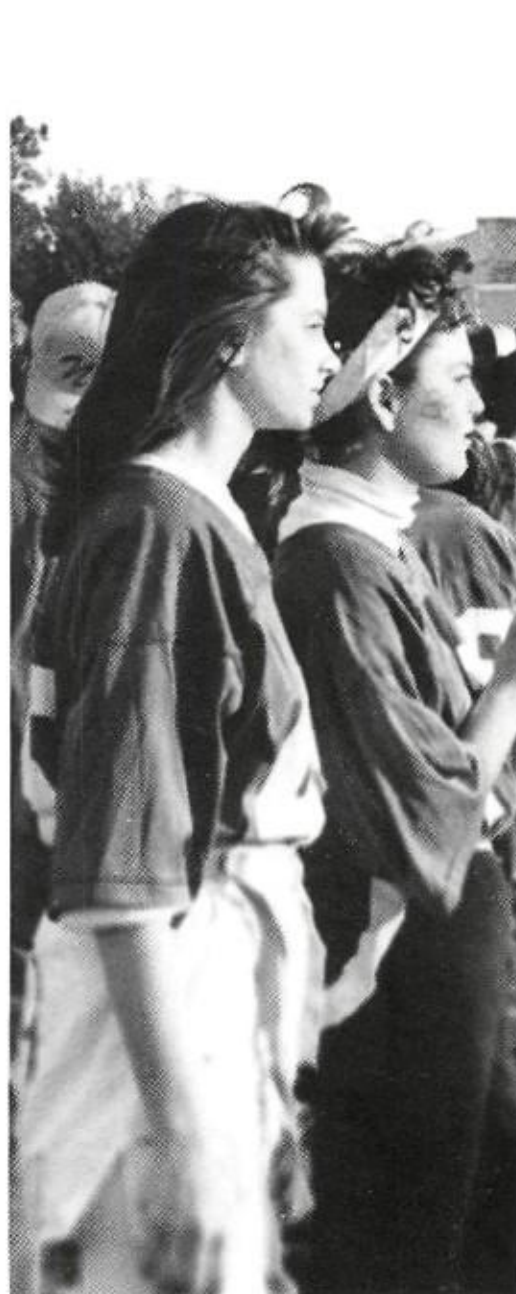

This statement was met with a vehement "No you won't!" from many of the seniors. Throughout the day people anticipated who would indeed win and awaited the game which would confirm it.

The game, which was held at Dewitt Perry Junior High, had good attendance on both sides, and the rivalry between the juniors and seniors was evident. While the "cheerleaders" entertained the fans, the players were working hard toward a victory. By halftime the seniors were leading the juniors, 26-0.

During halftime the Senior Troymen danced to the song, "Push It," as the spectators urged them on. The senior cheerleaders did their cheers and drills and the ever-famous "pyramid." The junior Troymen strutted their stuff during "Wlam Rap," while the cheerleaders performed their spectacular stunts. By the fourth quarter, the juniors' hard work paid off with 14 points to the seniors' 39. The game ended with the Class of '88 beating the Class of '89, 39 to 14, setting a record with the highest number of points made in Powder Puff history. The senior crowd roared to life cheering and screaming... again, the seniors were victorious.

After their defeat to last year's seniors, the seniors vowed to get revenge, and they did. For hours, the girls practiced through their runs and plays, thinking out strategies and working out game plans. Said Michelle Bell, "I thought the seniors were going to lose because the juniors looked really good this year." The juniors were determined to beat the seniors to become the next Powder Puff champions, and, throughout the game, they showed their enthusiasm and spirit... but they will have to wait until next year to try to capture the title.

The final scoreboard.

Juniors Tammy Hart and Noel Navarette watch their teammates on the field.

The senior Troymen pay tribute to the Rockettes as they do their high kicks.

Senior, Joyia Stokes, makes a dash for the touchdown zone.

The junior cheerleaders show their spirit and pride.

Fantastic!

Another "Fantastic Finale" graces the stage when "Standing Room Only" is performed

At the "Standing Room Only" Fantastic Finale, the 1987-1988 Troyann officers perform "Fire."

The combined cheerleaders and Troyanns play "Cowboys and Indians" in How the West was Won.

"Lights! Camera! Action!" These words, familiar to all actors and actresses became part of the cheerleaders' and Troyanns' vocabulary when they presented their eighth annual "Standing Room Only" Fantastic Finale. This year's spring show featured clips from movies from How the West was Won to Raiders of the Lost Ark, and musicals like Grease and Annie.

Under the leadership of Eloise Willis and Janet Newton, the Troyanns and cheerleaders presented skits and drill team routines that highlighted Broadway and screen successes. Tumbling and tap dancing added another dimension to the variety show that traditionally brings the school year to a spirited end. To honor graduating seniors, the Fantastic Finale ended with a parade of senior Troyanns and cheerleaders escorted by the four flag-bearers, Rich Goacher, Carey Kelson, Shane Leonard, and Corby Van Arsdale, as "Friends" and "Wind Beneath My Wings" played a delicate tribute to a past of hard work and special friendships.

The orphans from Annie perform "Hard Knock Life."

Mascot Charla Covey beams with Trojan pride as she walks on the stage.

Charla Covey hugs Shane Leonard even though it could be "Risky Business."

Sara Skierski, Kim McCreary, and Amy Cloninger pose as Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin, and Dolly Parton.

Elizabeth Gormly dances in "How the West was Won" in the "Tap and Toe" routine.

Year in the Life

Little-known happenings, from weddings to football games, fill nine busy months

Seven days a week just isn't enough time for all the events that go on at Smith. Sure, everybody hears about the news of the baseball team being the District champs or the success of the Theatre department's One-Act play, but some of the events tend to get swept under the rug.

During the Christmas season, the Fine Arts Departments performed their first Christmas production. With the combined forces of band, choir, orchestra, and theatre arts, the show weaved a tale of extravagance in the lives of the rich and the not-so-rich.

In the academic field, five students qualified as National Merit Scholarship Finalists. Mike Gensler, Mary Giles, Bret McCabe, Robert O'Donnell and Rachel Wilson became eligible for a full scholarship. Robert Fiore, another scholar, was named the recipient of the Horatio Alger award in early fall. Under Anne Michaels, Home and Family Living staged a mock-wedding. Another class, World Experience, taught by Cindy Beverley and Sandra Morris, gave their version of the Medieval times of lords, ladies, and knights in shining armor.

Last year, blood was given by many ever-willing donors, and the Wadley Blood Center showed their thanks by returning this year. The collection of over 200 pints of blood proved to be the greatest amount of blood ever donated in Smith's history of blood drives.

So many things happen in our school in a year that it is impossible to recognize them all. As all could see, everything from weddings to football games filled nine busy months.

Afraid To Ask

Everything you ever wanted to know about other high schools...but were afraid to ask

You're running as fast as you can, from the fine arts area to the science wing. You are almost there when...the infamous tardy bell rings. Stepping into the room, you feel all eyes on you. You panic, maybe he didn't see you, maybe you might be able to sneak past and slink into your seat, but it's too late, he spots you and hands you a detention. It really wasn't your fault, you had to run a long way, and upstairs, too! Besides, you had to stop at your locker to get your books.

Everyone, with the exception of the seniors thinks that the SENIORS ONLY parking is unfair. The only other parking area is the church across the street, and speaking of parking, the cost is a little high. Well take a look at this...

*At NIMITZ, anybody with a car can park, and the cost? A quarter a day or $4.50 per six weeks.

*At BERKNER, the juniors and seniors park on campus for only $15.00 per year.

*PLANO EAST is a senior high school where anyone can park for $25.

*There are only forty-six parking slots at HIGHLAND PARK, and only the seniors can park there.

*Anyone with a car can park in the front lot for $25 at R.L. TURNER, but in the back it is free.

*JESUIT juniors and seniors park for $40 a year.

*And of course, those driving seniors of our beloved Newman Smith park for $25.

...Parking is a problem at HIGHLAND PARK. The seniors are allowed 46 slots to park.

...HIGHLAND PARK students are lucky if they don't have to serve Saturday detentions.

...To boost spirit and morale, students dress up in costume on Halloween Day and Obnoxious Plaids Day at HIGHLAND PARK.

...ALL students at PLANO EAST Senior High are allowed to park.

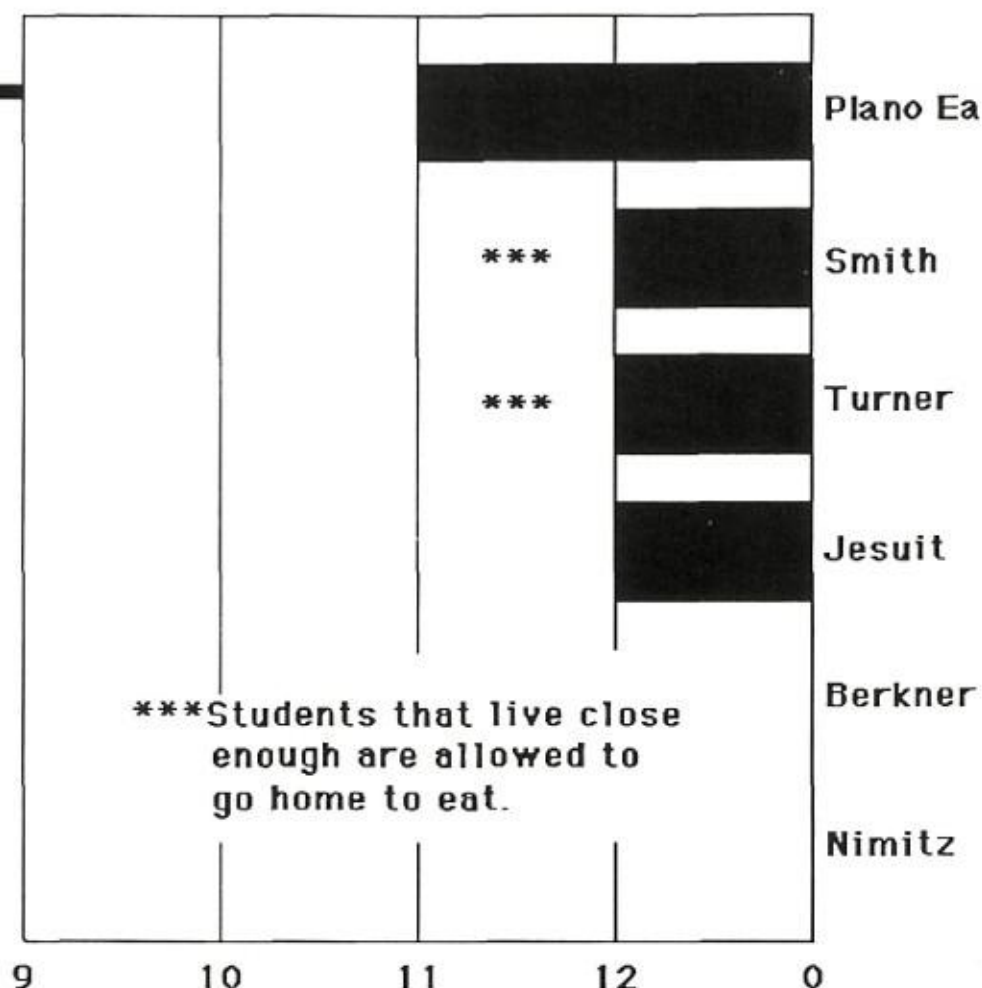

...BERKNER has "Disney Day" during their homecoming week.

...PLANO EAST has a "Unity Parade" to show their school spirit.

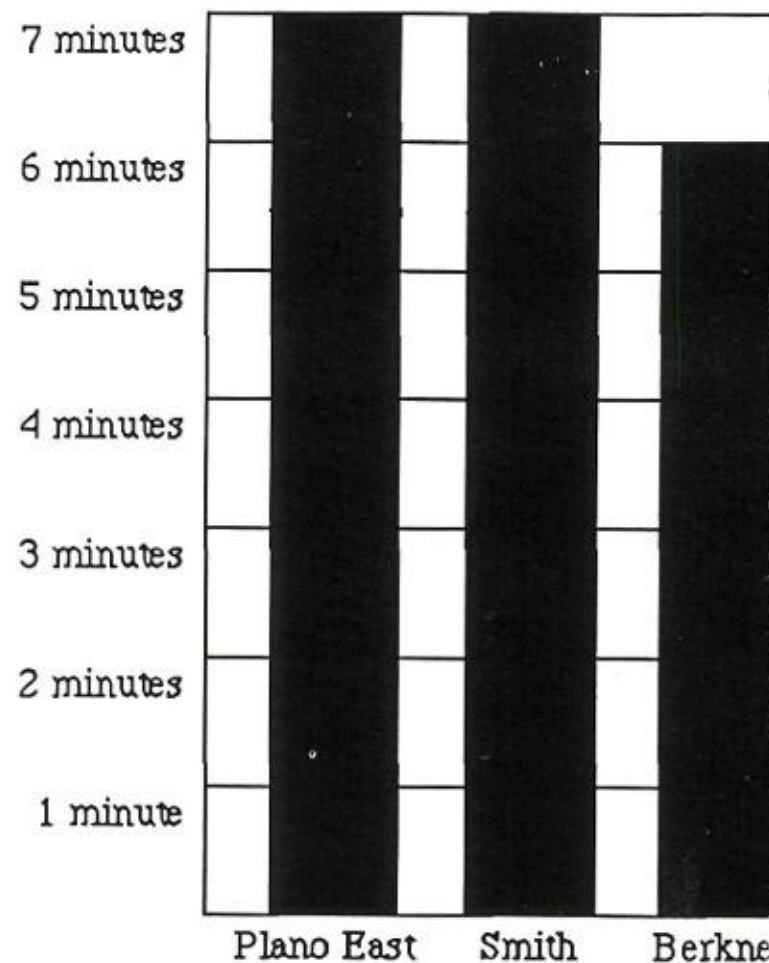

...Anybody, provided they have a car, is allowed to park at NIMITZ.

...At NIMITZ, the seniors have special dress-up days.

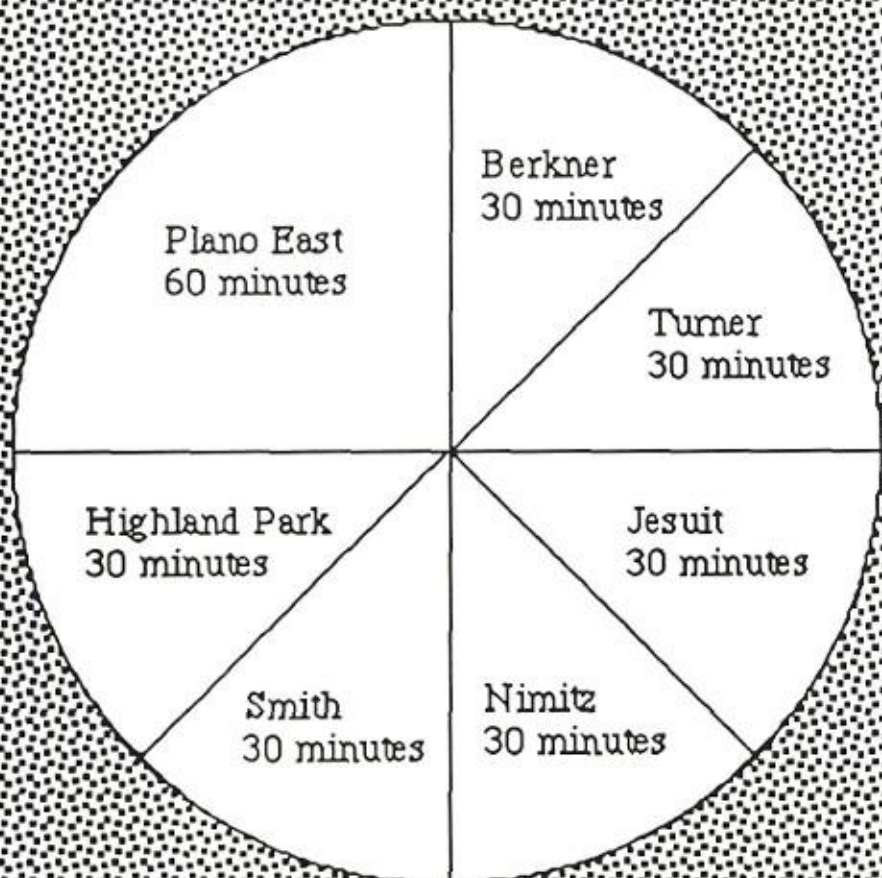

...Although all schools, can tell about their extra-curricular activities, JESUIT can boast of their 81% student involvement.

Which students get to eat out? The top graph tells all. How long do students get for a pass period? Look at the bottom graph.

"Half an hour is NOT enough time for lunch. It usually takes us fifteen minutes for us to go through the line, and when we're through, we only have about five minutes to eat. SENIORS ONLY parking and eating out is fine. They have been at this school for four years, and they deserve this privilege."
Melissa Hilker, 9

"We need more time for a break between classes. It's not fair to make everybody RUN to their lockers and back. We need some more time for a pass period. The time for lunch could be a little longer, because we never have enough time to eat. Senior parking and eating out is unfair because sophomores have rights too."

Brad Wilson, 10

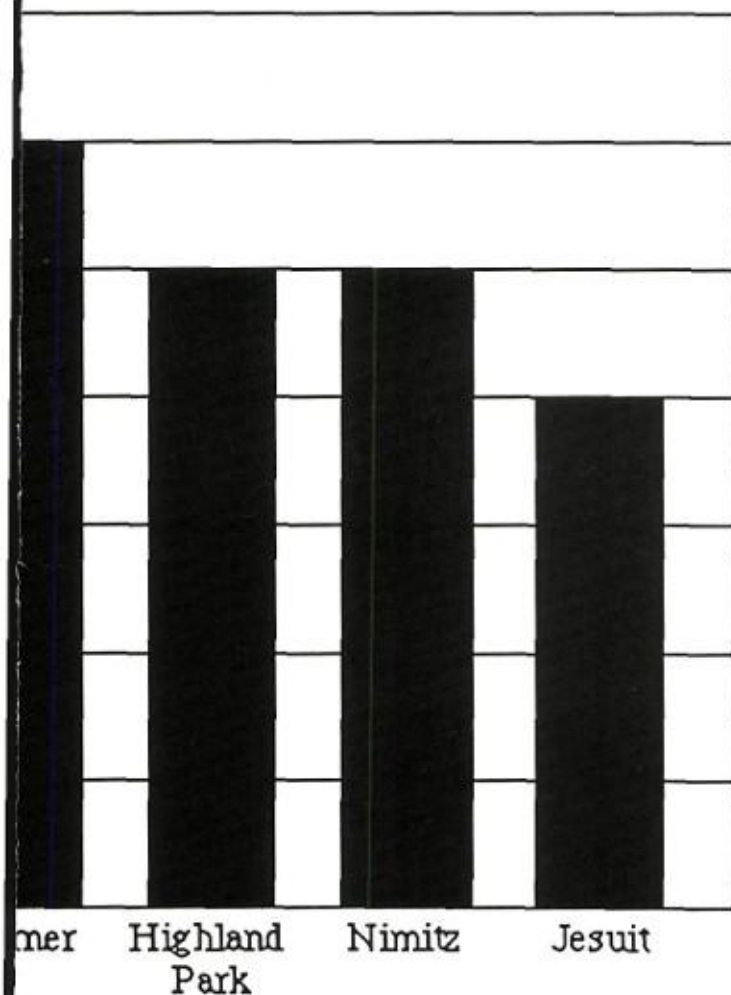

"I think that the parking is fair here, but there should be a compromise between the seniors and juniors. Although it is fair, there should be a junior parking as well as a senior parking because there are a lot of spaces left over. The idea about eating out is unfair. I think that anyone should be able to eat out, not only the seniors. If the students don't come back, then they are missing out."

Chris Reynolds, 11

"The time for the pass periods is fine. I just wish they would stop putting the lockers on one side of the building, and the classes on the other, with the teachers saying, 'Well, I expect you to run.' I'm sick of the juniors saying, 'We should get to park in the parking lot, too.'"

Shane Wilson, 12

Senior Wills

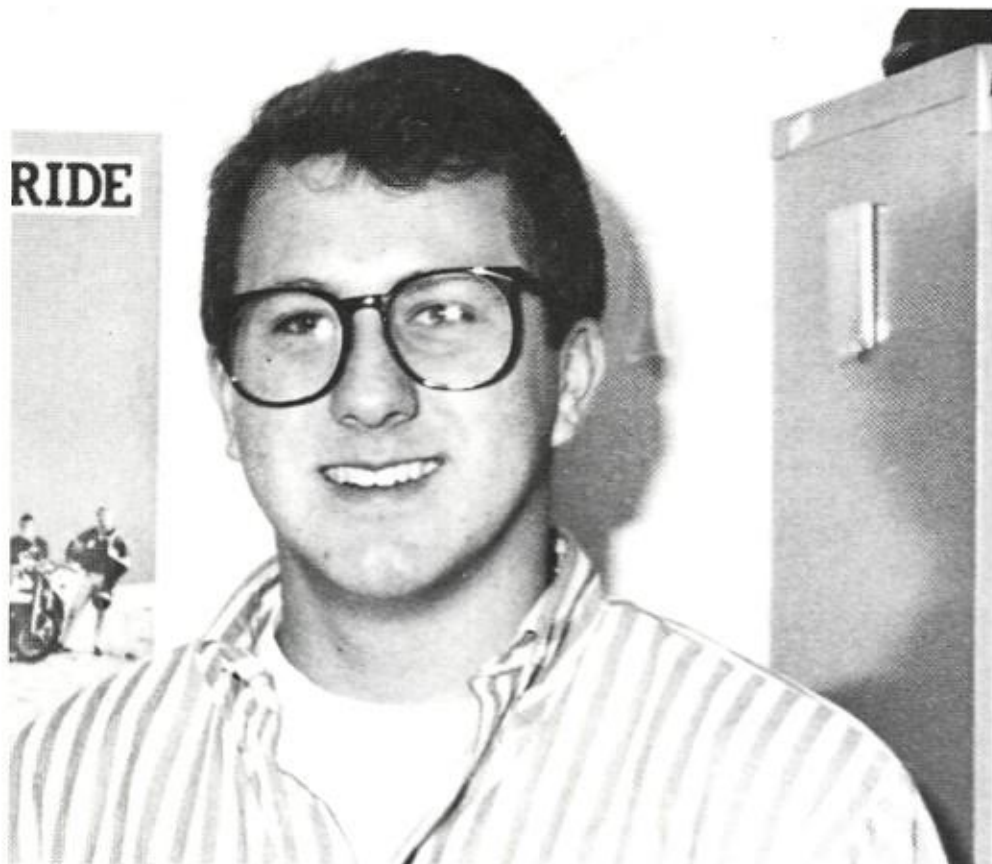

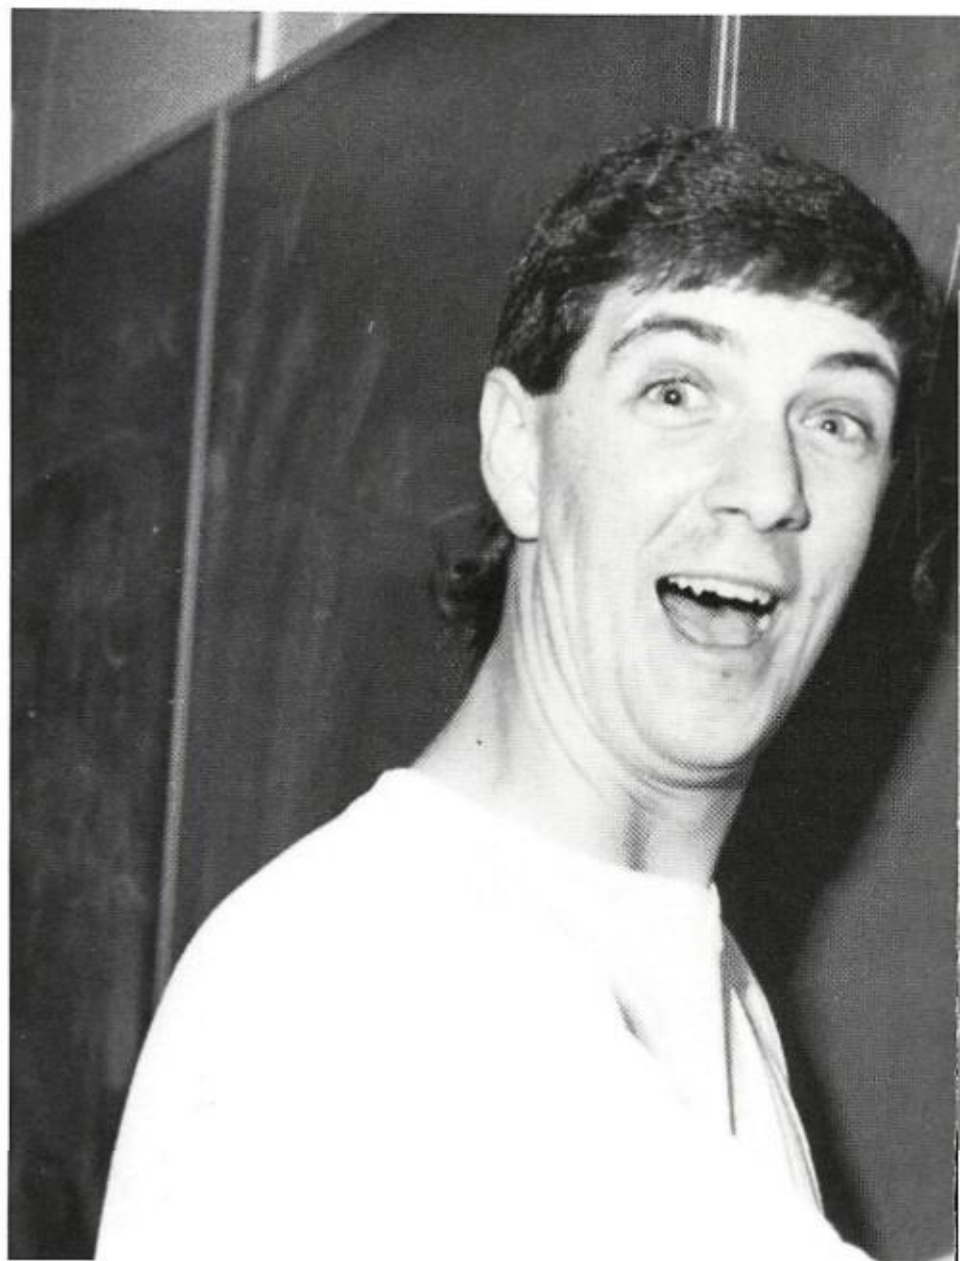

The Class of '88 moves on and in their wills they leave behind memorable times and items

"I, Jay Spalding, will my chair in Ms. Medley's office to anyone willing to take a walk on the wild side!"

Jay Spalding

Jason Phillips

Megan Garrett

"I will all of my Spanish, English, and math folders to my brother, Jay, so that he'll NEVER get out of high school."
Ray Staffin

Shane Leonard

"I will my trig. notes to anyone foolish to want them."
David Oestreicher

"I, Heather Onstott, being of sound mind (I think) and body, do hereby will to the next everyday person (like myself) a machete to get through the balcony crowd."
Heather Onstott

"I will my crutches to anyone else who wants to be on them nine times in high school, and who wants to get out of all your classes early while other people carry your books."
Shane Crosby

"I will my elevator pass to any freshman who is dumb enough to buy it."
Jim Orr

"To Scott Hall, I will my football center position and the determination and perseverance it takes to line up across from a 250 lb. noseguard every game."
Andy Harris

"To all incoming freshman, I will the ability to leave campus for lunch for three years without getting caught."
Mark Yarbrough

"I will all the alarm clocks that I have to the next senior class so they'll get to school on time. I don't know if they work. I never heard them in the mornings. The snooze button works great, though."

Kristi "Tall" Williams

"I will my clunker to the yearbook staff. On second thought, take everything, all I want is my diploma."

Mike Brown

"I will all of the applications to colleges I've never heard of to the Newman Smith counselors."
Karenia Shultz

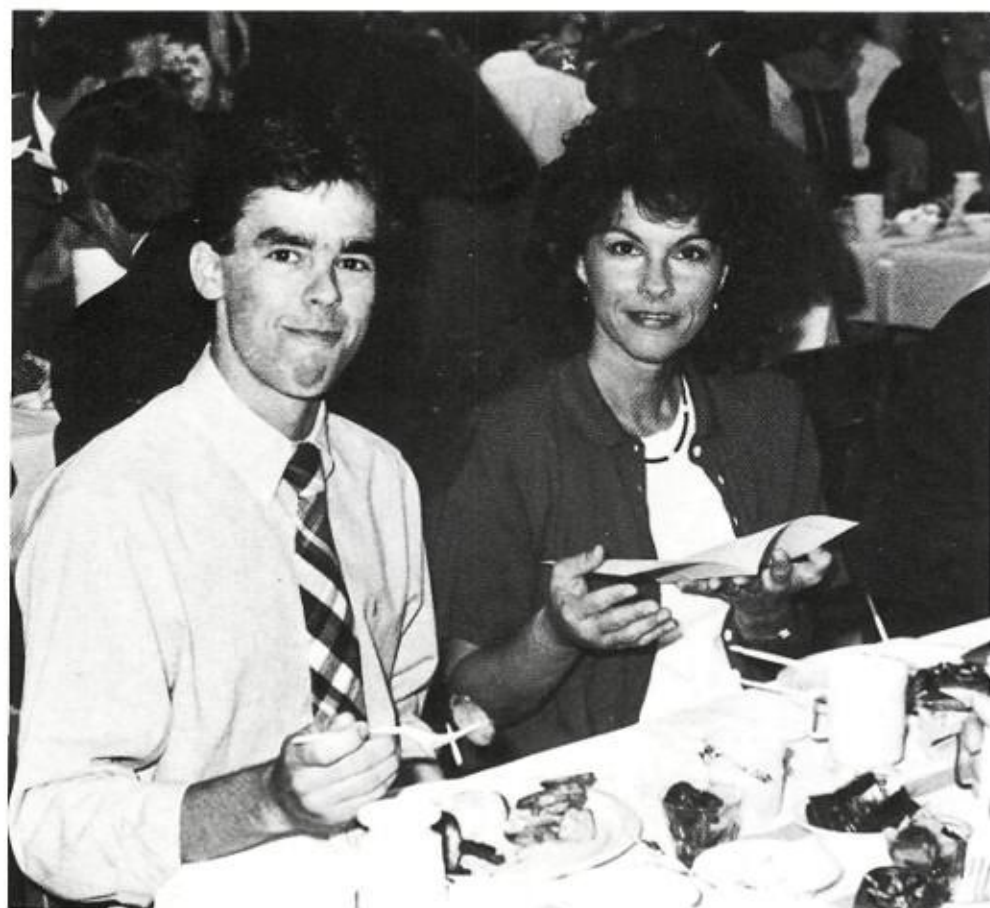

"I will the act of being one of the four spirit guys during football season to any junior guy who doesn't mind getting into games free and riding a bus full of Troyanns, cheerleaders and loud music."
Corby Van Arsdale

"On behalf of the Senior Class of 1988, I will the 'senior balcony' to all of the juniors who stood across the hall. After we're gone I know that the Class of '89 will uphold the traditions as we did."
James Willits

"I will David Michie, an avid Texas A&M fan, my Notre Dame sweatshirt, so that he may do whatever he pleases with it."

Class Act

Honors Breakfast and Senior Dinner bring the seniors' last act to a memorable finale

Perhaps an appropriate synonym for the Class of '88's senior year was "activity." Headed by President Pam Huling, the senior executive committee met weekly throughout the year to help plan numerous fund raisers and several senior activities: Homecoming, two Senior Skates at the North Texas Ice Arena, prom at the Infomart, the post-prom party at the Rosemeade Swimming Complex, Senior Walk and Senior Dinner at the Harvey Hotel. With the support and assistance of the class sponsors, parents, counselors, and the Parent-Teacher-Student Association, the committee was able to utilize its funds to provide a variety of senior activities.

In late May, the counselors invited the students in the top ten percent and their parents to the annual Honors Breakfast. After breakfast the honor graduates' ranks were announced as well as the high honor graduates including the co-valedictorians, Steven Shiflett and Corby Van Arsdale and the salutatorian, Billy Grady. Mr. and Mrs. Newman Smith were present to offer congratulations to the honor graduates and their proud parents.

Following Senior Walk, the seniors gathered at the Harvey Hotel for dinner. The after-dinner talent show featured the senior sponsors in a dance routine "Whip Out," Jenni Page and "Somewhere Out There," Julia Smith and Joel English with the Jitterbug, and a band of Brad Griffith on drums, Carey Kelson on vocals, Bret McCabe on bass, and Corby Van Arsdale on guitar. A slide presentation ended the evening.

Activity filled the year for the seniors: graduation announcements, thank you notes, cap and gown orders, college applications, SAT and ACT tests, and more. But the seniors did take time out for all of the fun senior activities that make the last year in high school the best year.

Taking a Stroll

Awaiting that final "walk of life," the seniors proudly march toward their success and goals

The morning of Senior Walk brought a great contrast of joyous celebration and solemn remembrance. Dressed in their Sunday best for the afternoon honor assembly, seniors gathered before school to tie yellow ribbons on cars and around trees in respect of Stacie Madison and Susan Smalley.

A shortened bell schedule sped up the day as seniors anxiously watched the clock approach 1:30 p.m. Colorful hats dotted the fashion parade when the Senior Class strolled into the downstairs gym as peers, family members, and friends gathered in the bleachers. Fifty-one local organizations awarded $27,725 in scholarships, and the Class of 1988 set an all-time record of scholarship money with a grand total of 1.3+ million dollars. The walk under the traditional arch symbolized an special end and a new beginning to all graduating seniors.

Prom-goers take a Coke break as "The Curve" entertains them.

The Senior Prom, the first ever held at the Infomart in Dallas, treated graduating seniors to a dinner on the spacious lower floor and then a ride up the glass elevators to the seventh floor for picture-taking and the dance. Black, white, and rose balloons decorated the dance room where seniors and their dates, dressed in their fanciest clothes, danced to the music of a live band, "The Curve." Everyone enjoyed a spectacular view of the downtown lights from a giant seventh floor window.

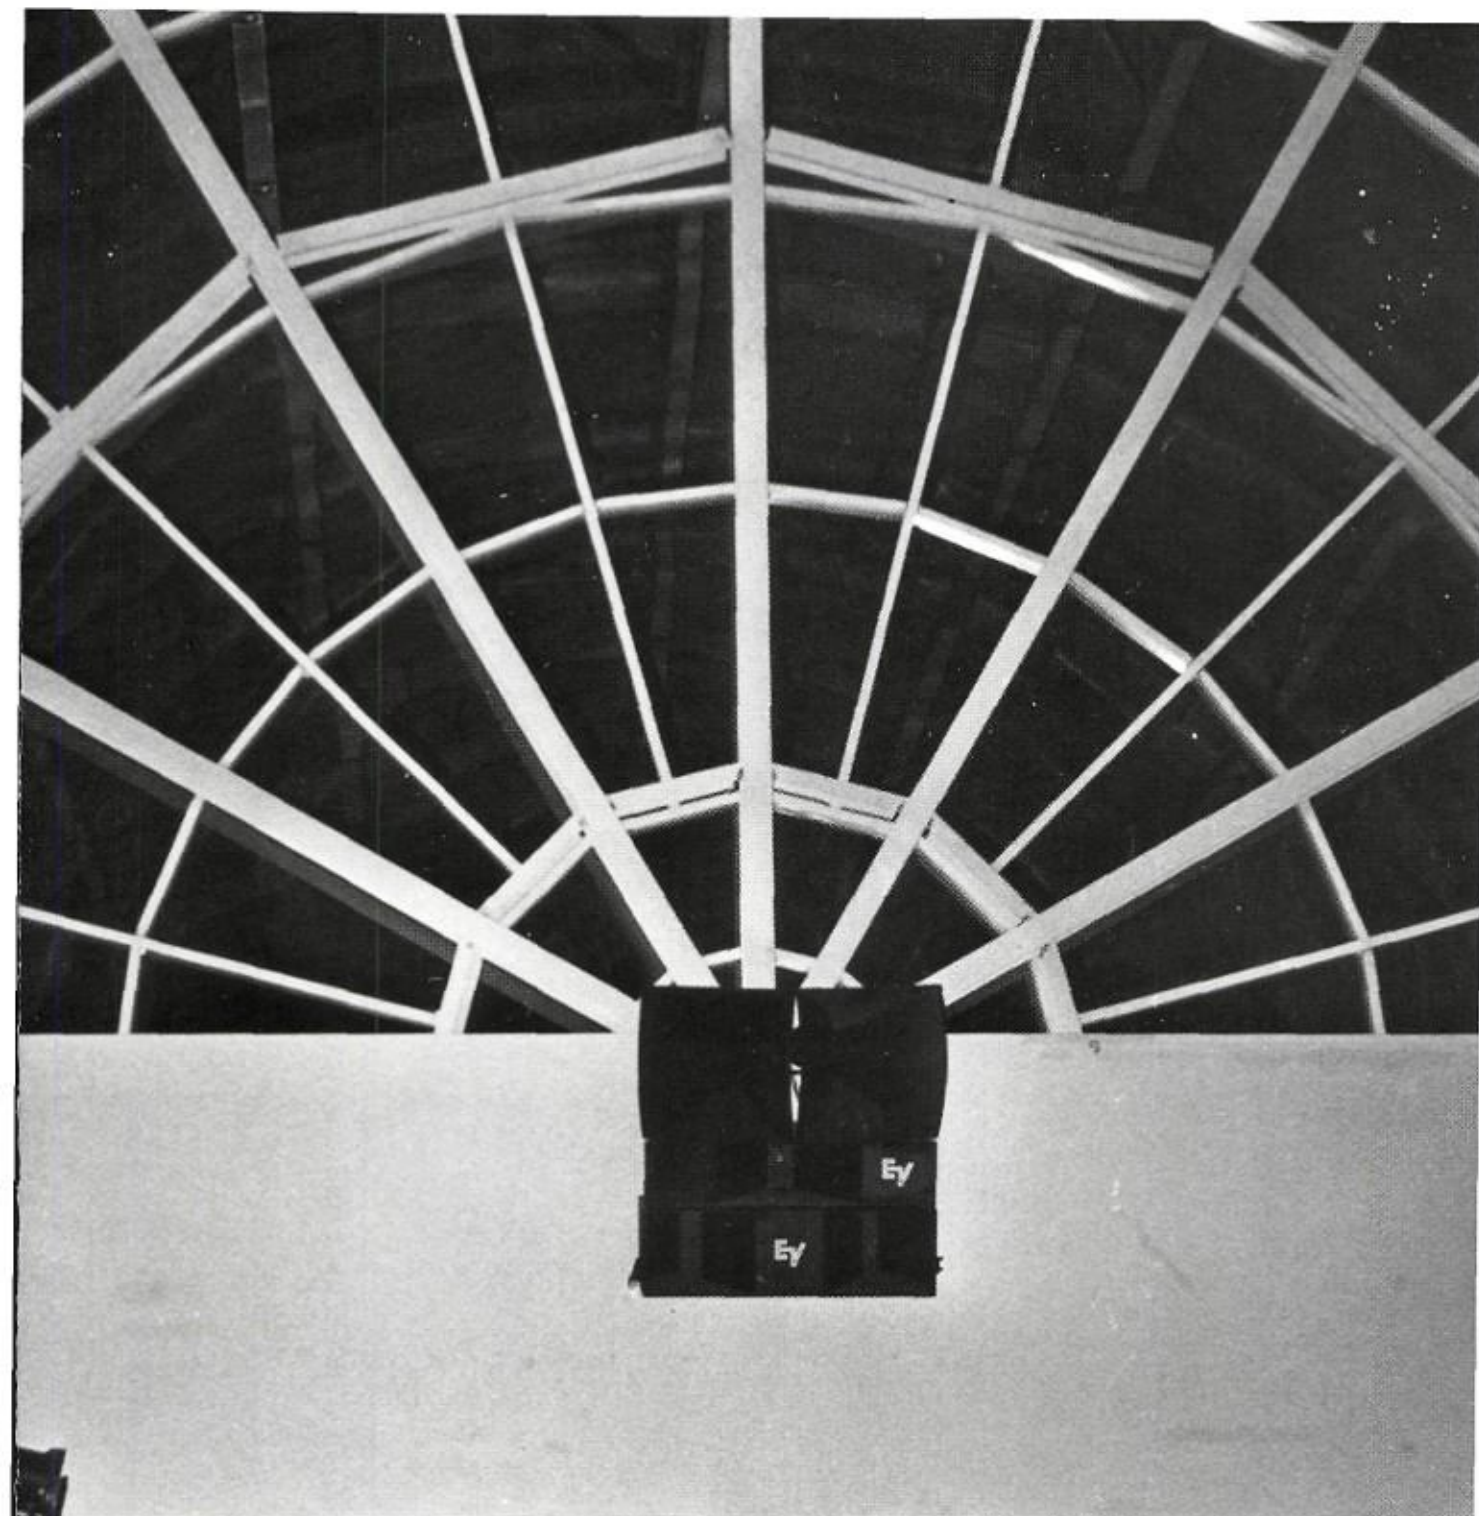

The Rosemeade Swimming Complex hosted the Post-Prom Party where Y-95 and Q102 gave away numerous door prizes including concert tickets, gift certificates, tapes, coolers, a compact disk player, and two tickets to the Bahamas. Fortune-telling, caricature drawings, picture-taking, swimming (voluntary or involuntary), and a special performance by "Sugar and Spice" entertained the celebrating seniors from 1 a.m. to 4 a.m. Jack the-Box provided the late night early morning snacks from rolls to breakfast sandwiches.

The Sunday morning sunrise brought the eventful prom weekend to a close. Full of memories, the special night gave the Class of '88 a night on the town in celebration of its graduation.

Hats Off

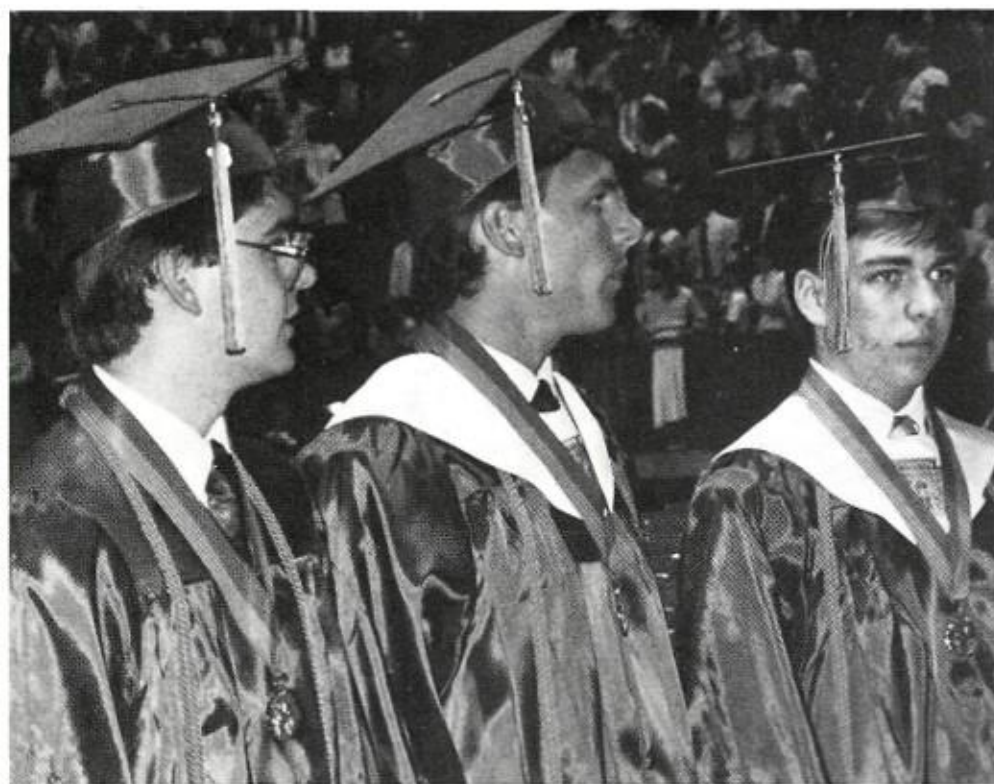

Graduation marks the waking of the future, as the '88 seniors reach a long-awaited goal

The countdown ended. The moment that 610 teenagers and their families had waited twelve years for finally came on Sunday, June 5, 1988. "Pomp and Circumstance" echoed at the North Texas State Coliseum, and filled the ears of seniors as they neatly filed into their seats. Proud and teary-eyed parents focused on the trail of green gowns, as they tried to catch the eye behind one special tassel. Leading the trail, co-valedictorians Steven Shiflett and Corby Van Arsdale and salutatorian Billy Grady guided the class into the long-awaited ceremony.

From "Jill Ackerman" to "Jay Young," the names making up Newman Smith's Class of 1988 were read aloud. Each senior left his seat, strolled across the stage to receive his precious diploma, and then returned to his chair as part of the entire senior class. That day was the last day that the Class of '88 would sit together as one body.

After the traditional cap throw, the seniors bid their final farewells to peers and teachers. The once-in-a-lifetime moment had come and gone.

Academics

Academics, more than just faces on a page, reflects the true spirit of the student body

Academics - Academics is students. Academics is faculty. Academics is about the people who make up Newman Smith. The rows of pictures are not just faces; they are personalities. Each face contributes in his own way to the life, the fun, the work, and the image of the school. Each face is important; not only does each face stand alone, it makes up our student and faculty body. Each face is Newman Smith.

Cruisin' Into '88

Vowing to "Surf or Die," Seniors hang a perfect ten and catch a wave into the future as they cling to their special memories

By successfully planning several activities both for the raising of funds in the Senior Class treasury and for the celebration of the final year in high school, the Senior Executive Committee added to their many high school memories. In addition to organizing and sponsoring the "Cruisin' Into '88" Homecoming Dance in October, the seniors won the homecoming decoration contest with their unique cruise ship scene complete with confetti. Not only were the traditional mum sales profitable, but they also added to the spirit and enthusiasm of Homecoming week. The annual Senior Skate, held in November at the North Texas Ice Arena in Valley Ranch, gathered the Senior Class together for an evening of ice skating, listening to current hits...and falling on the ice. As a memoir of the Senior Class, apparel sales in the fall offered sweat shirts, sweat pants, and t-shirts with all seniors' names printed on them. The committee's hard work was rewarded in November with the prom which was held at the Inforum in Dallas, an explosive end to a great year.

The Senior Class' finished product awaits the judgement.

IN THE EARLY seven hundreds, society believed that those who sneezed would immediatly die. Therefore, to prevent a sneezing man from passing away, a prayer would be uttered in his behalf. This began the common ritual of saying "God bless you."

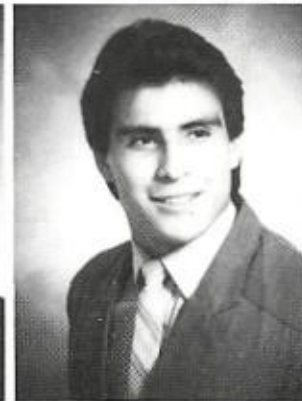

This custom is still carried on within our school. After a sneeze, a chorus of "God bless you" usually fills the room. Some even do so for the doriginal reason, including senior Heather Onstott.

"When you sneeze your heart stops, and if God blesses you, you wil recover and live," statesHeather. "That's whyI you say God bless you"

A "God bless you" from Heather could be a real life saver. Just think, thanks to a simple custom millions and billions of people have been save from....."aaachooo," a deathly sneeze.

Extra Effort

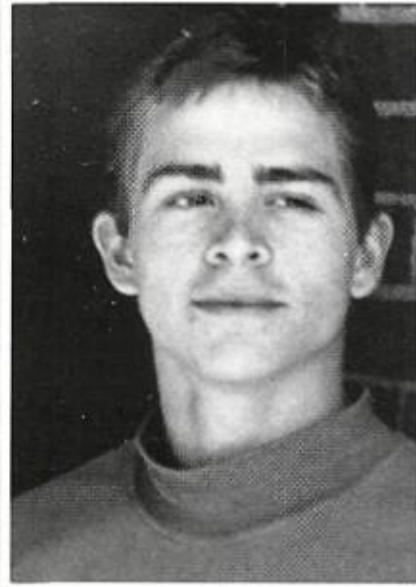

Skills teachers encourage hard work, positive attitude inside and outside school

"The help on an individual basis sometimes moves at a slow pace and you may at times get ahead of yourself." -Cristina Saman, junior

"You can get help needed in reading or just help on a one-to-one basis when other teachers don't have the time." Danny York, freshman "Skills classes helps you a lot on some of the verb problems that you don't understand. They explain it all to you easier." Sadia Anwar, sophomore

Mrs. Murray, Resource teacher, helps Jeff Lawder complete an assignment.

Skills classes help students more than many understand. Content Mastery and Resource Classes are two programs that are designed to help the student who is deficient in one or more subject areas.

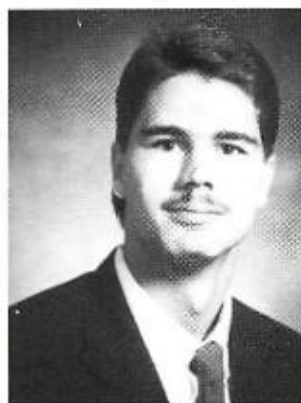

Content Mastery is set up so that any identified skills student is able to receive help during the school day. After a daily assignment has been given, the student can go to the Content Mastery room, where he will be helped with his assignment.

Resource Classes are used as a supplement to the regular English and Math courses. These classes are based on the idea of individualized teaching. Each student is given work in the subject area where he most needs help. The Resource classes are kept relatively small in order to allow more one-on-one assistance.

The majority of skills students only have a small learning disability, yet are hindered by fast paced learning. The main objective of Resource and Content Mastery classes is to strengthen the weak student. Resource teacher, Mrs. Herr states, "Our goal is to mainstream our students and get them into regular English and Math classes."

The teachers of skills classes are very supportive of their students by trying to help them understand the reasons for learning. Skills classes teach students the necessary requirements for graduation without holding them back. This gives students the opportunity to remain in their original grade with their classmates. Due to the positive reinforcement, skills classes prevent many students from dropping out of school. "Having smaller classes, the teacher has more time to spend with each student," comments senior Michelle Vespa. By having teachers recognize skills students, they can direct their teaching in the subject areas in which most help is needed, thereby giving them a chance to finish on top!

FRIDAY THE 13TH is labeled around the world as unlucky. A combination of the superstitions about Friday and the number thirteenth cause this popular belief. This day became unlucky because twelve witches and one devil attended each meeting of witches, and all meetings occurred on Friday. Anyone born on the thirteenth of any month supposedly endures an especially unlucky day on Friday the thirteenth. Charla Covey, senior, states "I was an only child until my sister was born on Friday, the thirteenth. That is why I consider this day to be unlucky."

Three's a Charm

After a trio of tremendous years, Juniors hope, work, and plan for an enchanting journey to the twilight zone... graduation

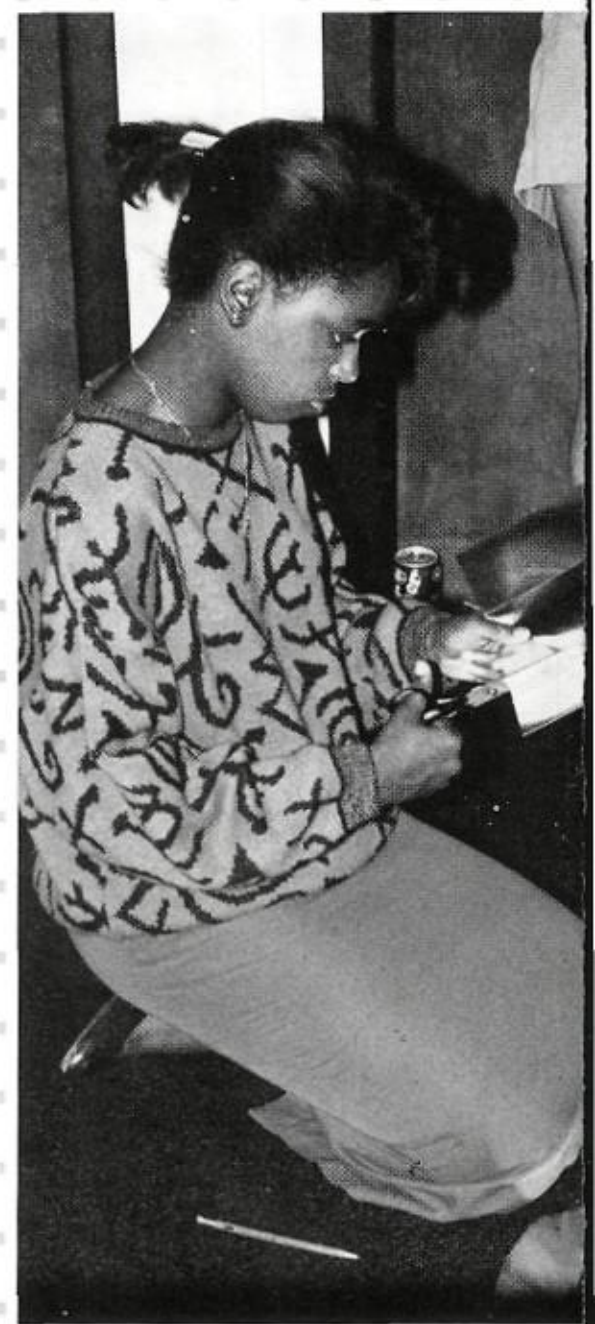

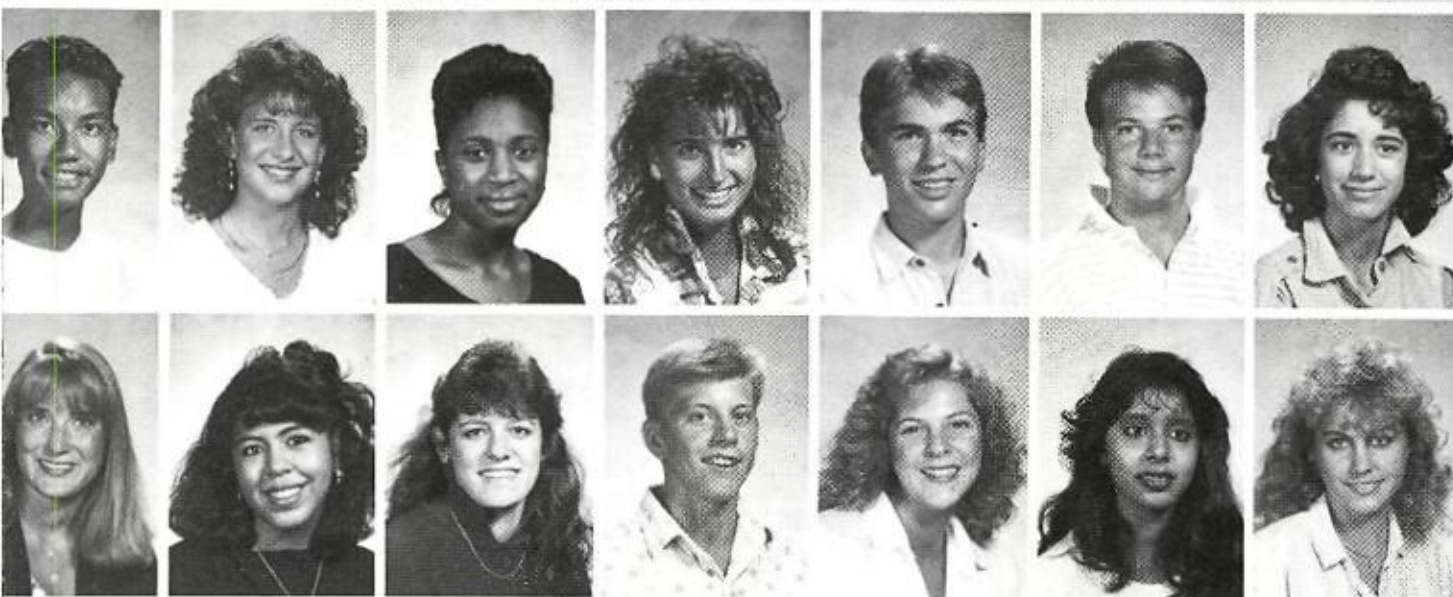

The Junior Executive Committee started out their extremely successful year with Blackout Dance. This attracted much attention, not to mention profits. They held candy sales in November and February which proved to be tasty and profitable. In December, personalized wooden key chains were sold, and in March, Trojan key rings were sold with the school emblem on them. The juniors wrapped up the prosperous year with the Favorites Dance which proved to be the successful dance of the year.

Hangin' Out

With their own unique styles, individuals with similar interests join to form cliques

As a bystander watches students on an average day, he observes many different types of people wandering through the halls. Various backgrounds and cultural experiences add to the personality differences seen in the student body. People with common interests band together forming social groups or, in today's terminology, cliques. Whether it be related to academics or sports, cliques provide a positive atmosphere for people with similar likes, dislikes, and goals. Students participate in activities such as Drama or Choir, who spend many hours together, and have an opportunity to meet others with similar interests.

At times, however, many people feel left out and rejected by certain groups. Stereotyping adds to the grouping of people into one category or another, be it a "prep" or a "nerd". Too often people are judged upon the basis of what they wear or what clubs or other organizations they belong to. This problem, however, is an ancient problem not easily overlooked or solved.

"The main problem is stereotyping; people judge others on what they wear or who they hang around, but no one gets to know anyone for who they are." Terry Ridgely, senior

"I really don't see that we have a problem with cliques in this school." Tracie Chesky, junior

"For someone new coming in the school, unless they know someone, it is hard for them to fit in." Karli Cropp, junior

"There's a problem with cliques, but it's natural for people to act cool and hang around with their own group of friends." Eddie Yoo, sophomore

When it comes to test taking, Trey Troxel relies on superstition to make the grade. Since the beginning of his Freshman year, Trey has used a yellow, number two pencil each time he takes a scantron test. Trey aced his first test taken with this pencil, and considers it to be good luck. "The pencil is pretty small now," states Trey, "but I still use it on every test." Trey says that as long as his pencil lasts, he will have good luck on scantron tests.

aking the challenge, honor's students reach gher, getting more out of their education

As students enter high school, they begin to face important decisions to create a well rounded schedule. One of the first options is whether or not to enroll in excellerated classes. Honors, Advanced Placement, and Gifted-and-Talanted programs are three of these such courses. While these classes have many rewarding advantages, they do have their setbacks.

Excellerated classes encourage higher levels of thinking and greater bounds of creativity. Most students agree that these classes provide a greater challenge for the advanced student. The motivation to do well usually increases among students in the Honors program, which aids in faster paced learning. Another highlight is that an advanced class strives to prepare the student for college.

On the other hand, in an excellerated class there is a greater amount of work than that of a Regular class. More projects are assigned that require out of class work. Similarly, more homework is given, and tests are of a higher degree of difficulty. Although students in honors classes receive three extra points on their final average, and Advanced Placement and TAG classes receive six, many feel that this does not compensate for the extra work load. Many times students in excellerated classes have less time for extra-curricular activities and feel more pressure to do well. This being the reason many students decide to take their regular classes or electives.

While Advanced Placement, Honors, and TAG classes have their place, they are not designed for every student. To many, the social aspect of school is more important than the academic. Therefore, each student must choose which path he will take in high school.

"How much you get out of honor's class depends on the teacher." Kellie Heller, senior

"TAG is a challenge but it is a fun class because we are very open with each other." Julie Heinzer, junior

"I would get bored in a regulars class. Honor's teach us more of a variety of things and in greater depth." Peter Schroeder, freshman

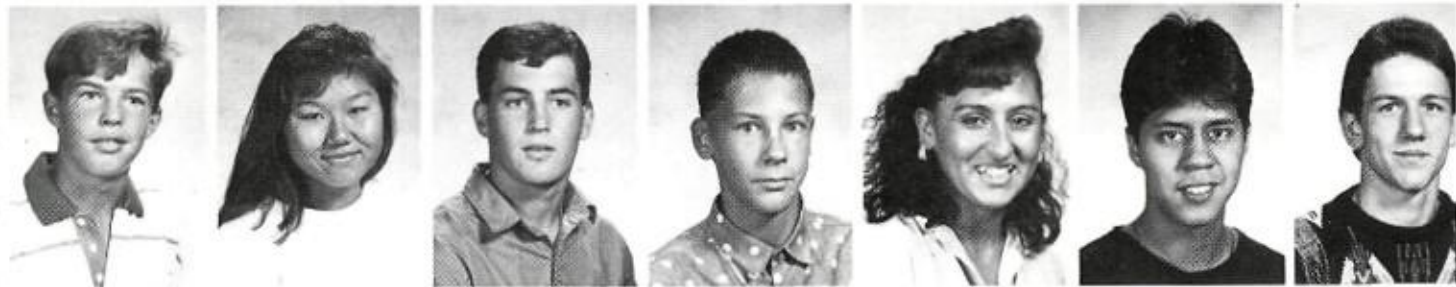

"I think they're [honor's classes] really challenging. They help you to think because regular classes don't always do that." Tapash Palit, freshman

Jill Harwell carries on a unique tradition passed down through the years. She believes that a necklace can hold an incredible amount of good luck. When the clasp of a necklace falls to the front of your neck, it is a sure sign that someone loves, or is thinking about you. "When this happens," says Jill, "I always kiss the clasp before turning it one turn to the back." Whether it be truth or a simple myth, Jill continues this tradition in hopes that her dreams will come true.

Fish Crossing

Taking the big step, the Freshman Class experiences the excitement of crossing over into high school life

The Freshman Class successfully started their first year of high school. During the fall, they held a "Generic Dance." This event drew interest to the executive committee. In February, they tempted everyone's sweet tooth with a bake sale. This event proved a delicious way to raise money. During the Easter Season, students could fill their baskets with sweets provided by the freshman candy sale. The class of '91 looks ahead to three more great years.

After 9 hours

Students put in many overtime hours in jobs, sports, and spirit activities

High school students participate in many extra-curricular activities. Service organizations, jobs, spirit clubs, and homework are some of the activities that students devote their time to out of school. The experience of these involvements is needed to help a student get through school successfully while having fun. These functions being either school or non-school related allow the student a sense of accomplishment, self-esteem, and responsibility. At times it may be difficult to balance all of these activities, but as one junior states, "It's worth it. All the time I spend at work and after school practices are worth it eventually, no matter how busy I get." Some of this hard work will pay off in college by getting into the school you want. Other rewards include time spent when out of school at an experienced job or skill. Whatever the case may be, more and more students turn to clubs, jobs, and sports to fill up the gaps between school to get the stimulation needed out of school.

The Trojan fans come alive as the winning touchdown is made.

"I have a job mainly for the experience that it gives me."
Mark Roach, senior

"Cheerleading gives me something to look forward to each day and gives me a feeling of responsibility and leadership." Aleacia Reeder, senior

"Being a Trojann takes a lot of time but it's worth it. I've learned the meaning of true dedication and what school spirit is all about." Lisa Quick, senior

"Track is worth it. The hard-work pays off later in competition." Joey Kiss, sophomore.

"I'M PASSING ALL my classes so far, knock on wood," states Natalie McLemore. Used after speaking of good fortune, making a prediction, or boasting, the phrase "knock on wood" began in the days when trees were considered to be the homes of good spirits or gods. People ask these gods for favors. If the wishes were granted, the god's tree was knocked on as a sign of acknowledgment and gratitude.

Friend or Foe

Teachers pursue a delicate balance between teaching students and developing friendship

Teachers are often a forgotten but very important element in school. Without their devotion, dedication, support, and ability, the school would not be able to function as students now see it. Most teachers are at school when the sun rises and do not leave until the sun hides behind the house tops. Students do not always realize that teachers are usually there for them with a little cooperation. Teachers are more than willing to help a student understand the day's work beyond in working with PSAT words for the future, or advise a student in writing a college application. While some teachers feel that students really do not want to become "friends" with them, the majority agrees that students get more out of learning when they realize that the person in the front of the class has human qualities. Teachers, listening and giving advice, help with problems that parents or friends can not always understand. Finally, all the sponsors of school clubs and organizations such as National Honor Society, E.S., or even coaches for Powder Puff are enthusiastic teachers. Students and teachers find that sharing activities and interests in their lives can be enjoyable and rewarding.

"I like to get to know people. I have the advantage of having students year after year, so I get to know them. The thing I do best is talking to them." Mrs. Webb, Latin teacher.

"I enjoy what I do after three as much or more than teaching. Outside the classroom you get to know them as a person. In a class they are just students." Mrs. Kibler, Calculus teacher

"I enjoy seeing the students out of class where they are not restrained by desks and books. They can be themselves." Mrs. Bergkamp, Physics teacher

"I CARRY A black-eyed pea in my billfold," reports Barbara Taylor, English teacher. Twenty years ago, during the first Christmas that she spent with her husband, Mrs. Taylor received a black-eyed pea from her mother-in-law. Every Christmas since then, Mrs. Taylor has received a pea from her husband's mother that she trades with the old one in her billfold. Athletics experiences an exceptional year of pride, respect, recognition and triumph

Reaching an exceptional level of performance, both individuals and entire teams received local, state, and national recognition while bringing pride to the student body. Students demonstrated increased spirit by supporting sporting events. The students and faculty members showed respect and support for athletes as never before. The Sports Staff has attempted to capture the sense of accomplishment, spirit, and pride of this extraordinary year in athletics.

With the arrival of new head coach Joe Bob Johnson, the Varsity Football Team vastly improved over the past several seasons. Coach Johnson brings with him a great deal of playoff and championship experience. In 1981 he led the Lake Highlands Wildcats to the state championship. With this experience, Smith should be heading in the right direction. Coach Johnson is assisted by Gerald Keith, Roger Schlegal, Randy Wade, Charlie Dicke, Brian Egan, and Bob Giesey. The Trojans' two wins came during the most memorable homecoming game against Pearce and against district rival R. L. Turner. "A play here and a play there could have been the difference in two or three close ballgames," stated Coach Johnson. This year's team had many improved players including, All-District, Tim Williams and Trey Budd and, Most-Improved Player, James Rakovan. One of the most memorable games of the year was the first district win against J.J. Pearce. Added Coach Johnson, "There is a lot of room for improvement next year, but I thought we competed pretty well with our opponents. Our kids played hard, and we had opportunities to win several ballgames." With this much experience, look for Newman Smith to return to that winning feeling in the future.

In Training

Preparing for tomorrow, top athletic trainers gain skill and technique through valuable, practical hands-on experience

Athletic training plays a vital role in all athletic team's programs. Trainers care for athletes' injuries ranging from cuts and bruises to sprained knees and ankles. Student trainers cover over 25 teams throughout the year under the supervision of the head trainer. The trainers include Greg Garner, Lance Hill, John Laubenthal, Kristi McGlothlin, Jody Buettner, Richard Burrow, Ches Cain, Sylvia Cogburn, Kristin Keesey, Kim Wood, Chris Peterson, Kathy Frank, and Johnny Driver. Head training coach Miguel Benavides has trained in the Corpus Christi I.S.D. and has a B.A. from U.T.A. and a masters from North East Louisiana. Benavides comments on the season, "We had a great year with a lot of improvement taking place. Student trainers are doing a great job working in a coeducational athletic training program." The many special moments of the training season included recruiting trips to North Texas State and Northeast Louisiana Universities. Two top trainers Lance Hill and Greg Garner saw athletic training at the college level. The student trainers are gaining valuable experience that will help them and the teams they care for in the future.

This year's JV/Freshman football teams came together for a great season. The JV squad experienced a great deal of improvement from start to finish. The team ended with 5 wins and 5 losses in what is known as one of the toughest football districts. The JV team was coached by Randy Northrop and assisted by Brian Egan and Ron Dicke. Coach Northrop commented on the season, "I believe we really came together as a team during the Lake Highlands game. This was a most enjoyable group of young men to work with, and they showed promise of better things to come."

Great progress was also seen in the Freshman team. Being coached by Mike Stewart, head coach; and Fred Howard, and Tim Liberto, assistants; the team finished the season with a 3-7 record. Looking back on their eighth grade year, the three junior high schools, Blalack, Perry, and North Carrollton, were constantly competing with each other. As these players moved into ninth grade, they came together forming a stronger Freshman team. Coach Stewart commented, "The team had a slow start, but through their hard work and determination, they improved greatly. By the middle of the season, they had become 100 percent better in comparison to their first game." Both the JV and Freshman players look forward to next year and another great season.

Goal Setting

Varsity Volleyball gains pride and respect from area teams through tournament play and competition in district 12-5A

The Varsity Volleyball team won seven of their last eight district games to finish third place in district and one game away from advancing to bi-district playoffs. Under the direction of second-year Coach Terri Johnson, the squad improved their district finish from last place in 1986 to third place in 1987. Before the team began pre-season games in August, the team made finishing third in district their goal. This goal seemed out of reach at the time considering the team's finish the previous year. The team's tremendous improvement was the result of months of practice and dedication.

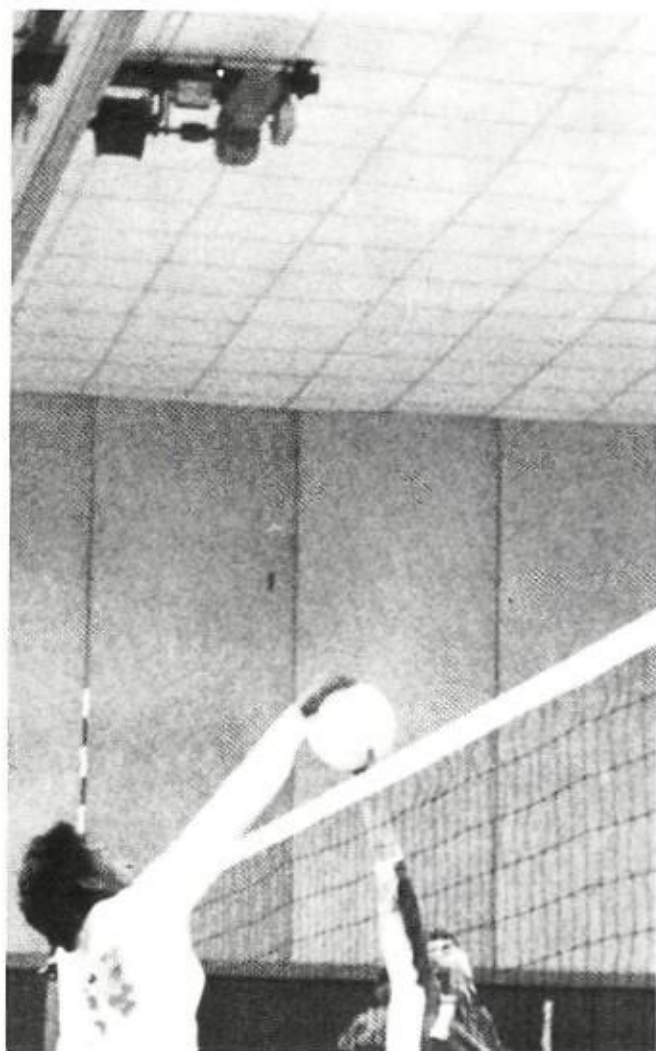

The team began practicing in early August and began pre-season games before the beginning of the school year. The team's efforts were definitely rewarded with their third place finish in an extremely competitive district. Coach Johnson commented, "This team competed well with several of the best teams in the state. The program gained the respectability it needed by finishing third in district." The team finished with a district record of 9 and 5 losses. Two of the victories were against defending district champions R. L. Turner. Senior Sharyn Noska was named to the District First Team, and senior Nancy Jackson was named All-District Honorable Mention. Although all team members improved tremendously, sophomore Tina Herring was the most improved. "The Varsity squad will turn an outstanding group of athletes who challenge for the district championship year," added Coach Johnson.

The Future is Set

J.V. and Freshman volleyball experience a time of learning and improvement in preparation for upcoming seasons

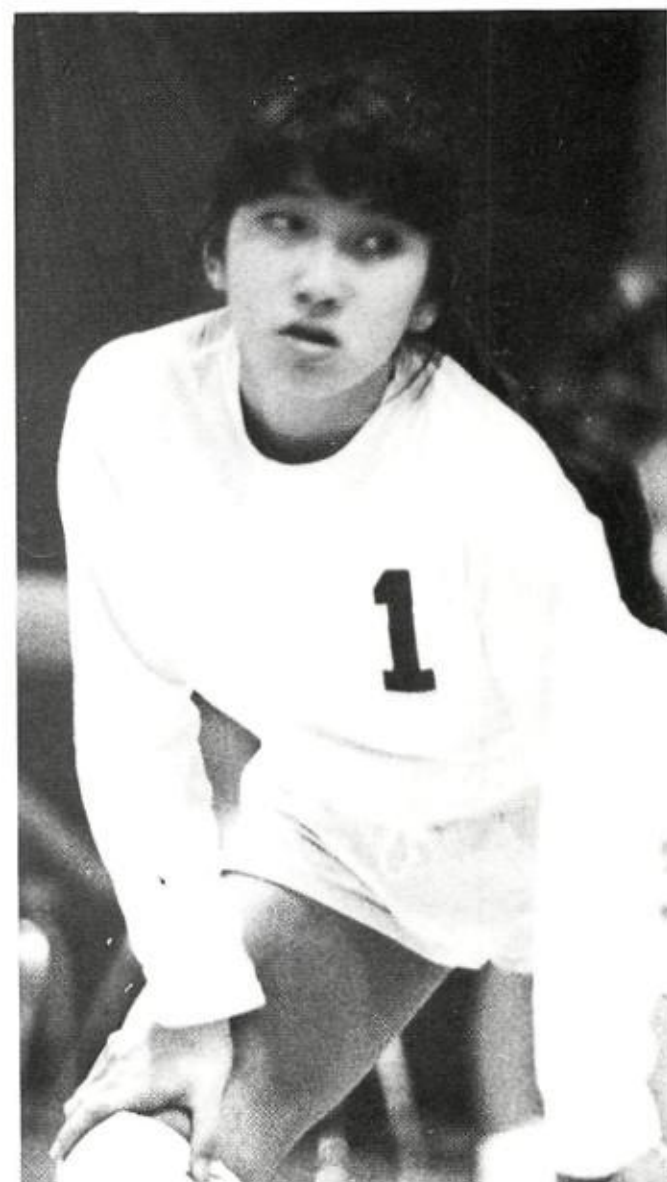

According to head volleyball coach Terri Johnson, the J.V. and Freshman squads consisted of "a good group of athletes who will make great contributions to the volleyball program in the next two years." The J.V. squad coached by Barbara Edwards and the Freshman squad coached by Kathy Howe proved to be competitive with teams in their districts. The J.V. team had an overall season record of 13 wins and 10 losses. The Freshman squad finished their season with a record of 2 wins and 6 losses and a consolation victory in the pre-season tournament. Both teams improved throughout the year. "Overall, the girls improved, or we would not have had the success we had," said J.V. Coach Edwards.

Freshman Coach Howe commented, "We had talented kids who improved tremendously. I feel good about this group's contributions to the volleyball program in the future." Setter Lisa McLeroy proved to be the most valuable player on the J.V. team.

Pain for Gain

Do the rewards of participating in sports make enduring all the pain worthwhile?

The ground shakes. Crunch... Slap... Groan... Scream... Thud... !@#$%&@!@#$%&. Author of Blood and Guts Violence in Sports, Don Atyeo explains that any boy who plays high school or college football has a 95 percent chance of serious injury. Most view basketball as a non-contact sport, or is it? Violent blows are struck during play. The desire to win can sometimes override playing fair. Soccer may not appear to be a dangerous sport but hardly a game goes by without a player falling to the ground in pain. Sports are a wonderful way to get exercise and to satisfy the human competitive instinct, but pain and stress often work their way into the game.

Think back to that chilly night at Clark Stadium. The Varsity Football team battles the Plano Wildcats. The Trojans score the first touchdown and anxiety fills the air. The Wildcats come back with touchdown after touchdown, but this does not destroy the new found Trojan spirit. Near the beginning of the fourth quarter, with the score 42-7, Mike LeStarge, junior quarterback, releases a pass and is savagely knocked down by an opposing player. The result of an injury from this strenuous game is two partially torn ligaments and torn cartilage in Mike's knee. His injury required orthoscopic surgery and weekly therapy. To play again, Mike has to wear a brace on his leg in baseball as well as football. Mike has played football for seven years, and his father has coached a team for ten years. Previously, Mike broke his collar bone and sprained his shoulder. Mike does not consider this a negative aspect of the game. He said shrugging, "I don't think about it really. All I think about is getting back out there."

Football is a good sport to get out one's daily frustrations and to have fun at the same time. Senior Mark Greco commented about football, "It's in the blood; it's inborn." He also said it is an accomplishment one can look back on and feel proud or just have a sense of doing something worthwhile as with any sport.

The bouncing of ball and clammer of feet on a hard gymnasium floor create the mood for basketball. Excited fans crammed into a stuffy bleacher finish the scene. Mike Brown, senior, on the Varsity Basketball team, injured himself in practice. He tore ligaments and tendons in his ankle. Mike had to walk with a crutch for a week and wear a cast for over a month. Mike was back in the game for a couple of weeks only to injure his other ankle in a tournament game. Mike stated there were benefits he gained from basketball regardless of injuries. "It keeps you in good physical condition," he said, "Being a part of a winning team is exciting, and there are possible scholarship and college opportunities."

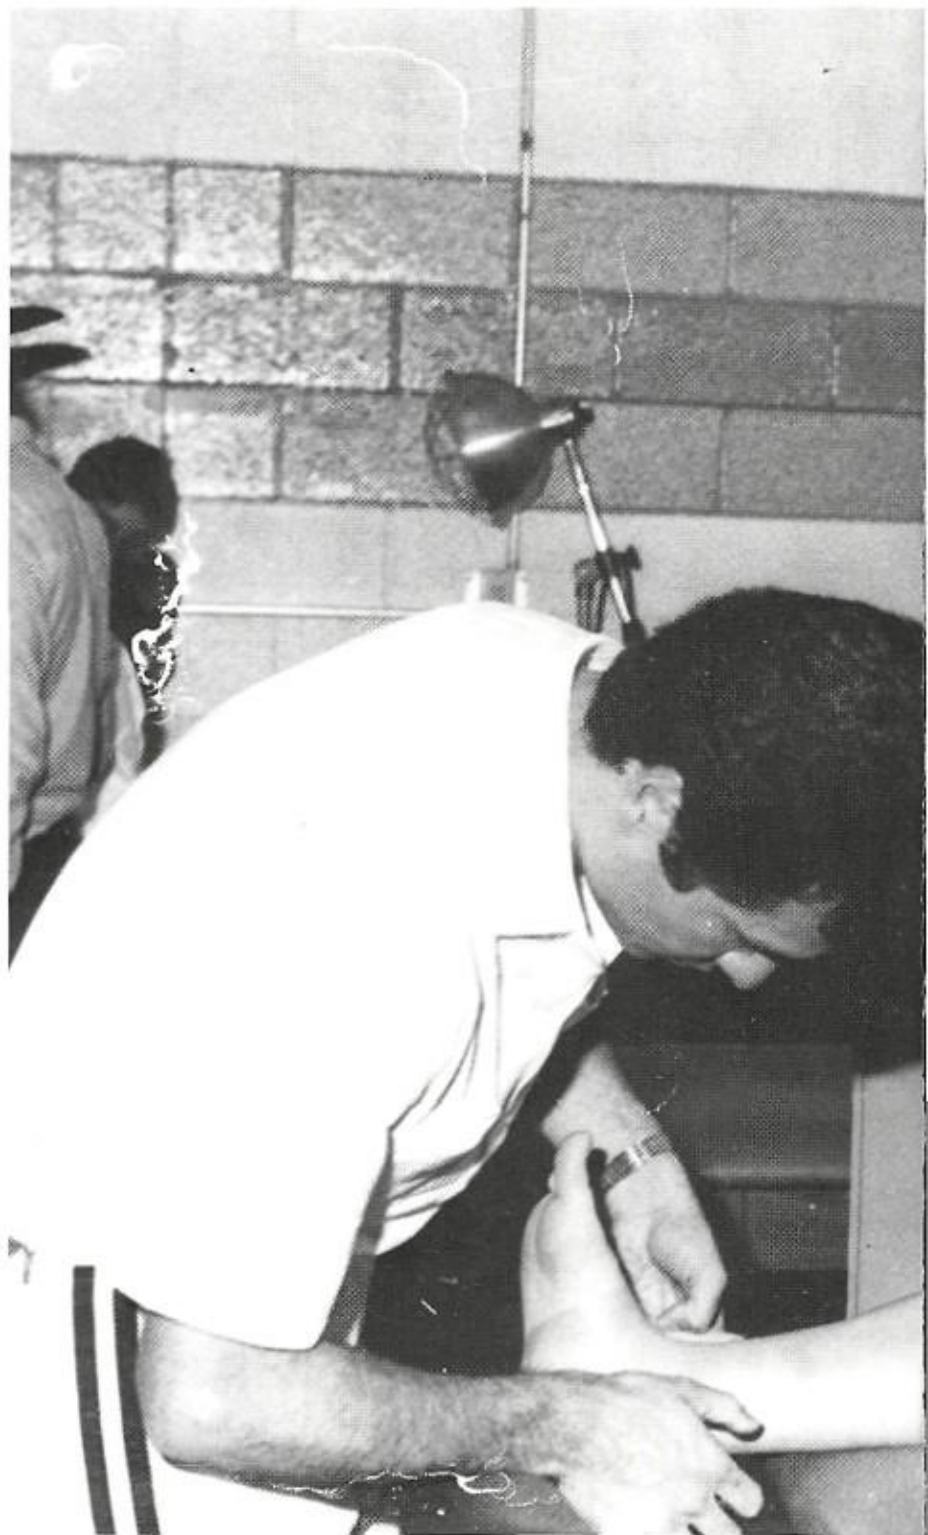

The air's bitter chill stings fans as the sky darkens and thunder clouds roll in. The R.L. Turner girls soccer team sits on one side of the field and N.S. girls soccer team sits on the other, both getting psyched up for the rival game. The whistle blows and the girls take their positions on the field. The game begins and tension builds. Possibly this game will continue with out injury. Two girls collide, and Kathy McLean, junior, falls to the ground in pain. The whistle blows once again to signal a player is down. Kathy dislocated her knee cap in the final game of the season. She had already injured her ankle in off-season and had her leg taped up. At this point, her leg would heal on its own. It almost did until two days of soccer practice when Kathy dislocated her knee cap again, requiring orthoscopic surgery (sound familiar?).

Reasons why so many people play sports parallels those of other hobbies. When one acts, sings, writes, or competes in anything they continue despite success or failure because they enjoy their interest and they simply excel. The positive outcomes of a sport override the possibility of pain, stress, or injury for most athletes. The sport becomes a part of their lives, bringing them challenge, self-satisfaction, exercise and enjoyment.

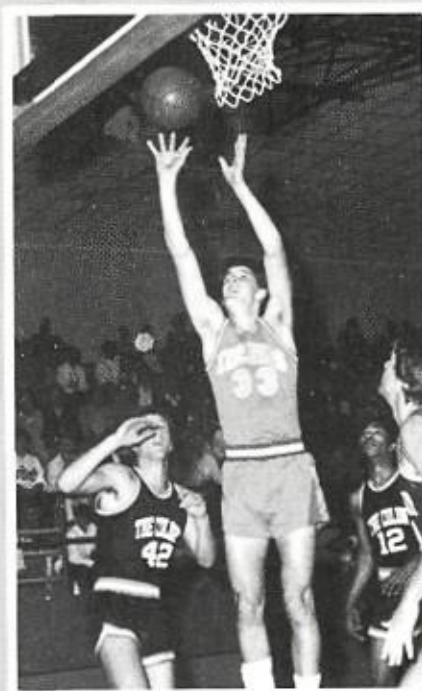

Kathy McLean continues to play, regardless of getting taped before each game and practice.

"If a person doesn't have enough heart to play even when they are injured, they shouldn't be playing in the first place."-Kristy Sauer, junior

"I don't think about getting hurt. All I think about is getting back out there."-Mike Le Starge, junior

"Basketball keeps you in good physical condition. Being a part of a winning team is exciting, and there are possible scholarship opportunities."-Mike Brown, senior

The Varsity basketball squad had the most successful season in the history of Newman Smith basketball. The team was coached by Jeff Foster, assisted by Ron Hargrove, Bob Giesey, Bob Martino, and managed by Kyle Reeves. The season was full of exciting and memorable games, including winning the Greenville Tournament and beating Lake Highlands at the buzzer, 64-62, on January 11, 1988. In the Greenville Tournament, Smith beat Lakeview Centennial 72-74, Texas High 67-50, and Greenville 53-42 to win first place. The varsity placed a wonderful 14-3 non-district record while placing third in district with a 10-4 record. The team broke many school records including averaging 68.6 points on offense while only allowing an average of 56.8 on defense. The most improved and most valuable players include Carey Kelson, Mike Mayberry, David Schmidt, Rhett Francis, and Mark Spradling. Coach Foster said, "We had a great group of young men who gave it all they had. I am proud to have had the opportunity to associate with these guys. The NSHS Trojans had an extremely successful year. We set several school records while finishing in 3rd in district." The Trojans will return with two starters and four overall for next year's team. Riding the Trojan pride, the hustling basketball team should be a force to contend with next year and in the years to come.

This year's JV/Freshman basketball teams had a year of learning. The JV squad was coached by Ron Hargrove and did show encouraging signs of improvement. The JV had a record of 7 wins and 20 losses on the season. They had a great game against Berkner in which they won. Coach Hargrove said, "We made good progress throughout the season, and we're looking forward to next season. The JV team has many good prospects for next year's Varsity team including Robert Welsh, Carl Miller, Jason Flood, and Monty Kitchen."

The Freshman A and B teams had a year of gaining experience. They were coached by Bob Giesey and assisted by Bob Martino. The A team ended with a 0-18 record while the B team was 6-4. There were many improved players by the end of the season, including Most-Improved Player Jerry Perez. Bob Giesey comments, "This season was not successful as far as winning and losing. It was enjoyable to work with great young men who gave as much as they could." With the JV and Freshman teams gaining valuable playing experience; they should be looking strong in the future.

"We've come a long way in improving our record over last season. I expect an even better season next year," said Coach Keith. Back to the Basics

By moving in the right direction, JV and Freshman girls develop fundamental skills and improve their play from start to finish

The Freshman and J.V. girls basketball squads spent the majority of their seasons developing their fundamental skills. Both Freshman Coach Kathy Howe and J.V. Coach Stacy Stokes emphasized the importance of fundamental skills to their teams. Coach Stokes joins the girls' coaching staff after graduating from Texas A&M University. "I enjoyed my first year of coaching here. I noticed tremendous improvement in the team throughout the season. They pulled together to play as a team and developed coordination," commented Coach Stokes. Coach Stokes considers the first game against Berkner to be the most memorable of the season because the girls played together as a team for the first time.

The Freshman squad also experienced a year of learning and improvement. Coach Howe said, "These girls have natural athletic ability. They entered the basketball program with strong fundamental skills and improved from start to finish." The team's overtime victory over Shepton and the team's victory over Sherman were especially memorable. On the Freshman squad, Christine Voelpel was most valuable, and Laurie Birchall was most improved. The Freshman A team finished the season with six wins and six losses, and the B team finished with four wins, two losses. The J.V. squad ended the season with five wins and nine losses in district play.

Eight to State

Taking eight wrestlers to state, Varsity makes and breaks school records in their struggle toward state placement

Never before has the Varsity Wrestling team excelled to such an extent due to a good coach and hard work. The wrestling team ended their season with an outstanding record, 18-1. They broke many tournament and school records in their season of success.

Coach Jeff David completed his third year as the wrestling coach. The success of the wrestlers skyrocketed under his coaching to records of 15-2-1, 16-4, and the final 18-1. Coach David said, "I truly believe we'll go undefeated next year. We are not going to take the back seat to anyone."

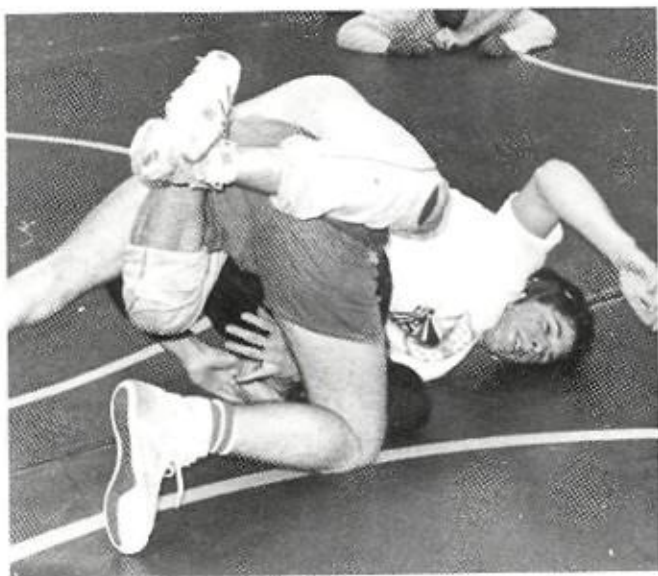

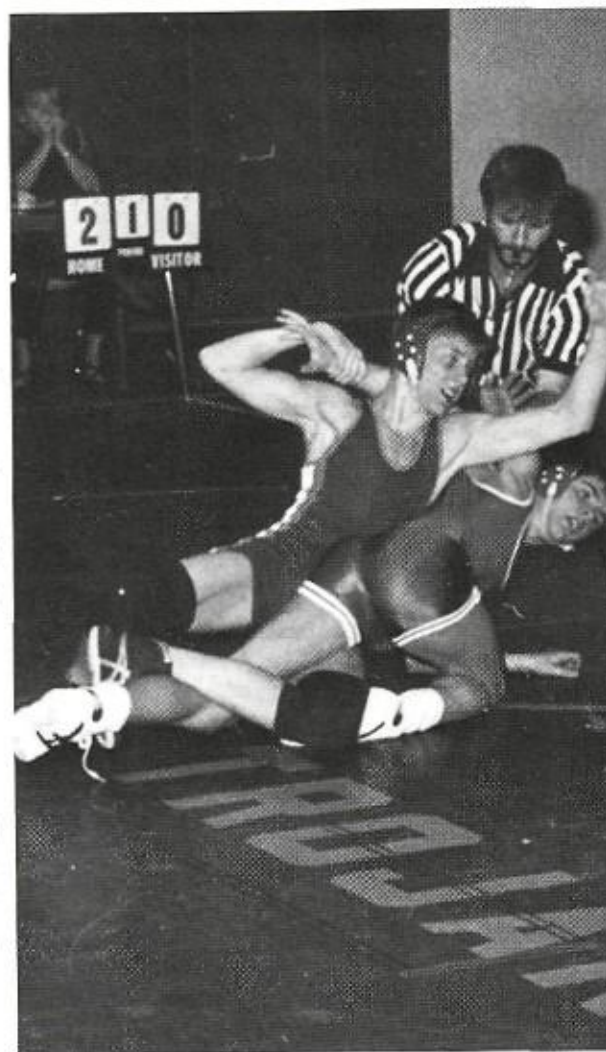

The list of tournaments in which the wrestling team took first place is impressive. Varsity took first place in the Plano Vines Team Tournament involving sixteen teams. In the Bishop-Lynch tournament, they made a new state record scoring 290.5 points. Lewisville came in second trailing by 153.5 points. The R.L. Turner Christmas tournament and Newman Smith hosted tournament also awarded first place to the wrestlers.

The shining team record led them to regionals where individual triumph led to second place. Jimmy Armentrout, junior, Mike Manderfeld, senior, Steve Manderfeld, junior, Andy Brashear, senior, and Alex Gates, senior, all placed first in their weights. With five people in first place at regionals, the wrestling team strutted to state with eight wrestlers. In the state meet, Mike Manderfeld, Most Valuable Wrestler, became the second wrestler from Newman Smith ever to gain the title of State Champion at 138 lbs. Jimmy Armentrout placed third at 105 lbs., Shane Roushar placed second at 112 lbs., Steve Manderfeld placed second at 155 lbs., and Andy Brashear placed third at 167 lbs. Alex Gates, Most Improved Wrestler, Marc Frontario, and Michael Coon also had success at the state meet. In the overall standings, the wrestling team placed third in the state.

The leadership of Captains: Shane Roushar, Andy Brashear, and Mike Coon, resulted in the wrestlers' nationwide excellence. They received an invitation to participate in a tournament involving only 24 teams from throughout the country.

Varsity Reserve

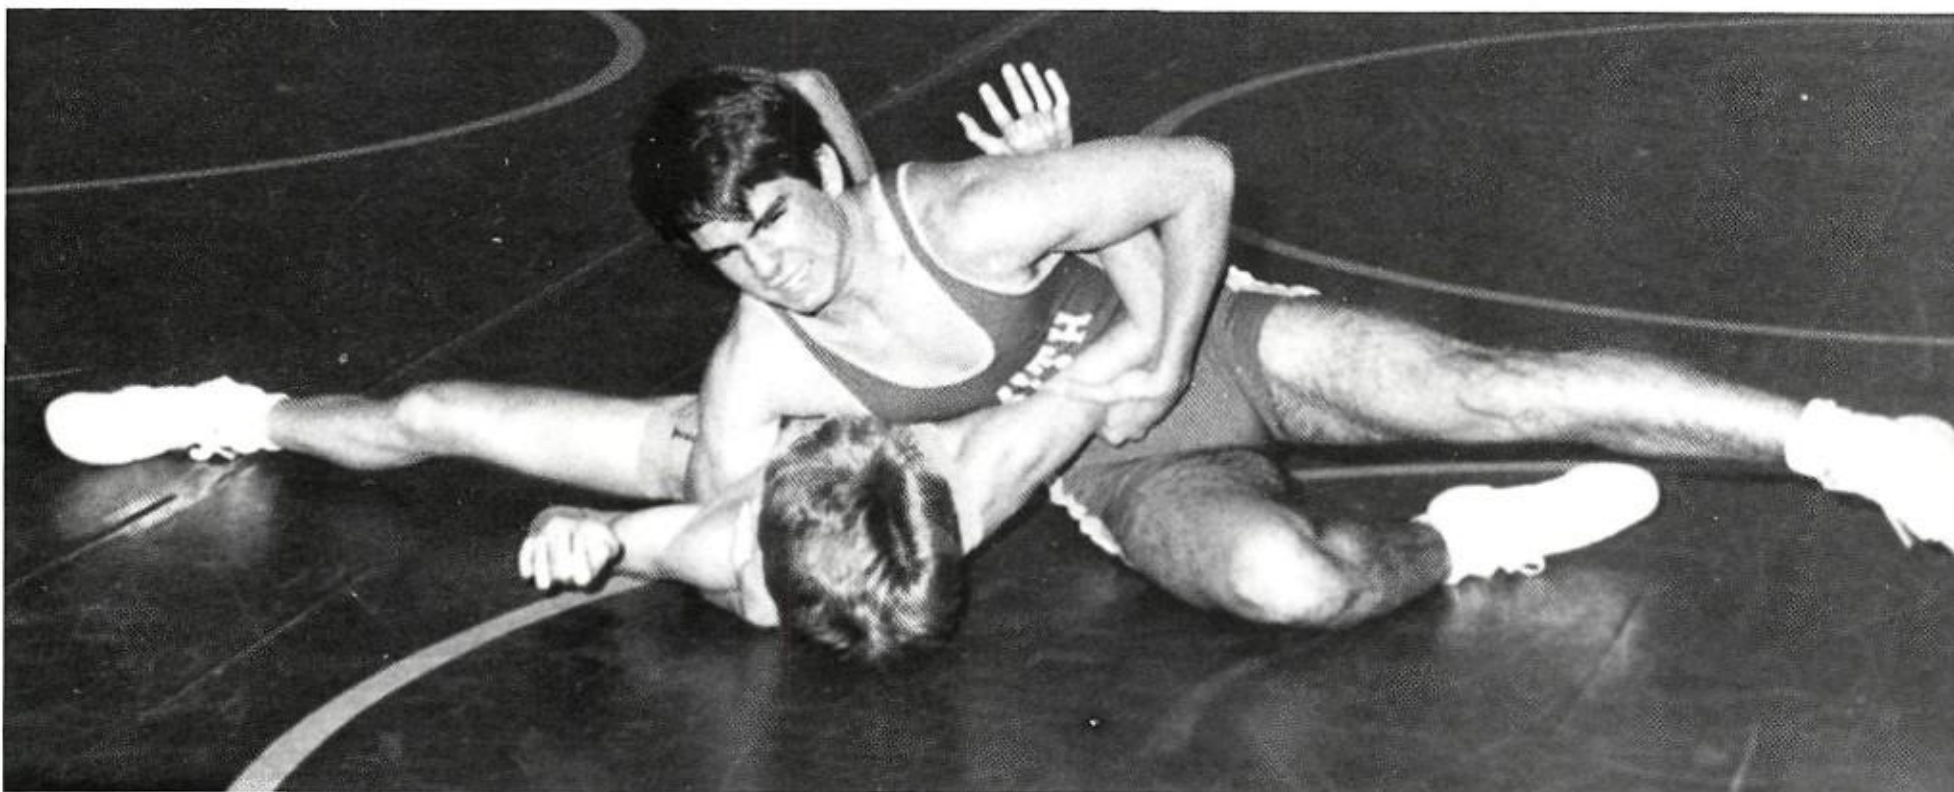

J. V. Wrestlers dominate over varsity teams, their coach does not consider them a J. V. but a Varsity Reserve

Composed of only juniors, sophomores, and freshmen, the Varsity Reserve ended their season with the record 4-2-2. All of their opposing teams were varsity teams. Coach Jeff David said, "The Reserve wrestlers are good enough to match varsity wrestlers from other schools, so I scheduled them against the teams I knew they could defeat."

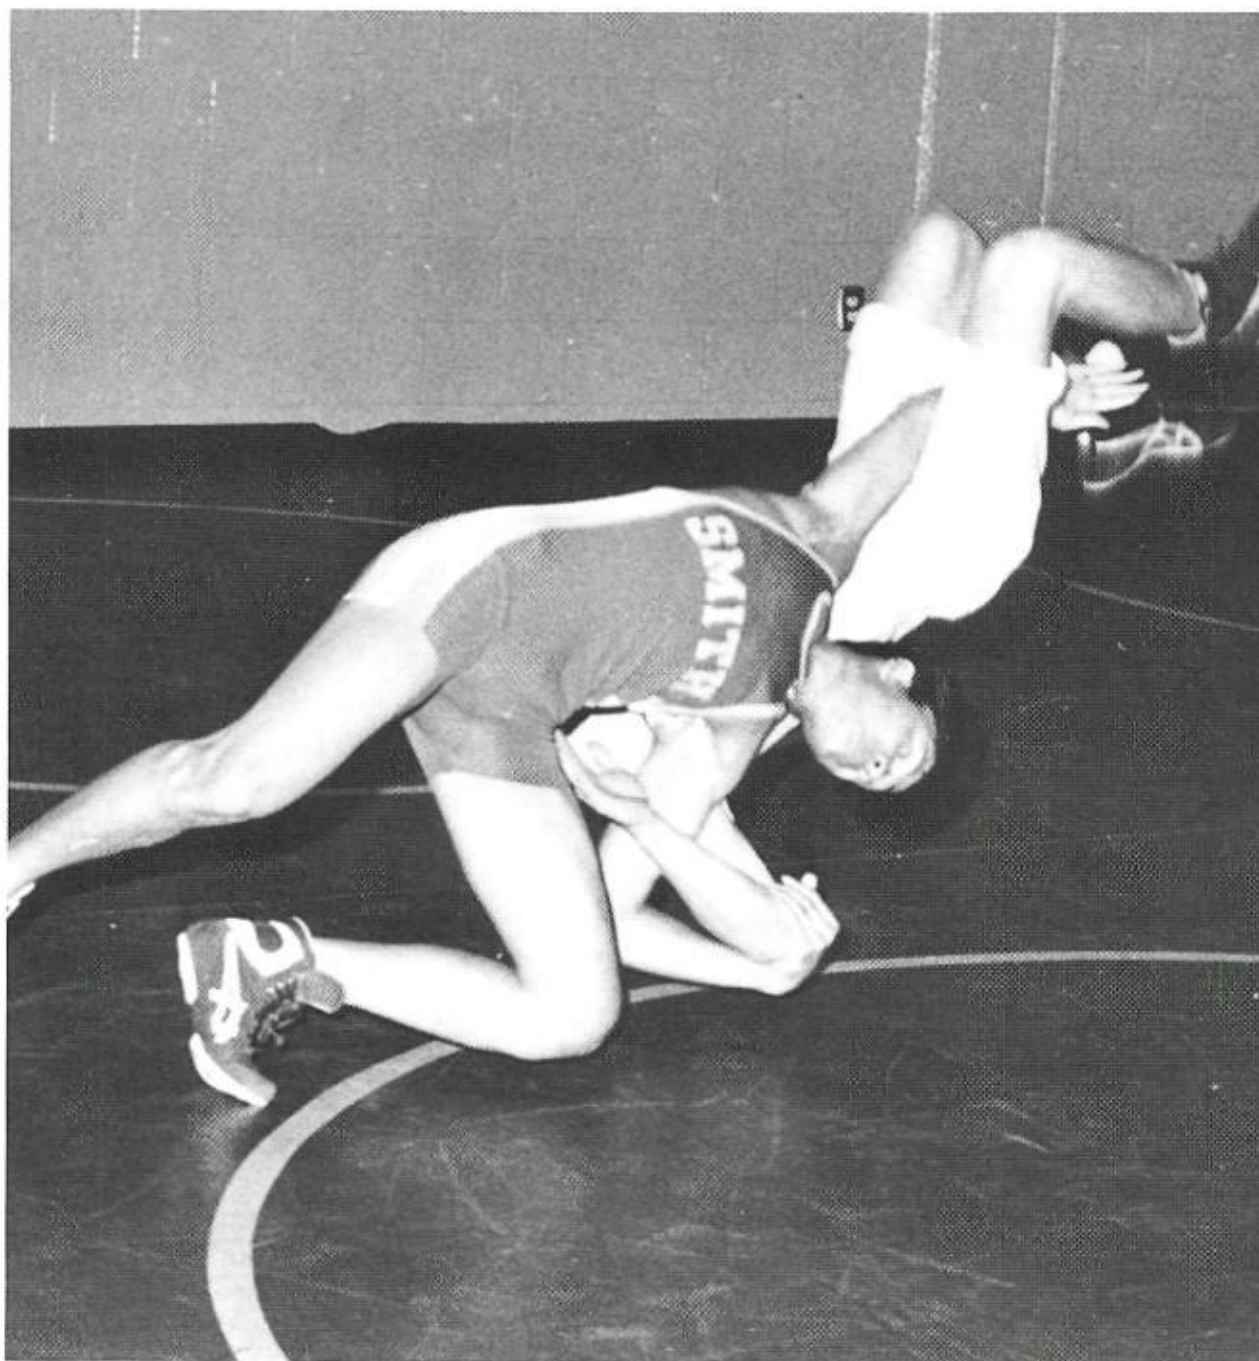

The Reserve also surpassed other J.V. teams in tournaments. They placed first in the Newman Smith Junior Varsity Tournament and the Bishop Lynch Junior Varsity Tournament. Leading them to glory were captains Mark Martin, Bill Moulden, and Paul O'Neil. Their third place in the Newman Smith Varsity Team Tournament gained respect from other varsity teams. Throughout the season, all of the wrestlers enhanced their skills, but Coach David considered Jeremy Staton the Most-Improved Player. Greg Matthews earned the Most-Valuable Player title.

Looking toward the future, the Varsity Reserve shows the potential to continue the new winning tradition set by Varsities before them. The wrestling team will continue to improve, and each will outdo the last until they reach their ultimate goal in the State Tournament.

At the South Oak Cliff meet, the Boys Cross Country team finished in first place, and the Girls Cross Country team placed second. At the District meet, Christine Foley finished fourth individually. Throughout the season, Troy Crowell, Scot Schoonmaker, and Jonathan Clarkson improved on the boys team, and Becky Myers and Christine Foley proved to be outstanding members of the girls team. At Leisure

Whether fleeing for Colorado ski slopes, or the local rec center, go at your leisure

Participating in sporting events is a favorite pastime of many students. Sports such as weightlifting, bowling, skiing, and racquetball rank high in popularity among students although the school does not offer them as organized, competitive sports. The many athletic facilities in the area and the Carrollton Parks and Recreation Department make many of these activities available to students. Some students choose to participate in competitive sports while others choose to participate in recreational sports.

Bowling has recently risen in popularity as a form of entertainment for students. Both athletes and nonathletes can enjoy bowling. Senior Jeremy Lewis explained why he enjoys bowling, "It's a sport that anyone can play and enjoy. Bowling is not as competitive as school sports, and there's not as much pressure to play well. It's a sport you play just for fun."

An opportunity to receive assistance with weightlifting is now available to students. The weightlifting club sponsored by Coach Roger Schlegel allows both athletes and nonathletes to lift weights after school. "We emphasize participation of both athletes and nonathletes. Students have the opportunity to lift weights on their own or to have coaches help them," commented Coach Schlegel. Many students, both male and female, have taken advantage of this program since it began at the beginning of the school year.

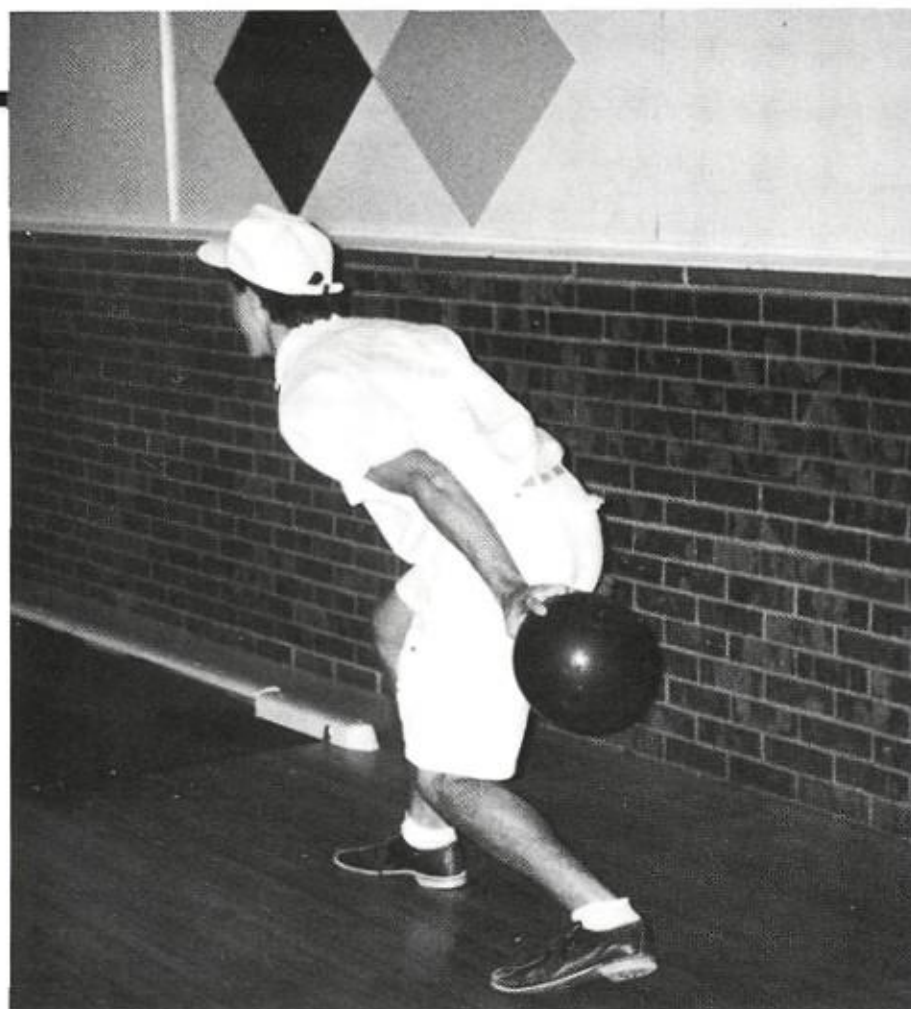

Also, many students have taken advantage of the racquetball facilities at local fitness clubs and the community recreation centers. This sport is played by many students for exercise and entertainment. Senior Helena Quinones explained, "It's an individual sport, and it's competitive. Racquetball involves stamina and many skills. Every time I play, I learn a new skill or technique."

The appeal of snow skiing draws many students to the slopes of Colorado and New Mexico for Christmas vacation and Spring Break. Snow skiing offers excitement that is unequalled by other sports. "I like skiing because it's individual. You can make skiing as challenging as you want it to be. It fits your mood," said Tina Herring, sophomore. This feeling about skiing is shared by the many students who rush to the slopes whenever possible.

Sports outside of school appeal to students for a variety of reasons. The competition attracts some students while the leisure appeals to others. No matter what the reason is for participating in sporting events, students find entertainment and enjoyment in playing. Watching and taking part in sporting events seems to be the trend in entertainment, and with the recent emphasis on fitness, the popularity of sports for recreation can only increase.

Spirit Kickoff

Varsity Girls Soccer team strives to break all spirit barriers being inspired by new found togetherness and organization

Although the Girls Soccer Team did not defeat all of their opponents, they broke the spirit barrier. On game days the girls would bring each other gifts of encouragement and luck. Team members felt Kristy Sauer showed the most spirit towards the team with her uplifting attitude. The determination of the athletes led to their impressive victory against Grapevine, 5-2. The soccer players had the potential and their team work paid off.

The season ended with the record 2-14-1. However, the season won in spirit and support by parents and the student body. Also individual achievements created a reason for recognition. Lisa McLeroy scored the most goals with 9. Lisa Smith led in assists with her impressive throwins. Tami Bloss had an outstanding season, saving over 200 goals. Playing for the first time, Michelle Coday was considered Most-Improved Player. In the coming seasons, the Girls Soccer team hopes to kickoff to more than spirit.

In The Fast Lane

Boys Varsity Soccer team sped past their opponents to an undefeated district season and Bi-District championship

With the record 18-3-3 and an undefeated district season, the Varsity Soccer team advanced in regional finals. They competed against Arlington for the Bi-District title and South Grand Prairie for the Area title. As Regional semi-finalists, the Varsity was upset in close game against El Paso. Participating in the Carrollton/Farmers Branch Tournament, the Varsity won first place in a clean sweep. They placed third in the Duncanville Tournament.

The Varsity Soccer players performed great as a team, with outstanding contributions from individual players. Scoring the most goals was Chris Armalavage with 16. Bryan Thompson had the most assists with 10. Goalkeeper Tucker Herring had 125 saves throughout the season, including 15 shutout games (allowing no goals). Each year the team votes on the team members they feel should be honored for their performance throughout the season. Tom Cochran was voted Most Valuable Player, Chris Armalavage Offensive Player of the Year, and Kevin Smith Defensive Player of the Year.

Looking ahead, eight Varsity players will be returning, four of them are starters. Coach Brian Egan has hopes for their achievements to be as good, if not better, in the coming years. With the improved student body support, the athletes cannot help but have the confidence to go that extra mile "in the fast lane."

The Varsity Tennis team placed second overall in district. In dual matches, the girls had an overall record 6-0, and the boys had the final record 3-3. The girls placed second in district, advancing to regionals. They won their first match in regionals, but in the second they lost in the close match against Roundrock Westwood, 7-5 and 7-6. Coach Chacchia commented, "This was one of the best girls teams I've had at Newman Smith. They were very close to going to state."

Both the boys' and girls' teams did well in team tournaments. In the fall, they placed first in the Burleson Team Tournament and the Irving Invitational. In the spring, the Tennis team participated in the Plano Open, placing eighth out of 37 teams, and in the Bell Tournament they placed fifth out of 40 teams. Money at Stake

Scholarship competition inspires athletes to set high goals and strive to be the best

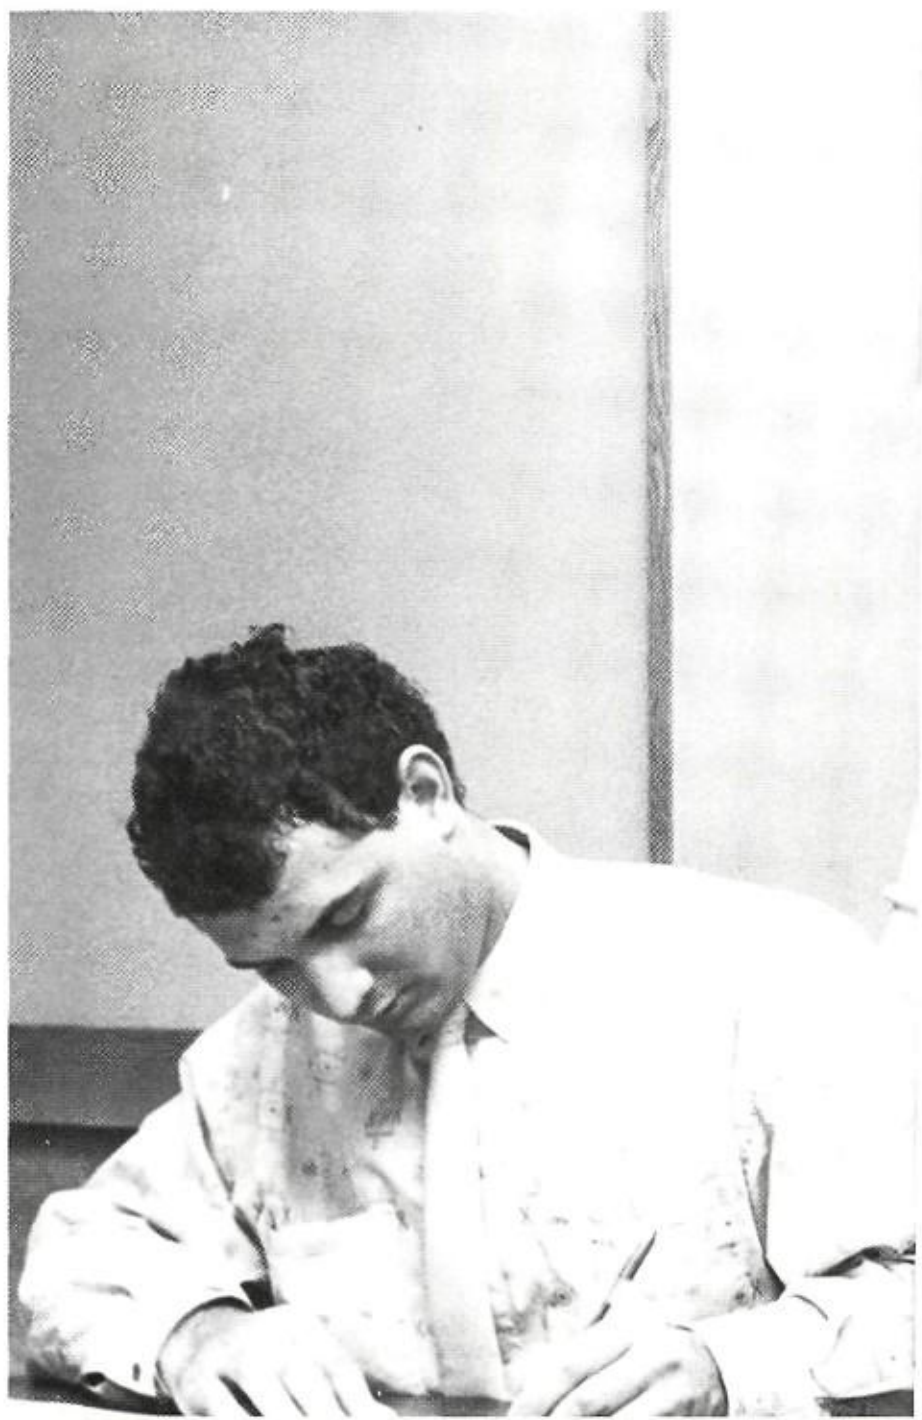

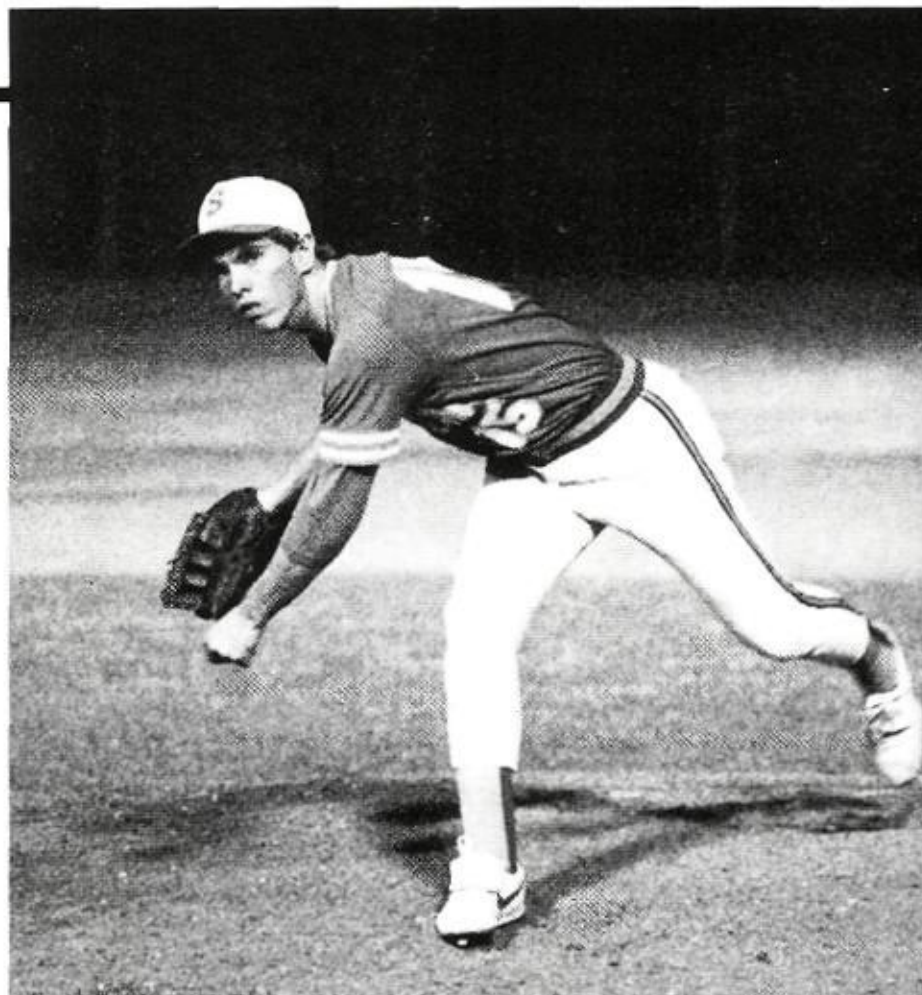

For many years, two reasons have justified the existence of athletics in schools and society. First, it provides for the physical development of young people, and second, it builds character. Sports participation allows the athlete to experience adversity. The highs and lows of sports offer excellent preparation for life's stress. Almost life-long preparation precedes a career in professional sports. For an athlete to prepare himself, he must have self discipline, the desire to excel, dedication, and mental preparation. These things can be hard to come by for some people. A positive mental attitude remains a must for success in athletics. Players must rise above the adversity they may face to be successful in their sport of choice.

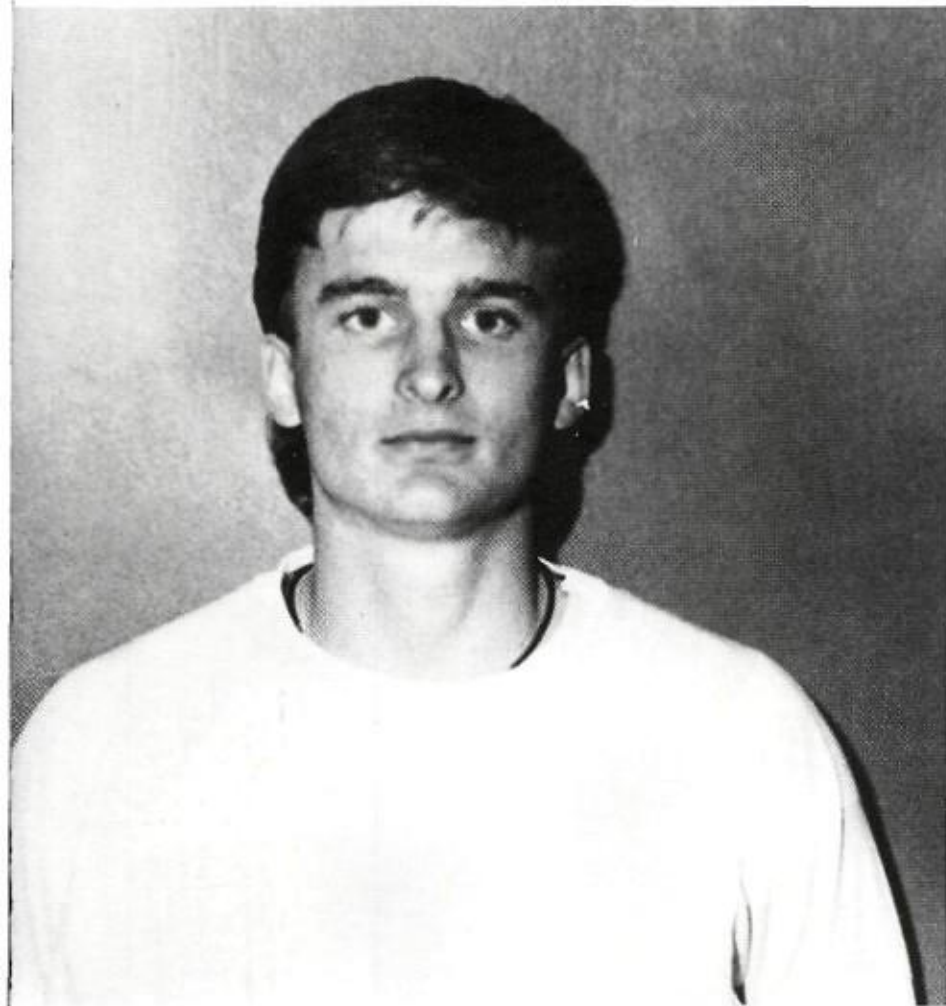

The variety of sports results in varying ways to enter the ranks of professional athletics. Most athletes will begin their sports at lower levels such as little league, Pop Warner, and YMCA, or they will participate in sports at the school they attend. If the athlete is successful enough, especially at the high school level, it may result in a college scholarship or contract offer, if they are in a higher level of sports.

Newman Smith had an outstanding year for Athletic scholarships this year. Soccer player Bryan Thompson and golfer Tony Rigas both received scholarships from Southern Methodist University. Wrestlers Shane Roushar and Mike Manderfield accepted scholarships from Waldorf Junior College in Iowa, and volleyball player Sharyn Noska received a scholarship from Alvin Community College. Troy Crowell, an athlete in cross country and track, commented on college scholarships, "I plan to try to get a scholarship from one of the smaller schools. I have a better chance at receiving a scholarship from a smaller school rather than at a larger school where competition is tough."

If an athlete receives many honors and awards in his sport, it can better his chances of receiving a good scholarship. Even if the athlete is not known for achieving high feats, he can still receive a major scholarship for their high academic achievements. If the athlete does not obtain an athletic scholarship, he can still continue to play on a local team and work to improve his play. Many people in sports today are striving for scholarships because it will help them in college and later on in whatever they plan to do.

Relaying Success

Boys Varsity Track looks toward growth of young team into record-breaking performers for upcoming season

Hard work and dedication led the Boys' Varsity Track team to a prosperous season. The Athletes showing the most devotion were Jonathan Clarkson and John Jackson. Coach Stewart felt Tommy Holland and Troy Crowell improved the most throughout the season.

The Track team competed in many tough meets. The most memorable time occurred when the Varsity placed third in the Duncanville Panther relays beating Berkner by an inch at the tape. The team also placed third in the Burleson Elks relay and the MacArthur Cardinals relays. As a whole, the Varsity placed fifth in District.

Overall, the young track team, composed mostly of sophomores and juniors, had a memorable season. "We had some great performances by our juniors. Many school records will go down in the spring of 89," said Coach Stewart.

Finally, Chris McConnell holds the school record in the long jump and the 100-meter dash.

Coach Mike Stewart noted the Duncanville meet, where the Freshmen won second place, as the most memorable meet. "The Freshmen had a really good team; they really enjoyed track," said Stewart. "J.V. was mostly composed of off-season football players who wanted to run." With good team morale and gifted athletes, the track teams sprinted to victory.

Leaps and Bounds

After a slow beginning, a unified Girls Track team provides woman Smith with State qualifier, Alicia Johnson, runner

The Girls Varsity Track squad pulled together as a team to improve after a slow start at the beginning of the season. Highlights of the season included several outstanding individual performances. Junior Alicia Johnson placed first in the 400- and 800-meter runs at the District track meet to qualify for the Regional meet. She placed first in the 800-meter run at Regionals with a time of 2:14.21 and advanced to the State meet in Austin.

Also qualifying for Regionals were the 400-meter and 1600-meter relay teams. Coach Barbara Edwards noted that the best meet of the season was the Lady Lion Invitational at Ennis. The team placed third in the meet, and Coach Edwards attributed this top performance to team unity and effort. Although not strong in team depth, the impressive showings of individual athletes made the season one to remember.

The JV and Freshman Girls Track teams performed well in meets this season. The Freshman team won three of the four meets they participated in this year. Barbara Edwards coached the JV and Freshman squads and was assisted by Terri Johnson and Stacy Stokes. Many of the Freshman girls track team members competed with the Varsity squad at meets. Coach Edwards commented, "They were highly motivated. This year was a good learning experience for them." At the Colony meet, the freshmen overcame their intimidation and expressed their desire to win. The team showed their best performance at this meet. The JV track team, composed of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, competed in JV meets as well as Varsity meets. Freshman Jennifer Lewter showed the most dedication throughout the season while LaTanya Dunn proved to be outstanding. Both of these athletes competed with the Freshman and Varsity.

The Varsity Baseball team was loaded with many talented players this season. With the outstanding play of everyone on the team, the Trojans battled their way to Newman Smith's third district championship in baseball. The team was coached by Fred Howard, assisted by Tim Liberto, and managed by Trey Carmichael. With the outstanding play of the defense and the excellent pitching staff of Chris Gay and Kyle Duke, the team steam rolled through the regular season and into the playoffs. In the playoffs the team made great strides by winning the B. District and Area championships. Not only did the pitching and defense play great, but the hitting also came around which made for a potent offense. Robert Bernal, Sophomore-of-the-Year last year, led the team in homers. The pitching was the main key to the Trojans' success. Smith was led by the two top pitchers in the Metroplex, Chris Gay and Kyle Duke. Both pitchers had earned run averages below 1.00. Smith received recognition of its outstanding play by being rated number one in the Metroplex and number ten in the state at the end of the season. The Trojans had many valuable and improved players including Chris Gay, Kyle Duke, Robert Bernal, Joel Nelson, Jeff Woodham, Jason Sheppard, Trey Budd, Andy Jayroe, and Mike Lestarge. They also placed four members on the First Team All-District and three on the Second Team All-District. Coach Howard said, "These kids know how to win, and that's what makes us a good ball team." With the Trojans returning a majority of their team, look for them to contend for the district championship again next year.

The JV baseball team had a great year of improvement. The team had a well balanced attack of hitting, pitching, and fielding. The team was coached by Randy Wade and assisted by Tim Liberto. With all these things put together, along with many talented players, the JV ended with a 15 win, 3 loss, and 1 tie record and second place District finish. The team was loaded with improved players including Timmy Brock, Steven Cope, Jeff Conway, Brad Easterling, Davis Maulding, and Anthony Gibson. With the team building a great foundation, there should be many candidates for the varsity team in the future. Newman Smith is building a solid tradition in baseball, beginning with the JV team.

The Varsity Golf teams, coached by Ruth Stovall, had impressive finishes in tournaments in both the fall and spring season. Both teams accomplished the goals they set for district competition. The girls took the District championship for the fifth consecutive year. In addition, the girls' team set a school record of 385 strokes at the second round of district. The boys had a goal of placing in the top three in district, and they achieved this goal by taking second place. The district finishes of both the girls' team and the boys' team allowed them to advance to the Regional tournament. "This was an enjoyable season. Both the girls and the boys improved throughout the season. Both teams and individuals from both teams made great achievements," commented Coach Stovall.

Jay Young showed the most improvement on the boys' team, and Kim Price improved the most on the girls' team. At the Dallas Invitational Tournament, a prestigious tournament for which it is difficult to be invited, the boys' team placed second, and Tony Rigas placed fourth individually. Tony Rigas also received a golf scholarship from Southern Methodist University. At the R.L. Turner Invitational, Sean Cassidy placed second individually, Kim French led the girls' team at the Plano East Tournament and the Sanger Tournament with third place finishes.

With the majority of team members advancing to Regionals, the Trojan Swimming and Diving Team takes the plunge

The Trojan Swimmers and Divers experienced a year of achievement. The majority of the team members advanced to Regional competition at Wilkerson-Greines pool in Ft. Worth. Diver Heather McNeil qualified for the state meet at the University of Texas Swim Center for the second consecutive year, and she placed eleventh in the state. Jonathan Bailey and Janet Welch were chosen Most-Valuable, and Ben Im and Rob Landry were Most-Improved. At the first meet of the season against Lewisville, both the boys' and girls' teams won first place. These victories were especially memorable because the boys' and girls' teams rarely compete in the same week, and both teams won. According to Coach Rob Koplan, team spirit greatly improved this year. "This year was a successful year. Team spirit increased, and I expect a better year next year with returning team members and incoming freshmen," said Coach Koplan.

Enjoyment from extra-curricular activities provides for a well- rounded atmosphere

For many students, high school does not merely consist of studying English, algebra, and chemistry. Extra-curricular activities take a great amount of time for dedicated students who want to enjoy experiences outside of the classroom. Whether preparing for the future in vocations or socializing at a Spanish Club fiesta, the students' participation contributes for a well-rounded atmosphere. Just Stringin'

While playing classical and current melodies, orchestra harmonizes their musical talents

Although many people think of orchestra as the drab black and white world of music, the successful string musicians proved to be anything but boring. The organization developed talent in the field of musical arts with its two annual concerts. Performing for the school and community, orchestra boasted nineteen All-Region Orchestra winners including Rachel Wilson, who was eligible to tape for state. These excellent players performed at MacArthur High School in November. The group members also participated in the U.I.L. Solo/Ensemble contest where many received either superior or excellent ratings.

The group held numerous fund raisers to support their trip to Amarillo for the Greater Southwest Music Festival in April. Working with the parents' booster organization, they held bake sales, garage sales, car washes, and candy sales. After all of this work, the parents honored them with a year-end banquet. This event honored outstanding orchestra students and bid farewell to the outgoing seniors.

Filled with spirit, Trojans reach new heights cleaning the campus and cheering the team

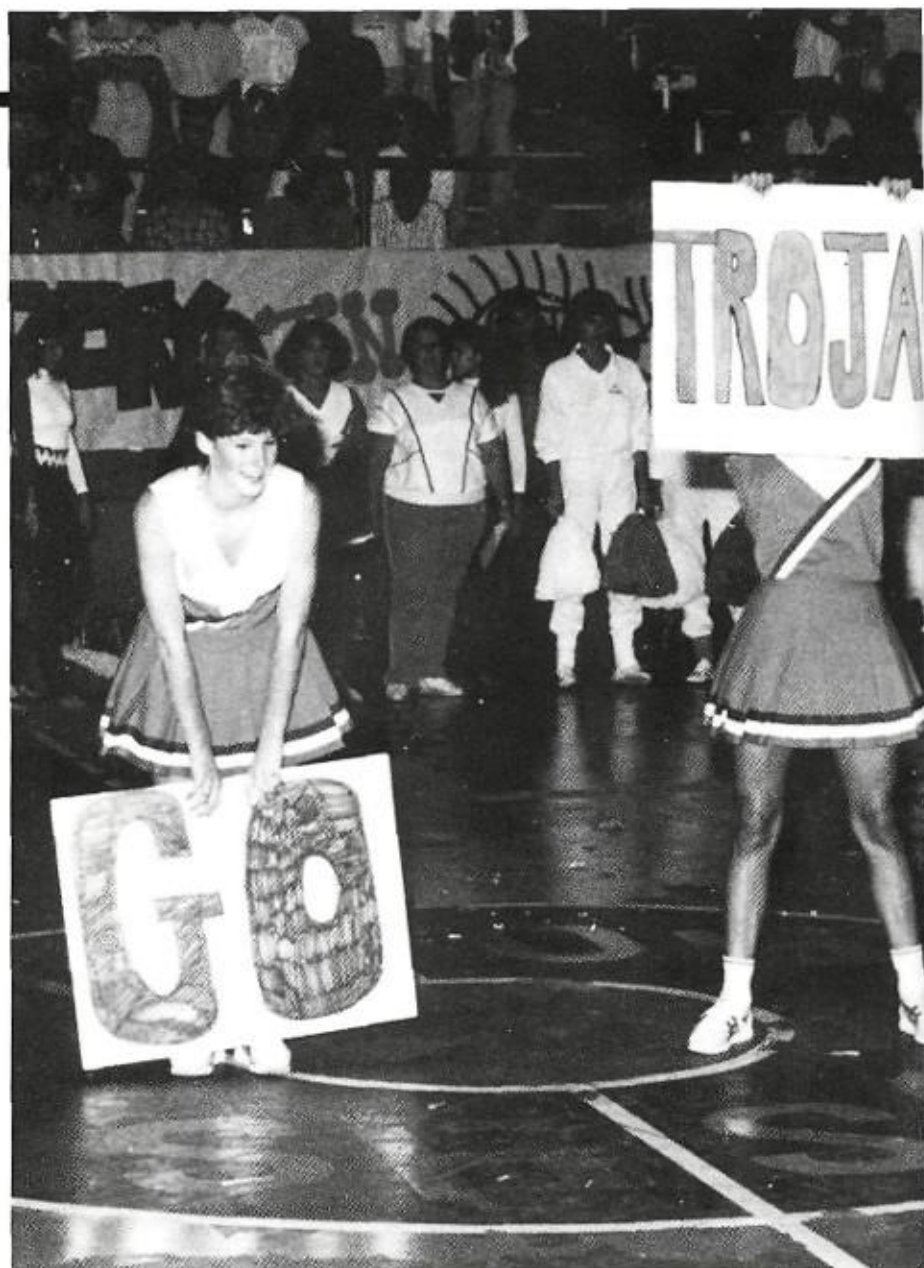

"Green, gold, green, gold, white, white, white, white, white!" screamed the mass of students as the band played and the cheerleaders cheered. The homecoming pep rally, and other pep rallies, proved to be a great success with careful preparation from the cheerleaders, band, twirlers, and Troyanns, and with a new sense of school spirit. As all classes battled for the spirit stick, the gym rang with the sounds of pride and enthusiasm. However, the fervor did not end at pep rallies. Trojan fans packed the bleachers yelling for a touchdown. After the victorious homecoming and Turner games, the fans emptied onto the field to congratulate the team and proudly sing the Alma-mater. Jason Goldwater, senior, said, "I think our school is amazing. With all of the things that could detract from our school spirit, this school is maintaining a high level of school spirit."

School spirit is not reflected only in students' attitudes toward athletics. The pride also encompasses other aspects including other extra-curricular activities such as drama and choir and the school's physical appearance. The Student Council piloted a new project where they hung signs urging students to throw away trash to keep the school clean. This project was an attempt to make the school more appealing and raise the campus pride. Even with this project, spirit is lacking in many areas. Kent Crosby, junior, said, "People only have spirit when athletic teams win. They don't really care about anything else."

School spirit depends on many factors. A winning season, bright colored banners, and an enthusiastic student body all contribute to the pride. Jayshree Krishnan, junior, stated, "School spirit unifies the school and is important to the overall atmosphere." Through the help of different organizations, new heights of school spirit have been reached and will improve as the awareness of the importance of pride increases.

Razzle Dazzle

Marching with the band, the flag corps, twirlers provide exciting visual effects

The flag corps and twirlers added color and dimension to the marching band's performances. They worked with the bands at football games and competitions.

Consisting of thirteen members, the flag corps proved to be anything but unlucky. Led by co-captains Andrea Chapman and Meredith Mathews and junior lieutenant Jill Ferguson, the line competed at U.I.L. marching competition, the Parade of Champions and flags contest in Denton where they received straight ones, the highest rating, from the judges. The group practiced before school everyday during marching season and also at least twice a week after school.

They developed a close friendship and produced enthusiasm and success.

The twirlers, led by feature twirler Heidi Monk, also added pizzazz to the appearance of the marching band. They performed at pep rallies and football games as well as the various marching competitions. They lent their talents and skills to the band to provide a dazzling effect whether they were juggling batons or gracing the field with ribboned batons.

Both group of girls helped the marching band in competition and spirit. Their enthusiasm and willingness to succeed payed off with applause and awards.

Wish On A Star

Troyanns shine in outstanding performances, demonstrating their talent and creativity

Come half-time at a football game, the stands are filled with spectators anticipating Newman Smith's shining stars. The talented Troyanns attract such fans with their ability, attitude, and achievement.

The drill team, determined to succeed, began their season at the SMU Line Camp in June. They took home eighteen Superstar nominees, more than any other school. Liz Gormley was Superstar Girl winner and Chrisi Seiler was the Drill Down winner from over 800 entries. The group was also awarded the Sweepstakes Trophy and the Home Routine Contest. The officers later attended the SMU Officer Camp and received identical honors. Four of seven officers were again Superstar nominees.

A few weeks before school began, the girls started work on routines for marching season. The drill team accompanied the band to perform at every football game and also danced at the pep rallies. While perfecting these routines, the group participated in the Halftime Productions contest. They were named "Best in Contest" with their officers receiving a second place trophy and Cassie Smith and Liz Gormly placing first and second respectively in the solo division.

Ending the marching season, they began preparation for spring competitions. They excelled at the Marching Auxiliaries contest; they gained both Sweepstakes and Supersweepstakes trophies while being named one of the top five teams. In February, the team attended the Miss Texas Drill Team Contest. They received eight group awards and three officers were semifinalists for Miss Texas Drill Team.

After excelling at every contest, the group prepared for the Spring Show. The sell-out performance showcased the outstanding effort put forth by the Troyanns throughout the year.

With all of their work, the team still had time to form friendships. A special bond between the members allowed them to perform better and shine.

Hip Hip Hooray

Three cheers for the green, gold, and the girls who combined old traditions with new ideas

The Varsity Cheerleaders not only upheld past tradition as spirit leaders but improved upon these traditions. The squad received numerous awards, planned and executed all the pep rallies, and provided services for the community.

In order to prepare for the year, the squad attended the S.M.U. cheerleader camp during the summer. They were honored with five blue ribbons, three spirit sticks, and the opportunity to perform in the Award of Excellence presentation. Charla Covey was awarded Best Mascot runner up, and Jennee and JuLee Decker were nominated for All-American Cheerleader.

During the school year, they showed their support for the athletic teams by planning pep rallies, painting large colorful banners, and decorating athletes lockers. They introduced to the student body a new concept in pep rallies; they held flashlight pep rallies in the school parking lot at night before some of the football games. Their support and encouragement did not stop with the football season though. Basketball, soccer, and wrestling also were cheered on at school, and the squad lent its support to all athletic teams at competition.

In order to help not only the school, the squad visited local nursing homes and performed in a competition benefiting the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Whether lending support to athletes or participating in service projects, the Varsity Cheerleading aided in increasing campus spirit and pride. The allegiance to the green and gold greatly increased as proven by the large crowds at pep rallies and athletic games, both home and away. Their combination of old traditions and new ideas will continue to affect the student body for years to come.

Twist and Shout

Cheering for teams and encouraging spirit, JV and Freshmen Cheerleaders jump about

The junior varsity and freshman cheerleaders aided in increasing school spirit throughout the year. Both squads concentrated on supporting the athletes and also succeeded in winning many awards.

The JV squad received many honors at their summer camp. They were awarded five blue ribbons and two spirit sticks. They also were selected to perform in the Award of Excellence pageant, the first time ever for a Trojan JV squad. Also, Gina Schieber was awarded the title of All-American Cheerleader, and she performed at the Aloha Bowl over Spring Break.

The freshmen cheerleaders enjoyed a successful year. While attending summer camp at SMU, the girls received five blue ribbons and two spirit sticks. The squad also qualified for Nationals at Regional competition. The freshman cheerleaders kept busy through the year by attending freshman sporting events and cheering at pep rallies.

Future Stars

While boosting school spirit and pride, pep squad perfects skill and leadership

With two goals in mind, the pre-cheer/pre-drill team, known as the pep squad, completed a successful year. They promoted school spirit and pride while supporting athletic teams and prepared themselves for possible futures in cheerleading and drill team.

Under the direction of Mrs. Ribble and Mrs. Willis, the squad began the year by learning hand routines and cheers. Led by their captains and officers, the girls helped boost spirit at pep rallies and football games. To lift pride even higher, they released 1,000 green and gold balloons at the Trojan vs. Lion football game.

In addition to the games, the squad marched in the Carrollton Country Fair Parade, and received first place honors for the marching unit division.

After football season the group concentrated on learning the fundamentals of jazz, cheerleading and drill team. They also continued athletic support at various home basketball games encouraging the Trojans to an almost perfect home record.

During the spring, many of the members prepared for tryouts for places on the junior varsity cheerleading squad or the drill team. Their experience from pep squad aided them in all areas of competition including skill, delivery, and spirit. Whether cheering from the stands or dancing in class, the pre-cheer/pre-drill team radiated spirit, support, and enthusiasm for the Trojans.

Theatre Arts excels in all that is undertaken from stage productions to numerous contests

They appear on stage; they practice in the halls. They stand out in a crowd; they are the Theatre Arts students, and they all seem to have that "special something" that makes them stand out.

This year, the Theatre Arts Department excelled at everything they touched; from competitions to Spring Show, from One Act to Peter Pan, these thespians proved to be a very talented group of people. Under the direction of Mildred Peveto and Patricia Mills, the competitive squad won sweepstakes at many tournaments and qualified students in over twenty events at the Texas Forensics Association state meet. The squad was honored by the National Forensic League as a top district out of 2,000 competing districts. Students staged four productions: The Canterville Ghost, Peter Pan, A Midsummer's Night Dream, and Up the Down Staircase. Overall, the year was a success for the hardworking Theatre Arts Department.

Speak Up

While excelling at tournaments on all levels, Speech and Debate keep up on current events

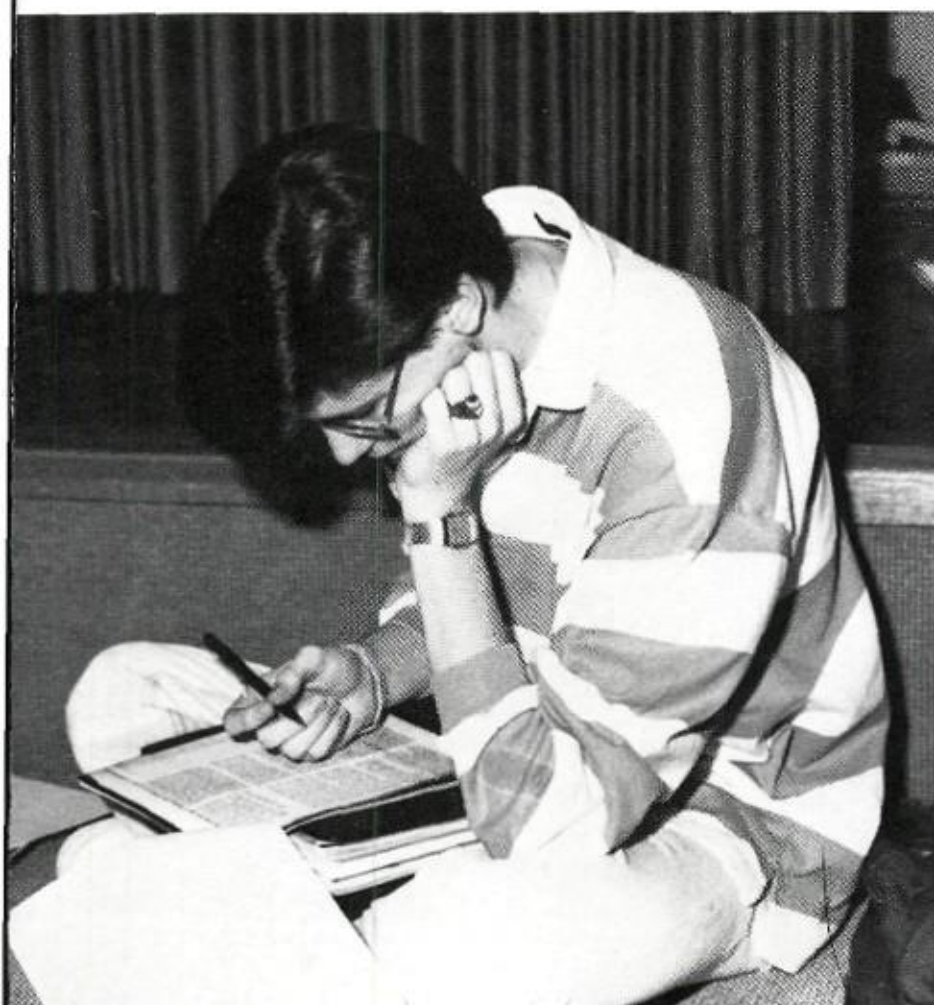

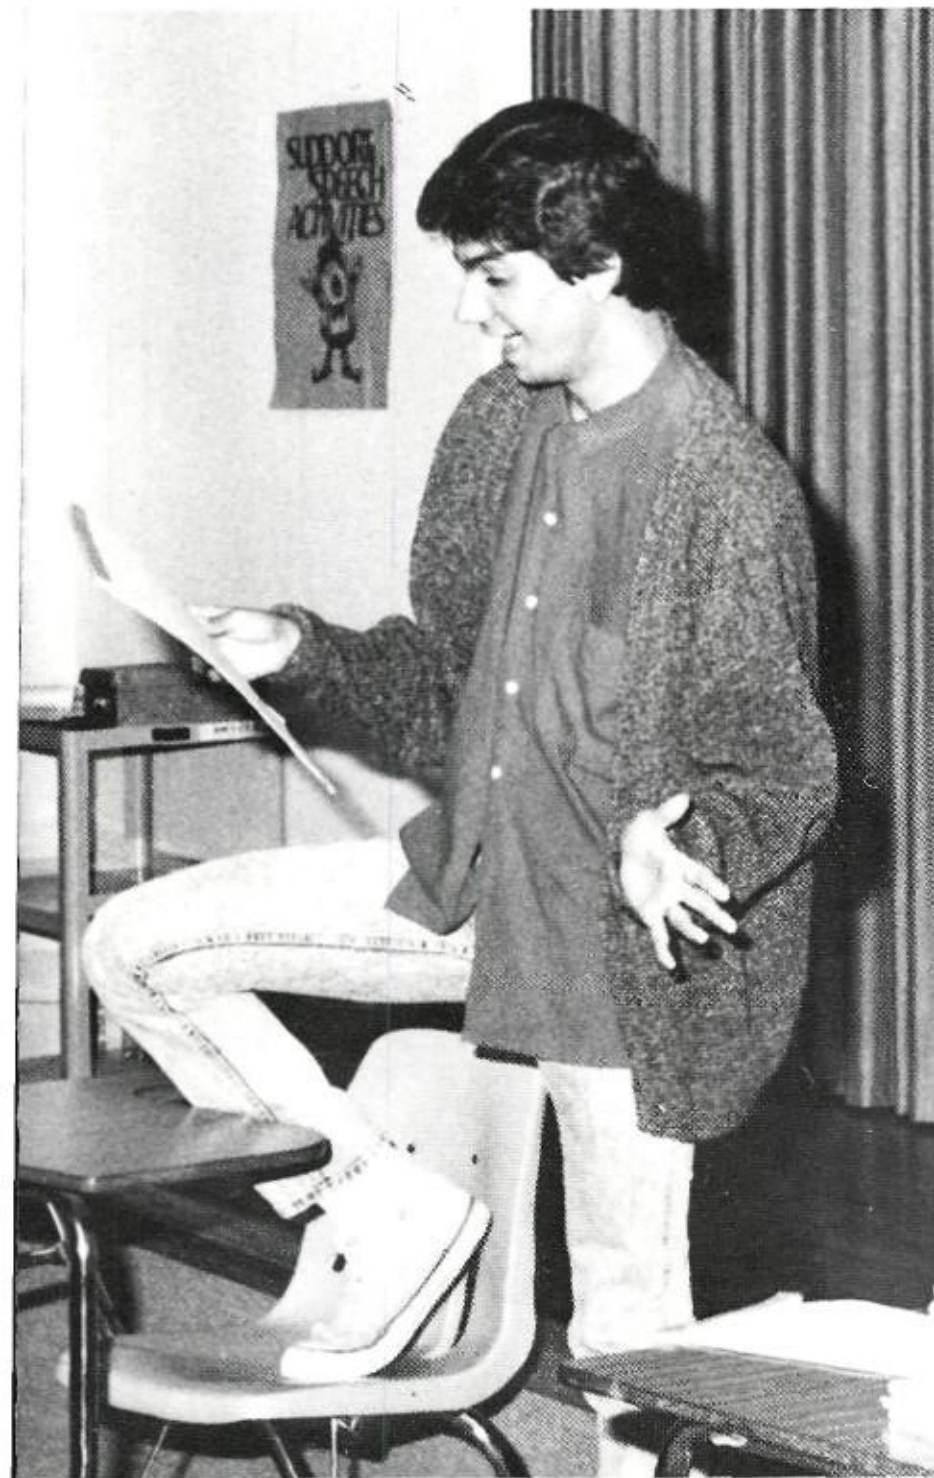

The Newman Smith debate squad worked hard over the year and as a result had one of the most successful seasons ever. They qualified more students for the State Tournament than ever before and competed on both a state-wide and local scale. In the Cross Examination Debate, Senior Jenny Wicks and Kevin Moore swept local tournaments and placed in highly competitive state tournaments. Qualifying for the Texas Forensic Association State Tournament were Jason Goldwater, Steven Shiflett, Tom Moon, Jenny Wicks, Kevin Moore, Shane Wilson, Hirtzan Acosta, Shalini Ramantathan, and Bonnie Ward. The team of Jenny Wicks and Kevin Moore returned to defend the State Title they won last year in the U.I.L. State Competition. Both Steven Shiflett and Shane Wilson, along with fellow senior Jason Goldwater placed in both Domestic and Foreign Extemporaneous Speaking. In Domestic Extemporaneous Speaking, Jason Goldwater placed second and Shane Wilson placed fifth out of seventy-four extempers. In the Foreign Extemporaneous Speaking, Steven Shiflett placed within the top twenty out of over sixty-four speakers. Steven Shiflett and Jason Goldwater qualified for the National Forensic League National Tournament held in Nashville, Tennessee. Under the guidance of Aaron Timmons, the Debate Squad had a competitive and fulfilling year. They look forward to another year of enjoyable and successful competition. Although the seniors will be missed, the incoming freshmen and new members will continue the success.

Good Show

While knocking on wood and picking up pennies, drama produces a great season

While most people have a good luck charm or two, few groups compare to the superstitious theatre arts squad members. Their methods of getting rid of bad luck range from knocking on wood to toting a tattered teddy bear. Whatever the means, the department proved to be lucky with its successful productions and sweepstakes awards.

One of the most prominent charms is the use of the phrase "good show." Dwayne McDonald, sophomore, said, "One superstition is not saying 'good luck' but 'good show' because it makes you think that you're better than you are." The actors say "good show" before every performance, and the phrase has become a trademark of the department.

The squad's stuffed mascot, Christopher, has traveled with the group for thirteen years and symbolizes good fortune. Sporting the theatre arts tee-shirt and cap, Christopher, the teddy bear, has kept the dramatic spirit alive for the department's members.

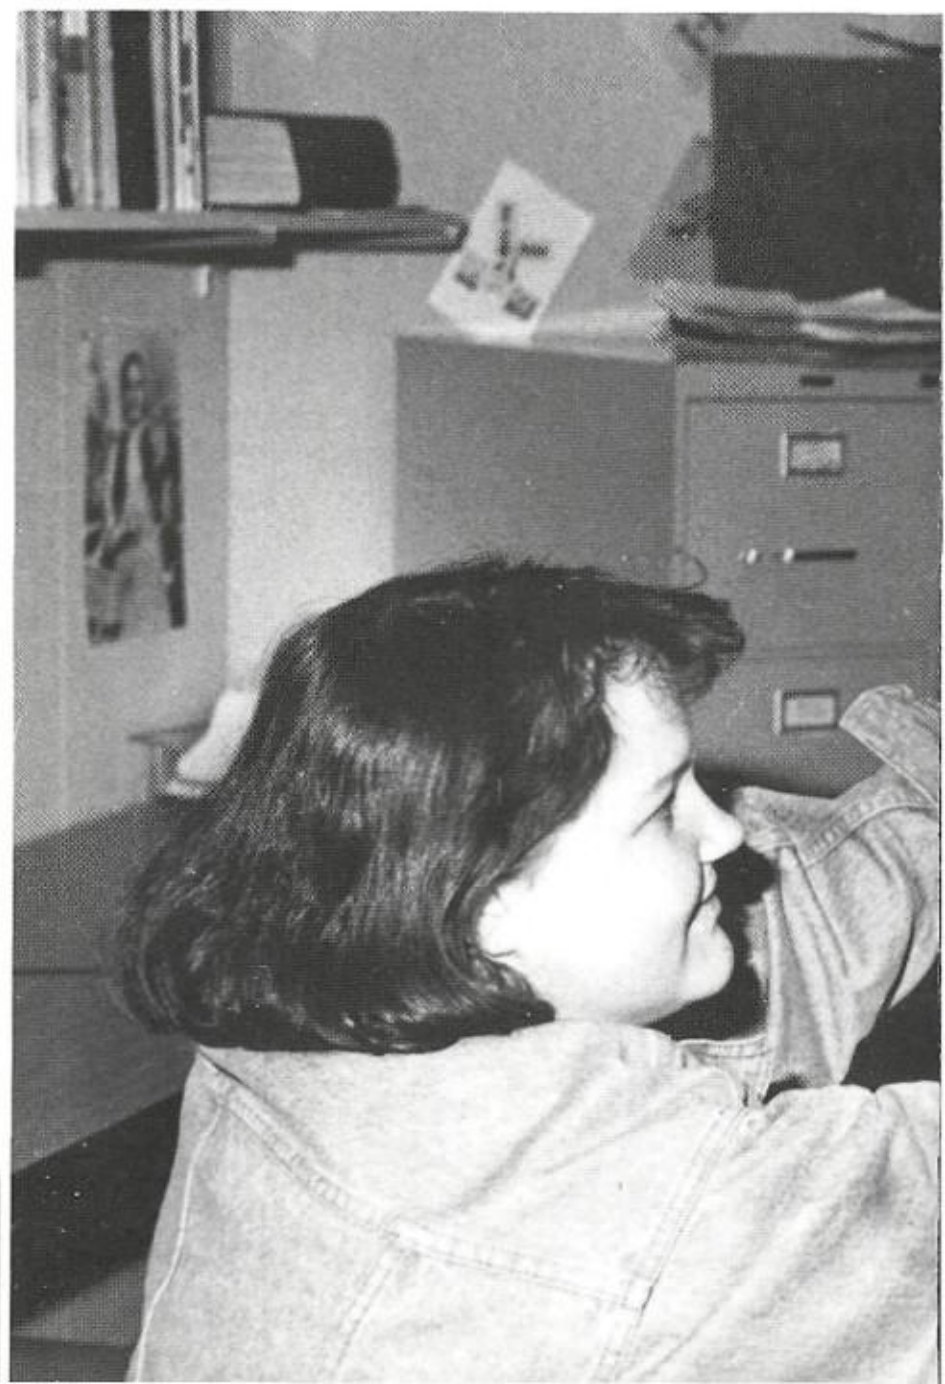

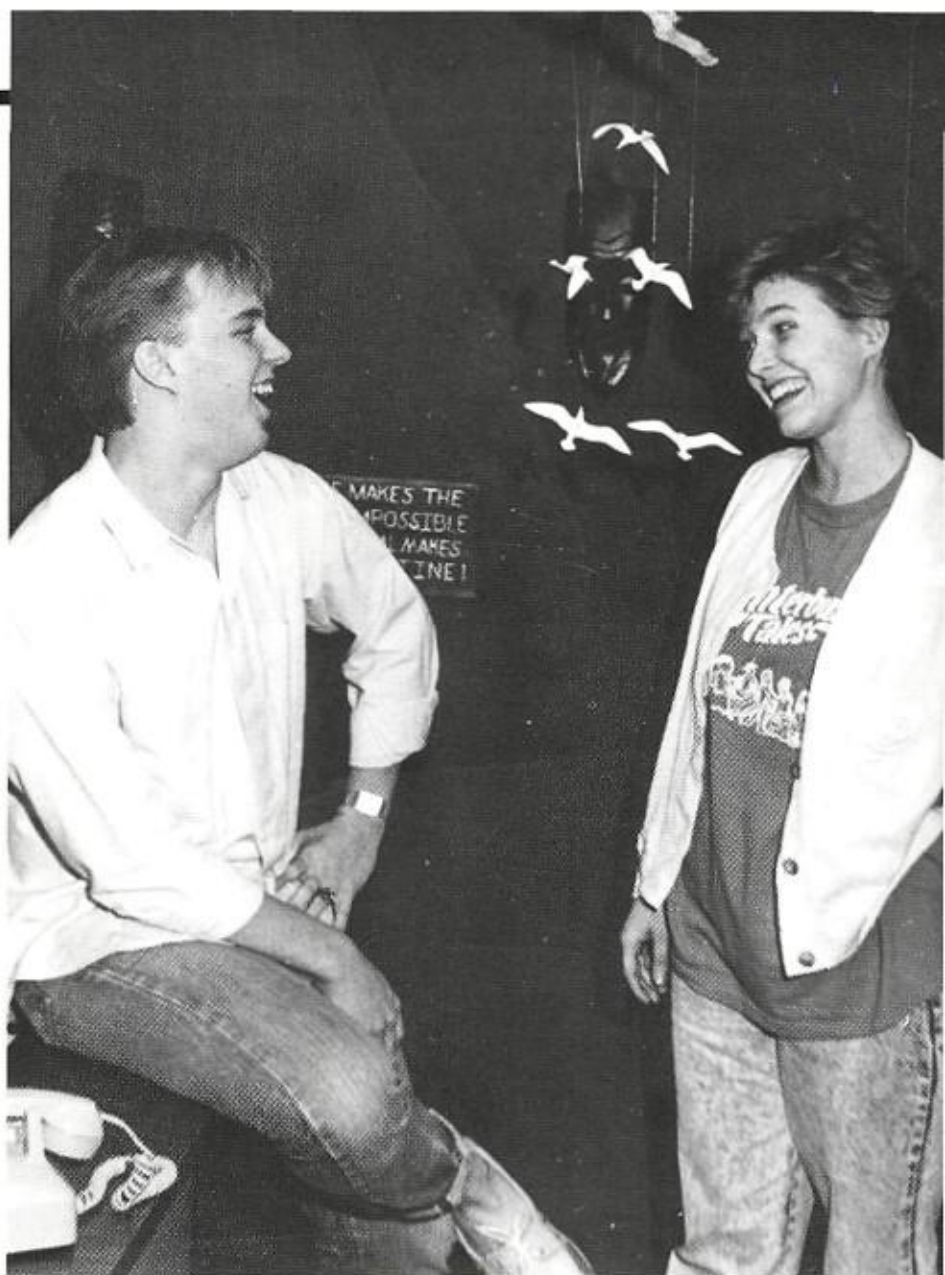

The technicians use a hammer to frighten away any harmful spirits. "The head tech knocks three times with a hammer because it is supposed to scare away evil spirits," said Jeff Hoffman, sophomore. Other spirit scaring techniques include knocking on wood and touching a sweepstakes trophy.

Also, on the opening night of each show, each performer receives a penny. Sophomore Alan McDonald remarked, "The lead in the show gives everyone a penny to put in their right shoe, heads up." This good luck method, combined with talent and hard work, definitely payed off with their excellent theatrical productions.

In addition to the productions, the squad succeeded at every contest and brought home sweepstakes honors in all competitive tournaments. To strengthen their performances, the squad enters through the same door because they do not want to separate the unification of the group.

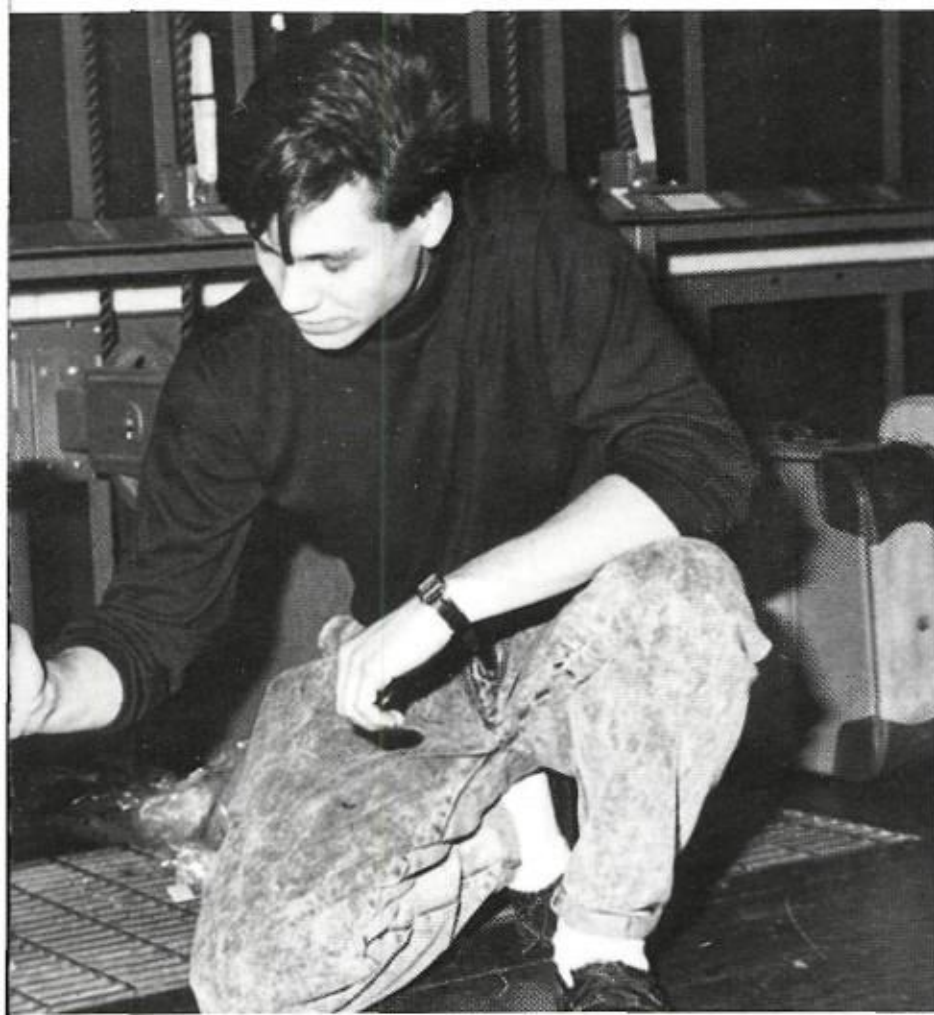

With their many superstition and good luck charms, the Theatre Arts Department proves themselves lucky and worthy of applause.

To showcase the musical, dancing, and acting talents of the choir, the group entertained the school and community with 42nd Street. The show featured tap dancing and fast music. The crowded theater each night rang with applause for the outstanding cast.

During the spring, the students competed in the U.I.L. Solo and Ensemble Contest where five individuals and the Ensemble qualified for state competition. Also, the choirs presented "1987-88 Choir: A Show Stopper" that featured a salute to George Gershwin, a farewell to seniors, and the "One Voice" closing.

Throughout the year, the Ensemble also performed at over 60 shows for conventions, radio stations, and area schools.

The Choral Department stayed busy with a musical, three concerts, and competitions ranging from the district to the state level.

The Fall Concert, featuring all the three choir groups, Women's and A Cappella Choirs and the Vocal Ensemble, showcased patriotic songs which were also performed at the Horatio Alger Assembly. Also during autumn, ten singers were selected for the prestigious All-Region choir.

The group then performed at the Holiday Assembly with the orchestra, band, and Drama Department. They gave the student body a sneak preview of their Christmas Show "A Gift for You" which included a faculty ensemble.

Picnics, games, festival provide opportunities to study French culture and learn the language

The French Club provided its members with more than just a knowledge of the French language but also with an understanding of French culture and pastimes. They began the year with an outside picnic where games were played and members had the opportunity to meet one another. Later in the year, the club sponsored a French film festival where they showed foreign films. At Christmas, a progressive dinner was held. After the dinner, the members went caroling, singing popular Christmas songs by candlelight.

The club had an especially busy spring. First, they visited La Madeleine, a French bakery. There, members sampled pastries and saw an authentic French bakery in action. The club ended the year with a banquet which gave members an opportunity to reminisce about the wonderful times they had in French Club and look to the future with the announcement of the new officers.

Spanish Club and Honor Society contribute to community while seeking Hispanic culture

Many students participated in Spanish classes. Some of those students chose to further their appreciation of the Spanish language by joining the Spanish Club, sponsored by Mrs. Carol Stacy.

In September, the members met in the cafeteria where they played Twister, Trivial Pursuit, and Monopoly in Spanish. At the October meeting, the club sponsored a scavenger hunt asking for items such as hubcaps, the names of ten U2 songs, and Robert O'Donnell's socks.

They also adopted a Hispanic family in Carrollton. Members donated toys, clothes, and food, and at the December meeting the gifts were wrapped. Two days before Christmas, officers delivered the gifts to the family of six. Later in the school year, the group worked with the Spanish classes to raise over three-hundred dollars to pay for their rent and electricity.

A post-holiday/pre-final party was given in the home of Tanya Ferencak in January where everyone ate quesadillas and attempted to break the pinata.

In March, the club hosted a group of folk singers from Spain with the help of the Spanish Honor Society. The school and community was invited to this performance.

In April, the banquet was held at Cantino Laredo's Restaurant, and officer elections were held.

In its first full year, the National Spanish Honor Society succeeded in raising money for the needy family, hosting the folk singers, and inducting new members to the chapter. The Spanish Honor Society recognized Spanish students who have maintained a 93 or better average after at least three semesters in Spanish. In the spring, the group inducted the new members and announced the officers for the 1988-1989 school year.

German Clubers create special moments at parties, social events, and competitions

The German Club had a prosperous year. They started the year selling advent calendars during the Christmas season. These popular items were quick sellers. Also, during the Christmas season they held a progressive dinner. This helped the club members become better acquainted with one another. An accordion player visited the club during one of their meetings. This gave students the chance to experience a taste of German culture. Towards the end of the year, German wrestlers visited the club. The club took the wrestlers to a German restaurant and showed them around Dallas. This was a pleasant experience for both club members and wrestlers alike. Club members could satisfy their hunger for European delicacies throughout their numerous visits to German restaurants and delis. All together, the Club experienced fun times together and made the year successful.

The German Honor Society got its start on a smashing year. The Honor Society members sold authentic German gummi bears. It was a successful sale with a sellout during the first week. The one-act play they performed at Austin College Foreign Language Weekend won first place. They held the new member induction at Gail Beckley's house. After induction, they had a banquet/picnic on Mother's Day which was held at a local park. Despite being new this growing group has put together a profitable and exciting year.

Making History

While attending museums, plays, and exhibits, History Club experiences the past first hand

The History Club succeeded in providing its members with enjoyable and educational outings. Led by sponsors Ms. Butler and Mr. Fracchia, the group concentrated on broadening their knowledge of the past.

After the election of officers, the club held a get-acquainted party for all members. Later, the group traveled to the Jewish Community Center to see the Holocaust Museum in Dallas. They were guided by a survivor of the Holocaust, Mike Jacobs. During the winter, the club attended a performance of The Crucible at Brookhaven Community College. The play examined the 18th century Puritan era in America and featured witches and a trial. In March, the group went to the Dallas Museum of Art to view the Frank Lloyd Wright exhibit which showcased the fine architectural talents of the great designer.

The group worked together to gain first hand experience of history outside of the classroom. Through their many excursions, the club truly received excellent lessons.

VICA students draw circles around others to bring home state, district meet winners

The art of drafting requires more than just the ability to draw circles and squares. Under the leadership of President Paul Frank and Sponsor Dave Rotko, the drafting chapter of VICA participated successfully at competition. The district contest held in Waco during February brought home winners including Sean Ryan, Scott Thompson, Paul Frank, and Chris Remalia. At state competition, the winners were Paul Frank, Scott Thompson, and Sean Ryan. These competitions were based on engineering and architectural drawings entered by members. The training VICA members received from the class helped to prepare them for the future.

A Sober Look

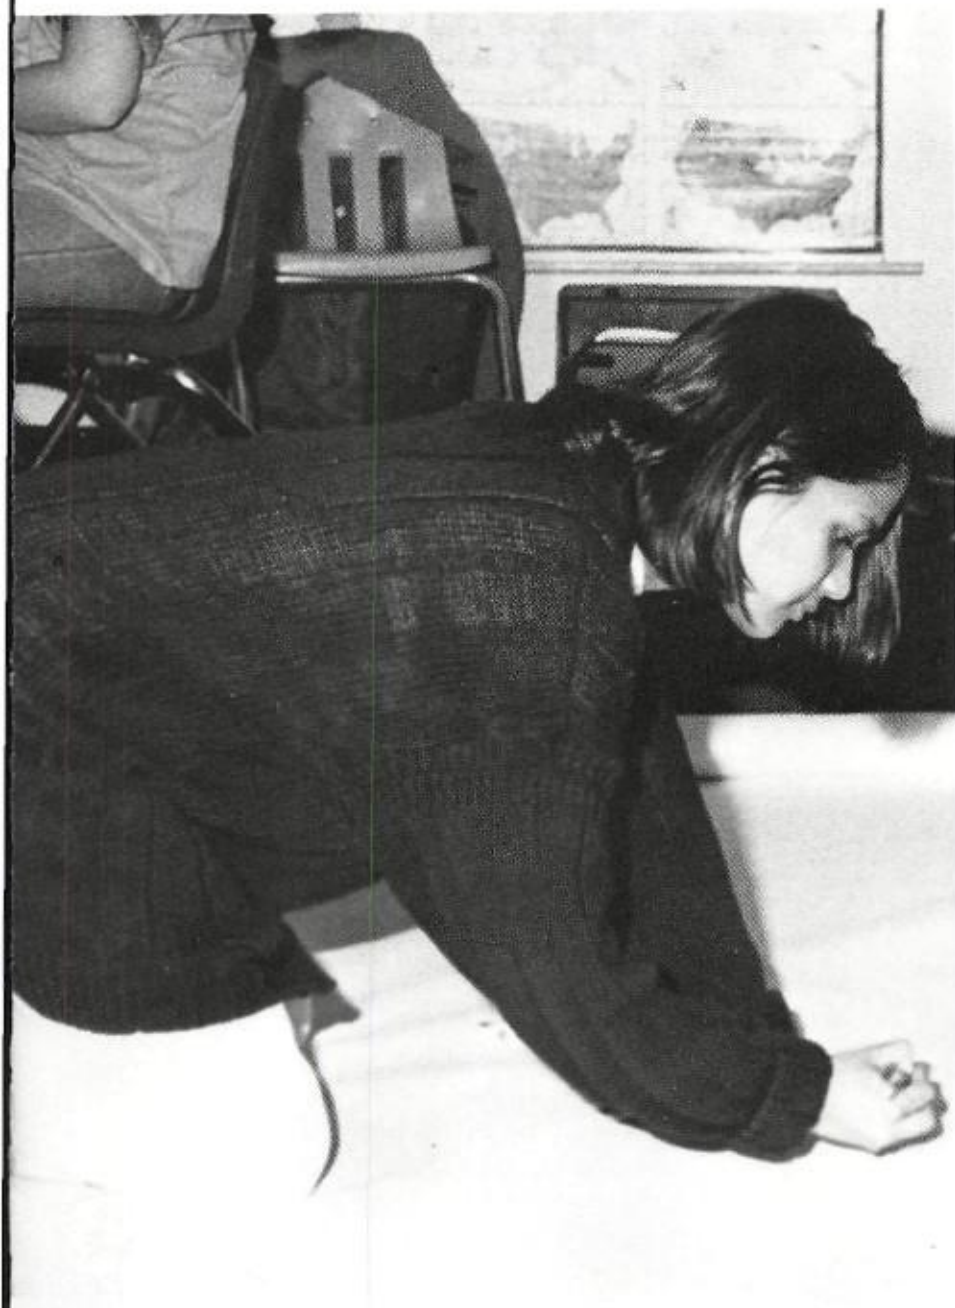

With eye-catching projects, SADD increases student awareness of drunk driving problems

The Students Against Drunk Driving worked to increase the awareness of the dangers of driving while intoxicated. Participating in projects such as teenage communication, Project Graduation, SADD Awareness Week, and Safe Ride helped the club in seeking new solutions to the national problem. During SADD Awareness Week, the members used the library windows to display posters urging students to seek an alternative to driving drunk, such as seeking a sober driver. During the Christmas season, they braved the cold weather to tie red ribbons on the cars belonging to the students and faculty to serve as a reminder to stay off the roads or use a sober driver. Other reminders included balloons for Spring Break and ice cream floats for pre-prom. To fight against drunk driving, SADD spent a great deal of time educating the student body and asking them to think of themselves and others before driving after drinking alcohol.

Making Plans

Club members prepare for the real world by taking part in school organizations

People get involved in clubs for many different reasons. Some join for the social events, while others participate for the aesthetic value on their college application. Also, many participate because they feel that their involvement will give them a head start on their futures.

Organizations such as Future Teachers of America and vocational clubs prepare students for the employment they will seek after graduation. They also help students decide if their possible career choices are properly suited for them.

"I feel that being in F.T.A. has given me more of a perspective of what a teacher really does," states Karen Jackson, junior. "Doing activities like helping teachers' grade papers has shown me how much time this job really takes and made me take a second look at education and ask myself 'Is this what I really want to do?'"

Through the Technical Internship Program (TIP), students like Marni Kerner, senior have the opportunity to work in a real office environment. "This year I've been involved in TIP which is basically just an internship," says Marni. "During the week I go downtown to work, and this has shown me how much fun working can be and also how expensive working downtown can be." She went on to add that in the future before she considers a job, she will look at factors such as traveling and parking conditions as well as working conditions.

Clubs aimed towards community service such as the Key Club and SPARK, prepare students to benefit society both in the present and the future through activities such as canned food drives and nursing home visits.

"I really enjoy being in the Key Club," says Swati Modi, junior. "Working with people at the nursing home and doing community service makes me feel good about myself because I am helping others."

Honor societies such as the National Honor Society, Spanish Honor Society, German Honor Society, and Mu Alpha Theta teach students the necessity of not only excelling academically but also the importance of possessing strong leadership skills. In order to be admitted to one of these organizations, students must meet certain criteria some of which include not only academic requirements but also community involvement.

Many students shape their futures around experiences they have in high school. Clubs and organizations prove themselves to be more than just fun but practical, also. One can gain insight into certain fields of employment and service as well as into practical skills outside or the classroom.

Helping Hands

FHA works with the community and school to learn about homemaking and careers

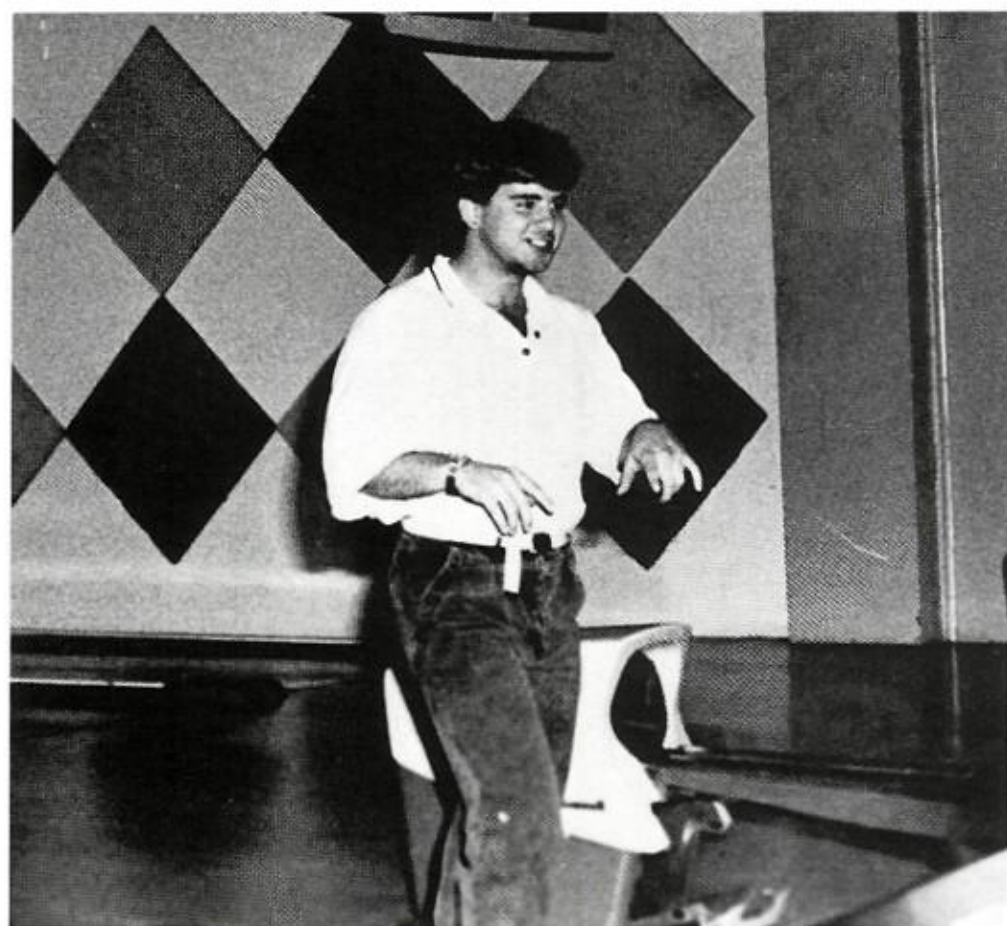

Future Homemakers of America not only prepared students to have successful home lives but also taught members about overcoming problems in society. One of the largest projects the group sponsored was the Great American Smokeout where for one day individuals, with the support of their peers, gave up smoking. Other FHA activities included a visit to the March of Dimes Haunted House, a Christmas progressive dinner, a bowling party, and a trip to the FHA convention in Fort Worth.

FHA had the honor of their chapter president, Derisa Duncan, being elected as a state officer. There were only twelve officers to represent the entire state.

While participating in contests and projects, FTA'ers prepare for educational careers

The Future Teachers of America (FTA) led an active year with its many projects and achievements. Before school began, the officers met and discussed plans for the year. They first painted a banner welcoming teachers back to school. They then re-introduced the "Help the Teacher" program where teachers were provided an aide for one afternoon every two weeks. This program continued throughout the year.

The chapter hosted the District Ten Leadership Conference and the District Convention in the fall with members Tyra Crumb, District Ten President, and Karen Jackson, District Corresponding Secretary, leading workshops where North Texas FTA'ers met to gain leadership skills and understand the teaching profession. At the Convention, the club was awarded "Most Outstanding Chapter" with individual awards for Hong Noe, Chris Reynolds, Janaki Ramanathan, and Jayshree Krishnan. Also, Swati Modi was elected District Ten Financial Secretary.

The group also held three socials throughout the year, including the Halloween and Christmas parties and the annual spring banquet. In February, nine members and Mr. Dewar attended the State Convention in Dallas. They attended workshops and met FTA members from throughout the state. The most outstanding moment was when Jayshree Krishnan won first place in the state Miss FTA speech contest.

In April, the group hosted a program in which Dr. Williamson, a UNT professor, addressed the members on education of future teachers.

The FTA chapter, successful in their endeavors, ended the year with officer elections and aspirations for a great future.

Above Average

NHS's efforts in the community and school provide aid in academics, area social services

The National Honor Society recognized outstanding students who excel in academics, character, and leadership. Eligibility for acceptance required a 93 overall average followed by an application listing activities and volunteer work. The members then worked together to contribute to the school and community.

In the fall, the members participated in the canned food scavenger hunt for the needy. Every team enjoyed competing for first place and collecting hundreds of cans for the less fortunate. During the holiday season, the society donated clothes and food to the Metrocrest Service Center and delivered Christmas candies to a nursing home.

In April, the group continued their service by participating in the March of Dimes Walk-a-Thon at White Rock Lake. Members solicited pledges and walked around the lake to raise funds for the organization battling birth defects.

In addition to these projects, the NHS benefitted their own classmates. Every member spent at least one hour tutoring students in any troublesome course. This project continued throughout the year.

To celebrate the outstanding year, the NHS members attended the May banquet where the new officers were inducted and plans were discussed for improving the society for an even more productive year.

Math Counts

Mu Alpha Theta and Math Club prove that, in the end, everything adds up

This was the initial year of Mu Alpha Theta, the national math honor society. Only students in Algebra II or higher level math courses with an 85 average in honors or a 93 average in regulars were considered for membership. For acceptance, each student had to receive teacher approval of his conduct. Ninety-five members accepted the challenge which Mu Alpha Theta presented at a traditional induction held in the spring.

Mu Alpha Theta was dedicated to serving the school in math related areas. Society members were required to give a minimum of two hours of service a month. Members could either participate in a math competition or serve in the math lab. The math lab was held before and after school and was open to anyone needing help in math.

In the future, Mu Alpha Theta hopes to sponsor a junior high math competition as a fund raiser. They also hope to induct more members next year and be a valuable asset to Newman Smith.

The Math Club excelled in all its competitions throughout the year. At the University of Dallas competition, the club garnered first place sweepstakes. At the Berkner and Wylie competitions, they received second place sweepstakes. The top individual winners included Brad Wilson, Tapash Palit, Chinh Nguyen, Ross Evans, and Billy Grady.

Olympics of the Mind uses incentiviveness to sweep district and advance to regionals

The two Olympics of the Mind (OM) teams advanced to regional competitions after hard work and practice. The Eraser Heads, 1986 State Champions, returned to competition with their balsa wood structure. After practicing an average of ten hours a week, they won first place at the district competition and received fifth place at regionals. They entered their bridge and participated in the problem solving program. This team had worked together for four years. The other team, the K-Mart Club, received sixth place at regionals after winning first at district in their division. In their second year together, this team showed great promise.

Whiz Quiz beats the buzzer to answer questions from geometry to geography

The Whiz Quiz team exhibited its knowledge and ability to successfully compete in its many victorious meets. They practiced after school for the competitions every Monday. They covered areas such as government, history, geography, current events, and science. Changing mere trivia knowledge to right answers, the team defeated many area schools such as Greenhill, the Episcopal School of Dallas, and the TAG Magnet School in matched play. Their matches continued through semi-finals in March.

Back to State

Academic Decathlon triumphs at Regionals and returns to State with a winning attitude

The Academic Decathlon team successfully represented the school at both the regional competition and the state meet. Just like athletes, the team practiced daily for competition. They met fourth period and after school to study, write, perform speeches, and to work together as a team. They prepared for the ten separate events including literature, math, physics, the French Revolution, the history of flight, and an interview. They attended the regional competition where they earned the second place honor and the opportunity to compete at the state level. All competing members received at least one medal at the regionals.

Returning to the state tournament the second year in a row was a great accomplishment. To add to this feat, Jimmy Boyd received a gold medal in the math competition. Through their knowledge and perseverance, the Academic Decathlon team brought outstanding recognition to themselves and to the school.

Welcome Wagon

Student Council greets new students and serves the school and community

The Student Council worked together to provide a better school atmosphere and serve the community. First, they introduced a project to welcome new students to Smith. The students were invited to the bi-weekly Newcomer's meeting where members provided conversation and refreshments. Also, new students were given a "buddy," or council member, to acquaint them with the lifestyle of the student body.

The Student Council also sponsored various programs to help the community. In December, they solicited clothing from the school for the needy. In April, they conducted the annual blood drive in connection with the Wadley Blood Bank. Over 200 pints of blood from students and faculty members were donated in one day.

The Council regulated various elections throughout the year. They ran the Homecoming court elections and also monitored elections for class officers in the spring. In April they held their own election for 1988-1989 officers.

The group also attended the District III Convention for Texas Student Councils. There they were elected the president school of the District and will host the 1989 convention.

Key To Success

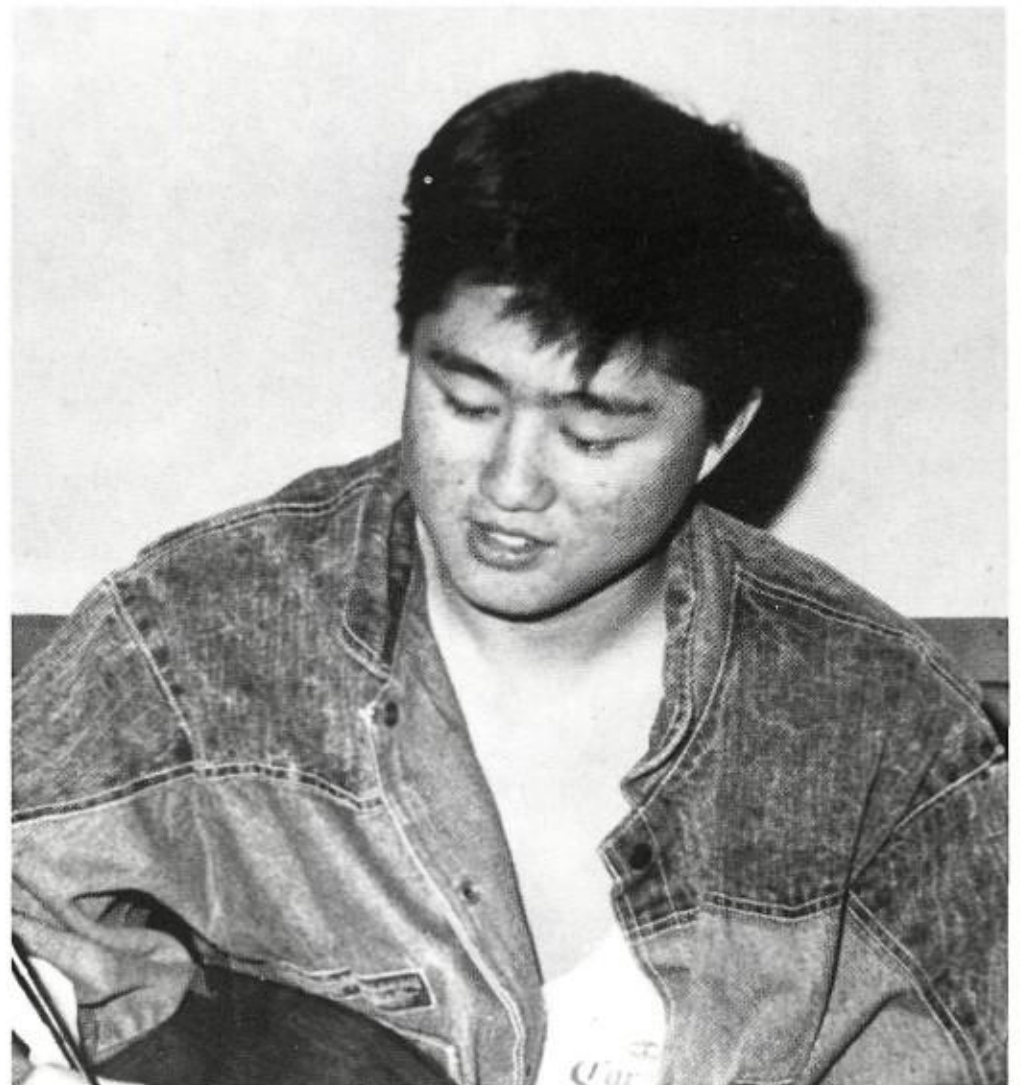

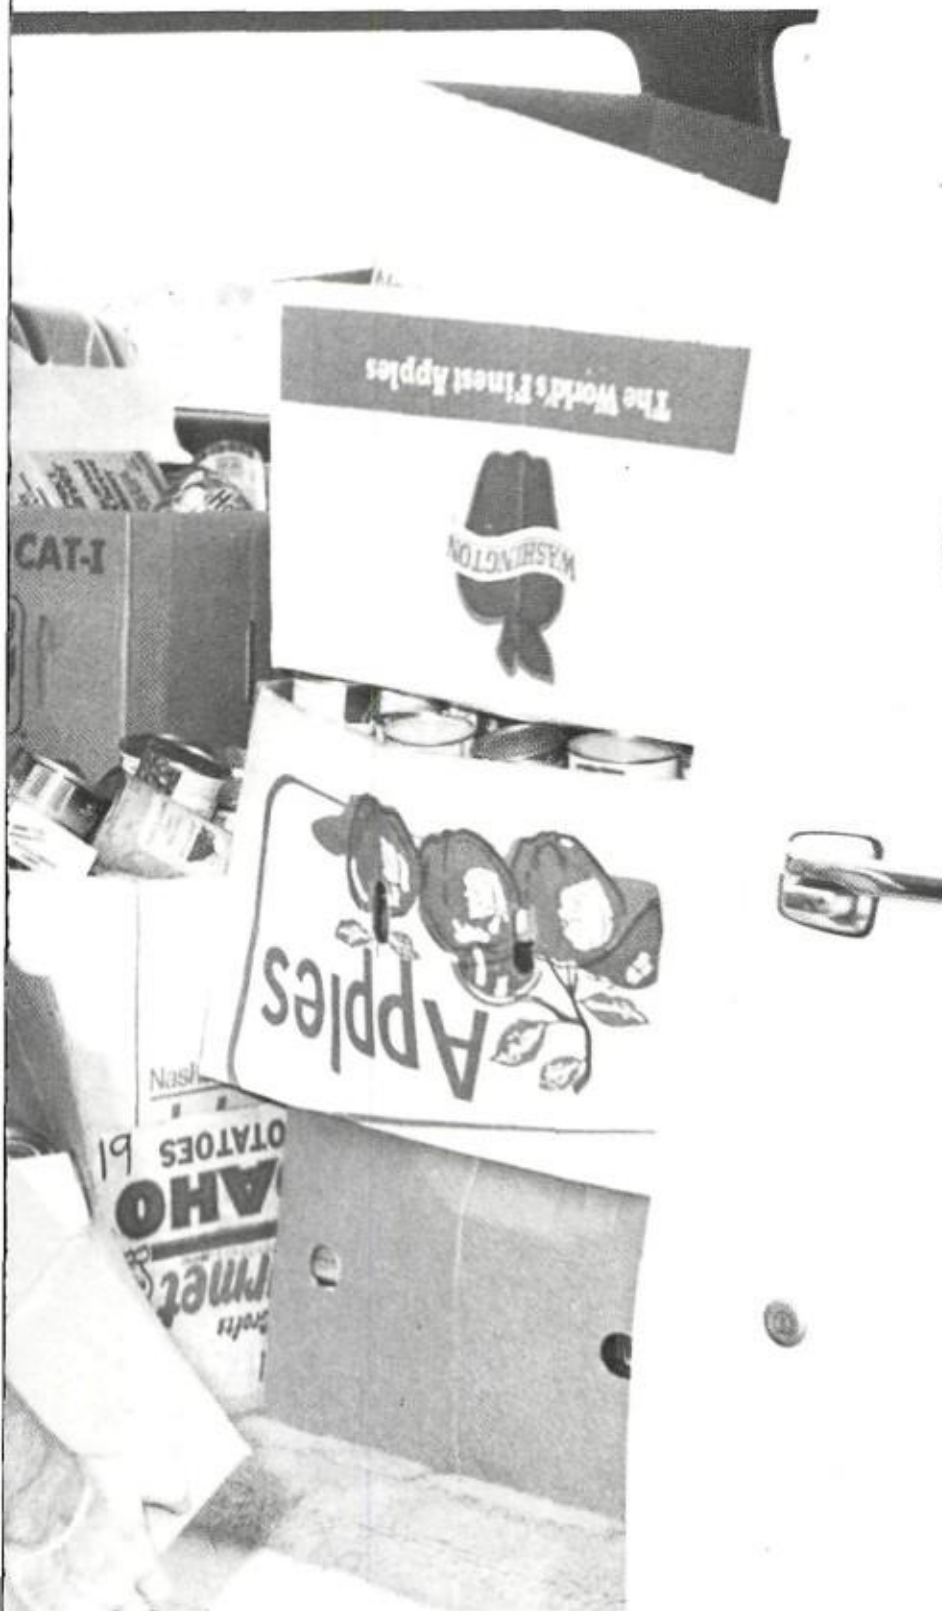

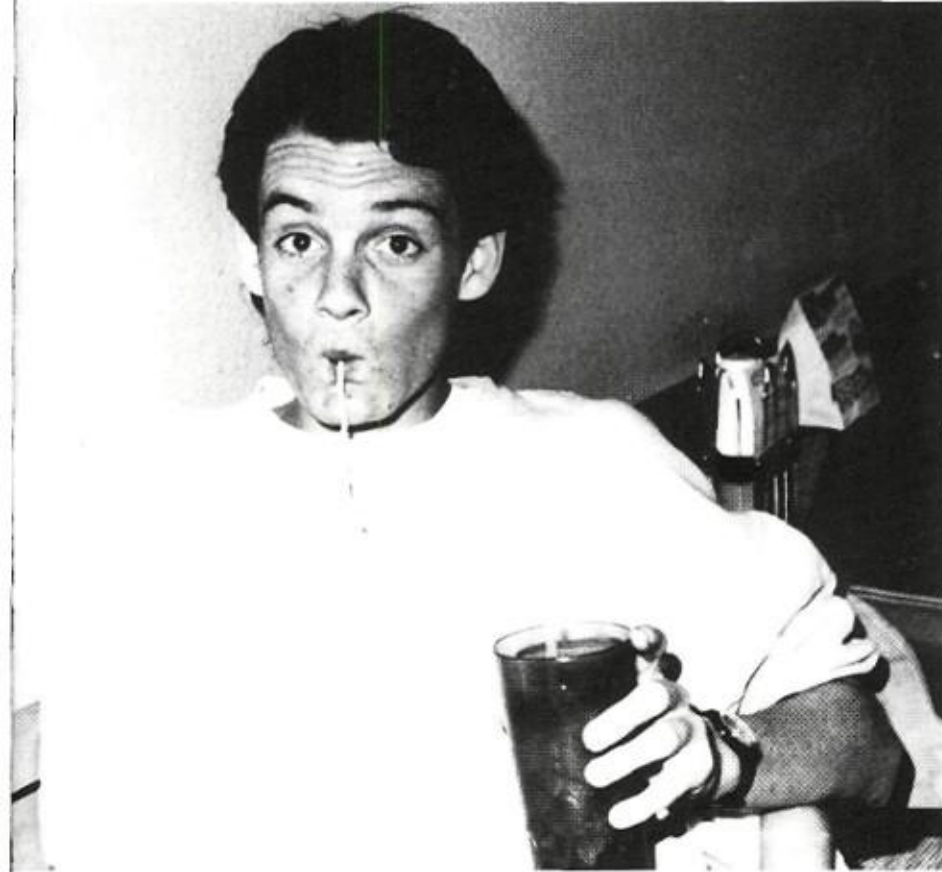

Key Club helps services community areas with drives and visitations to aid others

The Key Club helped serve the community. In October, they assisted at the March of Dimes Haunted House. During November, the club sponsored a canned food drive which successfully collected over 2,500 cans for the needy. At Christmas time, members visited Northwood Manor, an area nursing home, to make wreaths for residents. They also made hearts on Valentine's Day and bunnies at Easter at Northwood Manor. In April, the Key Club held a Secretary Appreciation Day to honor the secretaries at school. Later in the year, members attended the National Key Club Convention in Oklahoma City. There, our chapter competed in areas including scrapbook, photography, and drama. Angel Lewis won an award in oratory. Overall, the Key Club had a very successful year.

While working to form close companionship, Smith peer advisory offers help to others

S.P.A.R.K. (Smith Peer Advisors Reaching Kids) was a one semester course which incorporated the use of peer relationships as a means of helping people overcome problems and deal with special situations. Members learned to help others through a variety of activities. For example, SPARK visited area elementary schools as well as a local nursing home. There, each member received a "buddy" or friend to talk with. Each semester, the group sold Fuzzy Grams and backrubs to finance a weekend retreat. Both retreats were spent at Eisenhower Park on Lake Murray.

During the year, SPARK students had the opportunity to attend Brain Works to receive additional training in listening and communication skills.

All in all, SPARK had a busy and successful year. They made contributions not only to the school but also to the surrounding community.

Mousetrap

Caught in a frenzy of computer equipment, Odyssey staff produces updated school news

"Starting over" could have been the theme for the school's Odyssey newspaper staff this year. With only two returning staff members including herself, Leslie Bohannon, editor-in-chief, taught new staff members tricks of the trade in the newspaper business.

During the summer, several staff members attended a journalism workshop where they found new ideas and were given additional lessons in writing. Out of the workshop, a new nameplate idea and new design ideas were conceived. It was at the workshop that staff members first saw the demon that would dominate their staff life while fascinating them as they spent long hours learning a new system. This new item was a wonderful set of Macintosh computers and printers and the new Desktop Publishing system.

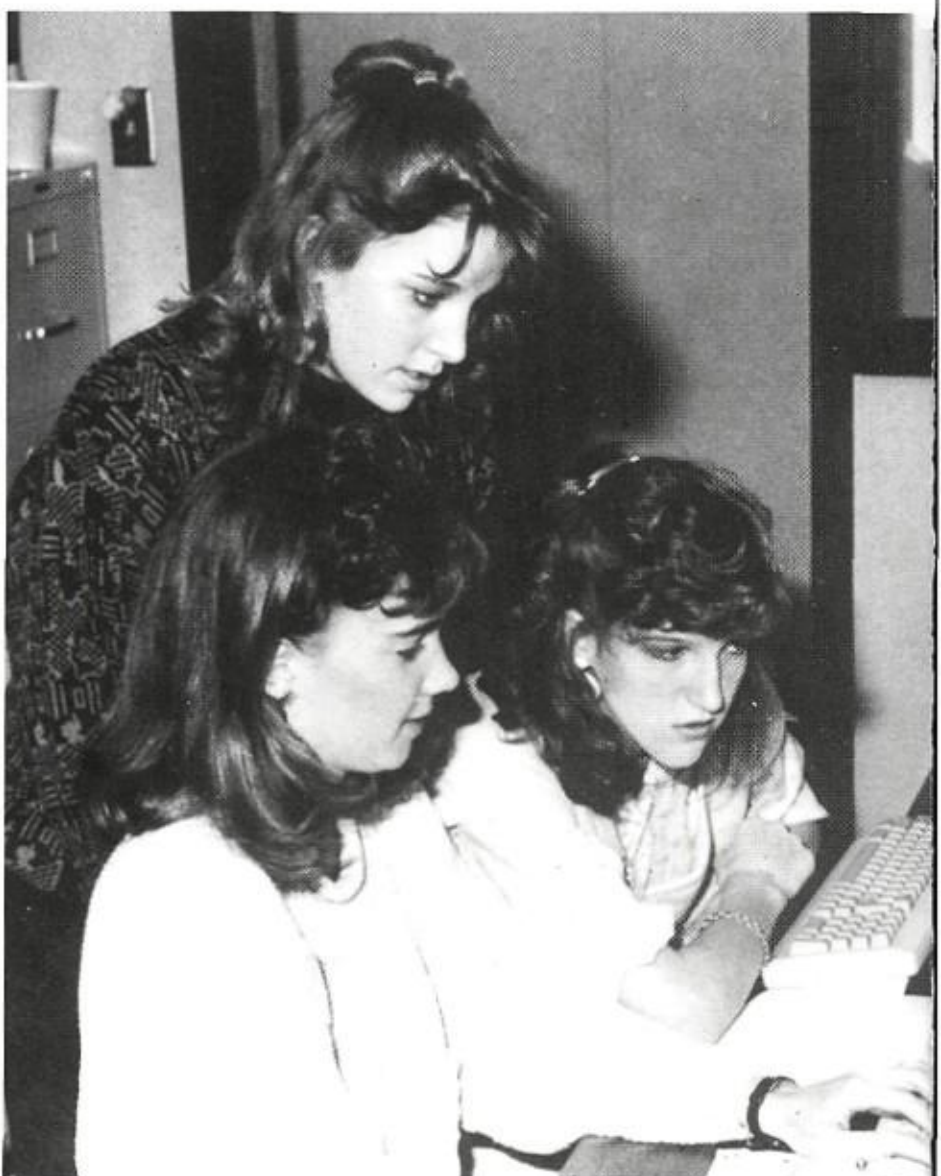

A jump from Exacto knives and line tape to electronic journalism caused an enormous change in the way the staff worked to produce the final product each month. Little by little staff members learned to use the computers to create ads, stories, and art work. Each of these advancements helped students to control their production even more. While staff members learned to use and enjoy the computer system, their readers learned to "hate" and enjoy the most popular part of the newspaper which was a column written by Jason Goldwater entitled "From the Head Senior."

The staff also had two District Journalism winners in the categories of newswriting and editorial writing. Jeff Dalton placed first in news, and Amy Martin placed second in editorials. Along with these winners and most of the present staff returning for next year and a number of creative writers from Journalism I joining the staff, the newspaper staff for next year already has a head start... even though it will still be hard to get along with our computer mice (mouses?).

Pagemaker*#@!

With advancements of the computer, yearbook outdates the pen and feather

When most students receive their copy of the yearbook, they browse through the pages looking for pictures of friends and reading about the organizations and activities to which they belong. The twenty-nine yearbook staff members and their sponsor, Mrs. Betsy Coltharp, view the book in drastic contrast. The staffers open the book anxiously awaiting the final product from nine months of continuous work.

During the summer, half of the staff attended a publication workshop at Eastfield College where they learned the fundamentals of layout and copy writing and photography techniques and how to successfully working a theme into a book. At the workshop, the group first discussed the "Lucky 13" theme. They brainstormed the numerous superstitions in society and considered how these could be incorporated with Newman Smith and the Iliad.

As soon as school began, the staff started working. They spent time enforcing important terms, techniques, and procedures. Then the members were separated into staffs. That is where the action really began. The book became an active part to the staffers lives whether alphabetizing hundreds of mugshots, typing copy on the new computers till the letters blurred together, printing pictures over and over until perfect, or keeping abreast of all activities at 2335 N. Josey Lane. During all this work to meet deadlines, the members unified to form a group that respected each other and worked together with a positive attitude.

With a little bit of luck, lots of hard work, and endless assistance from editors Sherri Fields, April Kropp, and Brooke Olson and Mrs. Coltharp, the Iliad staff worked together to produce a memory book documenting the lives of the lucky student body.

Walking Away

It is eighteen years ago, almost to the day—
A sunny day with the leaves just turning,
The touch-lines new-ruled—since I watched you play
Your first game of football, then, like a satellite
Wrenched from its orbit, go drifting away
Behind a scatter of boys. I can see
You walking away from me towards the school
With the pathos of a half-fledged thing set free
Into a wilderness, the gait of one
Who finds no path where the path should be.

Friendship is a golden chain,
The links are friends so dear,
And like a rare and precious jewel
It's treasured more each year...
It's clasped together firmly
With a love that's deep and true,
And it's rich with happy memories
And fond recollections, too...
Time can't destroy its beauty
For, as long as memory lives,
Years can't erase the pleasure
That the joy of friendship gives...
And the golden chain of friendship
Is a strong and blessed tie
Binding kindred hearts together
As the years go passing by.

CLASS OF 88

Dear Heather,

Congratulations on achieving the first of many milestones of your adult life. By the time you read this you will be off to college and on your own. What better time for us to tell you how much we love you and how pleased we are with you. No parents could be prouder.

It seems like only moments ago that we held you as a newborn. How thrilled we were that you blessed us by coming to live with us; how terrified we were of the responsibility to teach you, keep you safe and prepare you for life. At the time it seemed that it would be such a long time, in retrospect it has passed much too quickly.

You have prepared yourself well for life, you have made wise choices. Your vision is dedicated to success, doing your best, making the world a better place and most importantly loving and caring for others. We have learned more from you than you have learned from us.

We will always be here if you need us, not so much now as parents but as friends. With eager anticipation we look forward to sharing the joy in your life to come; the simple things and the great events, your marriage, your children, your successes and your failures. Our joy will come not from our participation but from the joy they bring to you and our joy in reliving these moments from our life with you.

Our legacy to you is to continue to strive for all good things, set your goals and work hard to earn the joy of success, accept your failures and learn from them, but above all else every day of your life continue to improve your life, your marriage, your family. The greatest joy in your life will come from this quest.

We bless you with love and joy as you have blessed us.

Love Mom and Dad

The name Mark is a composite of meaning and accurately reflects the character of our son. He is dauntless and dedicated, loyal and supportive, protective and proud, organized and determined, witty, fun-loving, intelligent and sensitive. He has his feet on the ground and his heart in the right place. Most of all, Mark means "shining," and he is for us, as his future will be for him. Congratulations, Son.

Dear Julee,

It's hard to believe the years have slipped by and here you are graduating from high school. We remember the day you were born, how proud we were of our little bundle of joy! You've grown up into a beautiful young lady and we cherish the wonderful memories we've shared together. We have them tucked away in a special corner of our hearts that's reserved just for you. We know you'll succeed in whatever you do. Just remember to reach for the stars and follow your dreams!

All our love,
Mom & Dad

Julee,
Sitting here alone
Just thinking about the past
The best years of my life
That slipped away so fast.
Growing up with you
Was the best thing for me.
You taught me to be myself
And the best that I could be.
I remember all our fights
(That I would always lose,)
About whose room was cleaner
And whose doll was whose!
But all those days are gone now,
They're just a memory
Of me and my big sister,
Together faithfully.
So please take all my love
And a great big hug and kiss,
'Cause you deserve the best in life
My one and only sis!!!

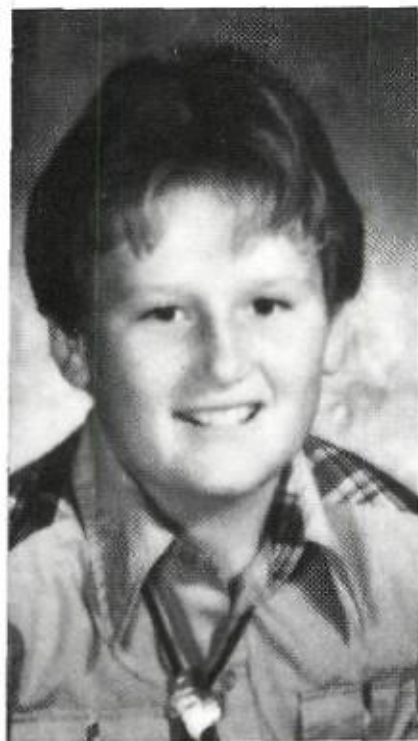

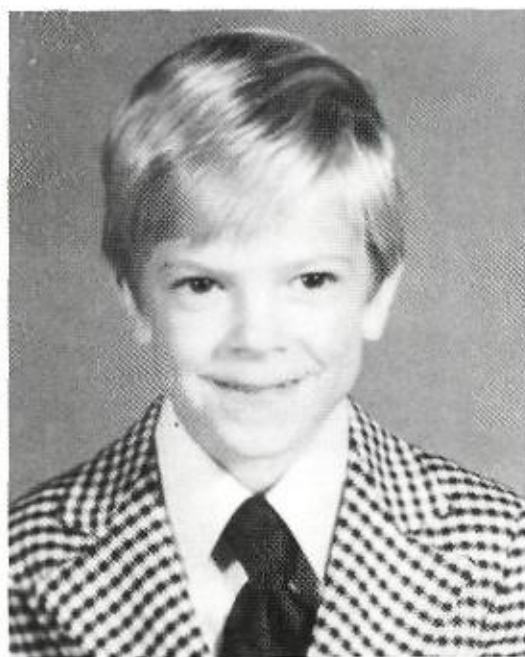

Love ya,
Jennee

DID I TELL YOU BY Elizabeth Knapp

DID I TELL YOU?
A MESSAGE TO A DAUGHTER AS SHE IS ALMOST GROWN.

FOR ALL WHO HAVE WONDERED...DID I TELL YOU?

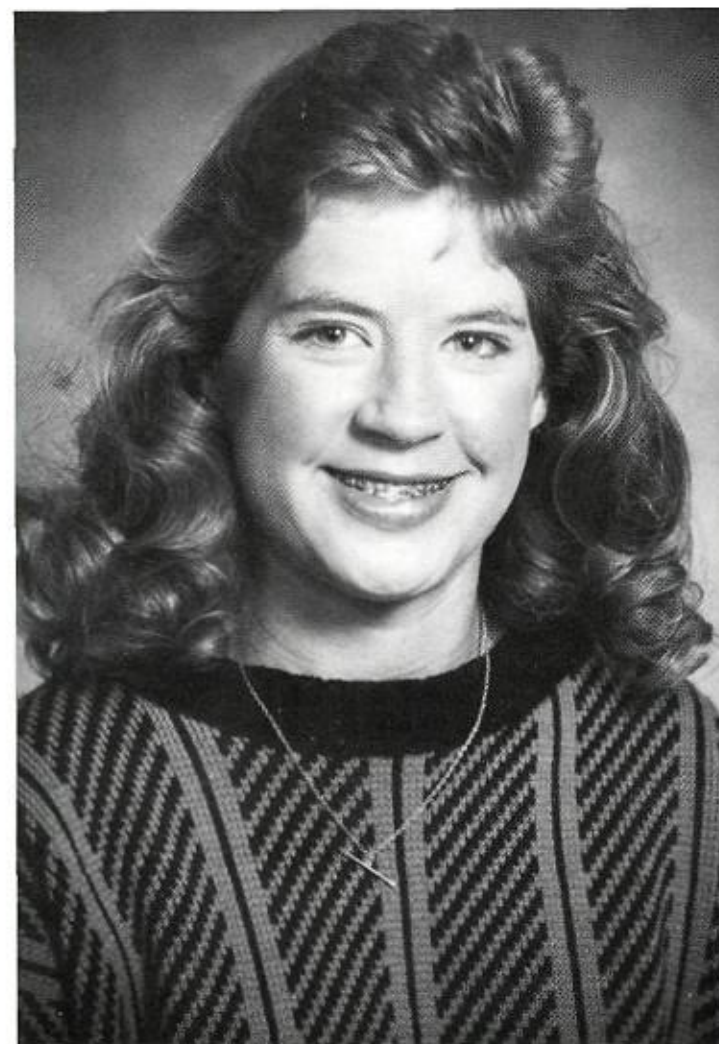

Now that you are almost grown I look back and ask myself, Did I tell you?
Did I tell you all that I meant to tell you, all that I felt was important? Did I tell you or was it lost in the shuffle of our everyday lives? The busy full days when we taught and didn't know it.

What did we teach?
Did I tell you to love?...
Did I tell you to be thoughtful?...
Did I tell you to be courteous?...
Did I tell you to be bold?...
And did I tell you to be cautious?...
Did I tell you to serve other people if only in a small way?...
Did I tell you to maintain a sense of the past?...
Did I tell you to find a part of nature that speaks to you?...
Did I tell you to laugh, to dance, to sing?
Did I tell you to be creative, to explore the seed within you?...
And did I tell you the joy and challenge of being a woman?...
The joy of having a child...knowing and sharing a new life.
The joy of making a home...
A work of your own,
Did I tell you these things as we went along the way?
If I did I am humbly grateful.
If I did not then you must choose for yourself. If it has meaning accept it and make it your own. If it does not, discard it. Your life is yours to build as you choose.
And did I tell you?
I hope it will be a good life.

To Dianne, as you cross over the threshold to life.
All of us love you and want the best that life has to offer.

Bret,

You took your first step at six months, and you were reading by the time you were three. . .

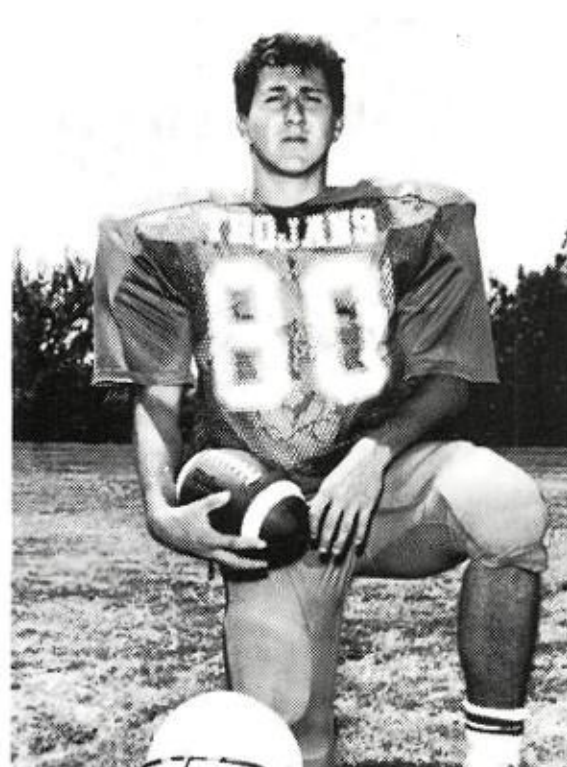

At eight you told us you were going to go to Harvard and at eleven you were spending your summers at computer camps. . .

You were always in a hurry, anxious to get on your way, we never understood why. . . through all our moves and all the schools, you always rose to the top of your class. . . We have no doubt that you will do the same with the rest of your life.

You've made your family very proud of you in all of your academic and athletic endeavors. No matter how far from us your life takes you, hold fast to two things, that our love for you is your anchor, and the knowledge that what you are is God's gift to you. . . what you make of yourself is your gift to God.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MY SON,
ROBERT ENRIGHT

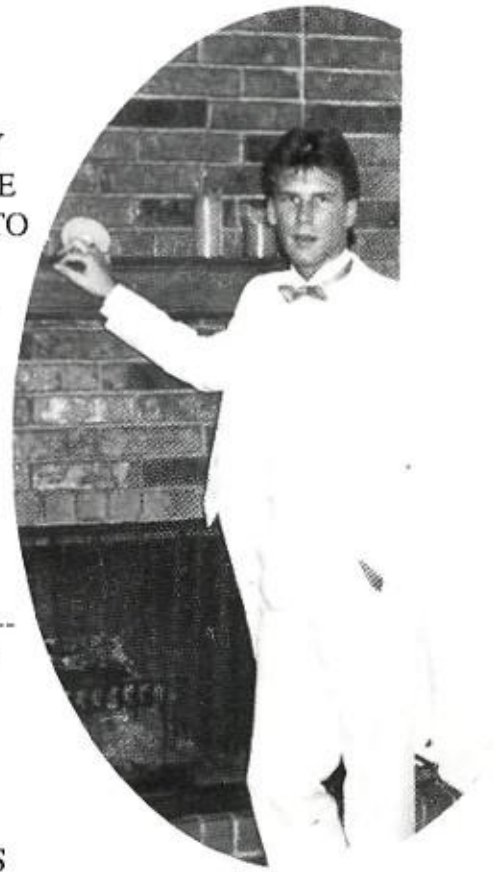

THIS IS THE SECOND TIME YOU HAVE ENTERED THE WORLD; ONCE AS A CHILD, NOW AS A MAN. EVEN AS I HELD YOU IN MY ARMS FOR THE FIRST TIME, AND EVERY TIME AFTERWARD, WHEN YOU FELL OR NEEDED TO BE LOVED, YOU NEVER REALLY BELONGED TO ME. YOU WERE FAR TOO INDEPENDENT. I PRAY THAT THIS INDEPENDENCE MAKES YOU STRONG, NOT STUBBORN, AND GIVES YOU THE INSIGHT TO SEE YOUR FULL POTENTIAL AS A MAN.

YOU ARE A PART OF EVERYONE WHO HAS TOUCHED YOUR LIFE: ME, MIKE, GRANDMOTHER, PAPA, MAMAW, PAWPAW, YOUR DAD, YOUR FRIENDS, YOUR ENEMIES -- BUILD ON THE GOOD AND LEARN FROM THE BAD.

YOU WERE MY FIRST MIRACLE; NOW YOU ARE OUR GIFT TO THE WORLD. MAKE US FEEL PROUD, GENEROUS, AND CONFIDENT THAT OUR GIFT WAS NEVER ANYTHING LESS THAN APPROPRIATE. AFTER ALL, YOU'VE DONE THAT FOR 18 YEARS.

Somewhere, between San Antonio and now;
 Sometime, between Bright Horizons and Newman Smith;
 Someplace, between here and there, whenever, or wherever;
 From sandboxes and wooden puzzles and hugs every night
 To part-time jobs and less time home,
 To honor rolls and state championships, to guitars and dreams -
 While we were always there, through it all, yet now surprised -
 You grew up.
 And you grew up well.
 So did our pride in you, but not our love
 Which has always been absolute
 And will be - forever.

Kylee:

I know we've had our share of differences and most of the time we both walk away shaking our heads and saying we don't understand the other. But, my first born, there is a very special part of my heart that loves you more than my life itself, and I'm having a very difficult time letting you go. Many tears have been shed in private over realizing this time is far too near. Baby-child-teenager-woman-- you've grown into a beautiful intelligent, strongwilled, loving and sensitive woman. You have a very good balance on life, and I'm very proud to say that you are my daughter.

You will shed tears over wrong decisions that will be made and much joy over those that are right. But always remember -- no matter what, my home is your home -- your haven away from the fast paced world full of pressures -- I will not judge you--only share with you and comfort you.

I love you, my precious, and congratulations on this milestone in your life. Good luck with college and best wishes for a long, happy, healthy and successful future!

Dear Rob,

The last eighteen years (that's 16 for David!) have been very special for us. You have enriched our lives with so much love, pride, and humor. We have always been able to see the adult you would be: a caring, responsible man with depth, strength, unselfishness, and wisdom. We are proud of all you have achieved, and we love who you are.

We wish you good luck and happiness in college and your future career. We know you are excellent at setting worthwhile goals and you have always worked very hard to achieve them. We are sure you will be equally successful with future ones.

Love and laughter, sometimes tears,
 All these have filled your eighteen years.
 From lollipops to lipstick, leg warmers and lace,
 You've grown with pride, dignity, and grace.
 Accomplishing all goals, one by one ;
 Grades came first, then time for fun.
 As your life now changes through choices you make,
 You mold your own future with each step you take.

 Loving and proud,
 A healthy nine-and-a-half pound boy,
 From the beginning, a thing of joy,
 Always running, moving in a hurry,
 Never causing his mother to worry,
 Football, wrestling, soccer, and track,
 Nothing at all could hold him back,
 He studied hard and made good grades,
 The National Honor Society he made,
 Now we all can merrily rejoice
 Texas A & M is this boy's choice!

All the parents of this year's graduating seniors have a right to be proud of their children, but no parents could be as proud as we are of you. Just growing up in an average situation is a difficult and stressful process, presenting many challenges. The obstacles you have encountered during your adolescence would have defeated most. You have demonstrated a unique and commendable ability to not only make the most of a difficult situation but to learn and grow from it. You are inspiration to all who know you. Your dedication and commitment to succeed in life will enable you to reach any goal you may establish. Remember you can always count on our love and support for we believe in you and your abilities. We are so proud of you.

You have grown from a mischievous little boy to a handsome young man. From reading nursery rhymes to Shakespeare. From playing T-ball to high school baseball. From a carefree toddler to a very warm, caring, loving and compassionate young man. During this time you have developed a very competitive personality with high morales, high academic standards, empathy and compassion for your fellow man, and a strong belief in God. Set high goals and do not compromise your standards. And remember to stop and smell the roses along the way.

From a darling
little boy

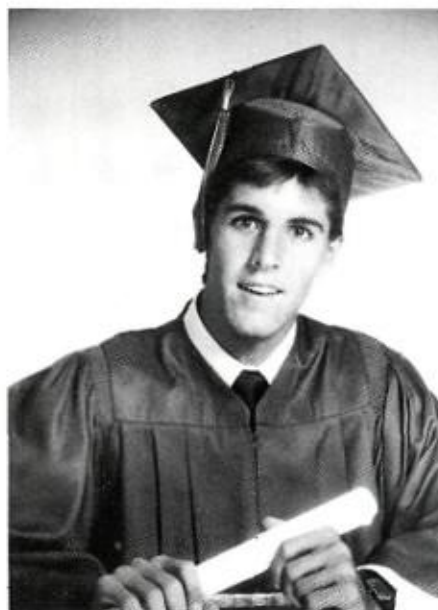

When God made the world
with its mountains and seas,
Its rivers and valleys, and flowers and trees,
He paused for a while after doing so much,
And thoughtfully added one last, loving touch--
He made little boys
with their warm, cheerful ways
To add special pleasure and joy to the days--
He made their hearts happy with laughter and fun
To brighten the world like the light of the sun,
He made each one thoughtful and trusting and giving,
Gentle and kind with a great love for living...
And when He'd completed the task He'd begun,
He took special pride in the job that He'd done,
For He knew that on Earth
there would always be joy
In the heart and the smile of a dear boy.

You've brought joy to your teachers, friends,

through a different light. But most of all, you've made us proud!

Jackie,

Always remember that happiness is created in our minds,
it's not something we search for through money or material things.

We hope that one of the most important things we taught you is to love.

Respect others and learn the value of giving. Act in a manner you wish to be treated; be proud of yourself.

Stand tall and learn to depend on yourself. Laugh and smile as much as you can, to help bring joy back into the world. Have faith in others; be understanding.

Only take from this earth those things which you really need, so there will be enough for others.

Learn to appreciate the people who love you, the simple beauty God gave you, and find peace and security within yourself. Most important of all, count your blessings, kneel and pray, and keep your faith from day to day.

Love forever,
Mom, Dad, and Tim

Remember: Matt. 6:19-34
Matt. 7:7; John 14;
Matt. 22:37-39

God has bestowed so many precious blessings on us through you, our beautiful daughter. We truly are so proud of you. Always know we believe in you and that we love you so very, very much. We pray
God will bless you and keep you forever in his care.

Dearest Aleacia Lee Reeder,

There is a lot of pleasure, as well as a little sadness, in watching you become a young woman. It seems like only yesterday that I put pigtails in your hair and bandages on your knees.

How does one ever find the words to thoroughly portray this bundle of exuberance who livens up our day?

For daughters are a cluttered room, a steady-ringing phone, a flurry of activity, a human cyclone.

Who is this charming little gal we fondly call our daughter....

this girl who primps and uses up a full tank of hot water?

She's the song in our heart (when hers are not playing),

She's a marvel, a mystery, that goes without saying.

She's the princess who convinces us that "everything goes!"

And can wrap us round her finger without our ever knowing.

She's a wonder, a sweetheart, and we must confide;

she's the joy of our life and the source of our pride!

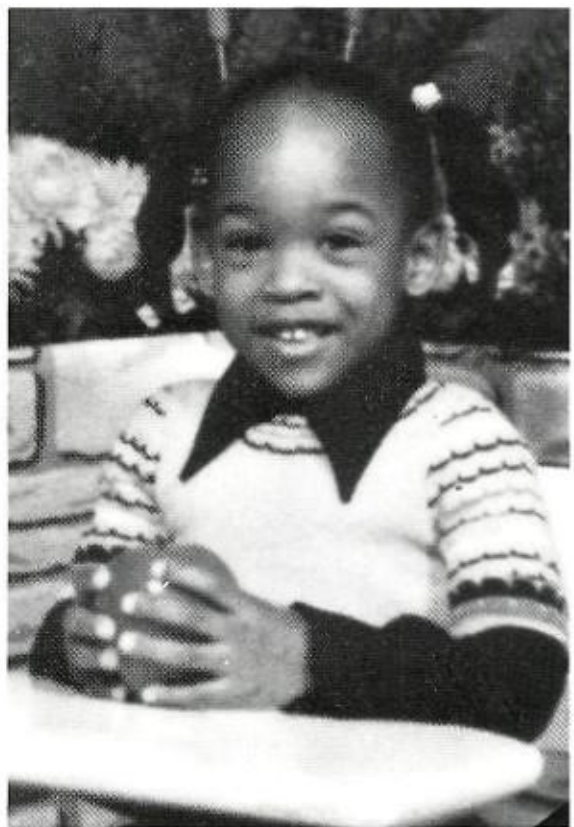

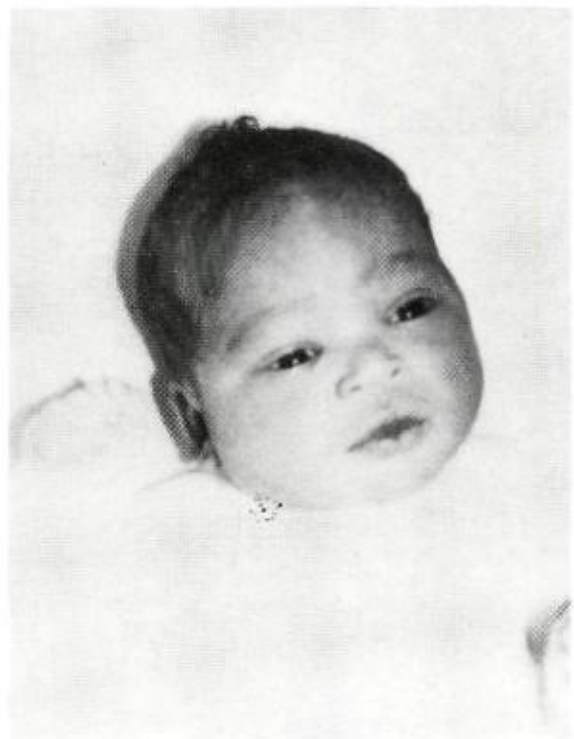

All our love,
Mom, Dad, and Elizabeth

"In all thy ways acknowledge God, and He will direct you."

Proverbs 3:6

Congratulations Angel!

Over the years I have watched you change from a delightful little girl into a delightful and beautiful young lady. Not only have you been a wonderful daughter, but a dear friend and I love you for that.

As you journey down life's highway, there will be many obstacles entering your path but just remember--- When the road you are trudging seems all uphill: stop if you must, but don't quit. "Be strong and of a good courage; but not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with you wherever you go." Joshua 1:9

Bringing a child into the world provides parents with two wonderful experiences.
One is being instrumental in your learning and development, and seeing the results.
The other is the reward of sharing in your triumphs and achievements.
Thank you Kellie for filling our lives with so much joy and happiness.

Love, Mother, Dad, Tara, Lori, and Saint

There once was a daughter named Brooke.
She was good with pen and with book.
She had wit, she had style.
She was quick with a smile.
For perfection she was easily mistook.

For this girl who will always prevail,
Pride shines bright on hill and on dale.
We wish her luck and success.
And since she knows our address,
We expect to receive tons of mail.

Dad & Carolyn

Congratulations Jeremy,
We love you for who you are and are grateful for what you have become in Christ.

Mathew 6:33
Seek ye first the Kingdom of God
and all these things shall be added unto you.
Love, Dad, Mom, & Larry

You are a child of the universe as much as the trees and the stars...you have a right to be here.
Go placidly amid the noise...and remember what peace there may be in silence. Be at peace with God--whatever you perceive him to be-- and, whatever your labors-- keep peace with your soul.

Faith in God...is found in the most refined life, the freest government, the profoundest philosophy, the noblest poetry,
the purest humanity.

What a woman "is" contributes much more to her happiness than what she "has"... what a woman is in herself, what accompanies her when she is alone, what no one can give her or take away --is...more essential to her than everything
she has in the way of possessions, or what she may be in the eyes of the world.

Dearest Shannon,

As on graduation day you become my lovely, ever-so-competent, grown daughter, please know that I will always care about what you are doing, how you are, what fills your world, and where your dreams are taking you; because, wherever you go, my heart, my love, and my support go with you.

Much love,
Mom

My daughter,
I am so proud of you
When you were born you were
A beautiful addition to our family.
Now that you are growing up I see
You are a beautiful addition to the world.
I am so proud of you.
As I watch you doing things on your own
I know you will find happiness and success
Because
Of your confidence and abilities, self-knowledge and values.
Daily I am astounded to hear you speak so intelligently
Your wisdom grows and grows as you do.
You are my delight, a joy, a beautiful person.
Even so, I want you to know, I am always here for you, to understand, support you and most of all
To love you ... my daughter Derisa-
All my love, your Mom.

She's a sunbeam sent straight from heaven
 Called Stacey — given name at her birth
 Then, a sweet babe — now, lovely woman
 Beau petite, graceful, loving and pert.
 — God blessed us —

She gave us a reason for living
 Made us smile when t'was so hard to do
 She filled empty hearts — overflowing
 And made all the grey skies seem blue
 — God grant her joy —

We'll try never to sorrow —
 Since she'd know it and she would weep too
 We pray all people she touches
 Will give her love always true
 — God love her —

Since birth we've known she must leave us
 To find her own place in the land
 So as her presence brought us closer to heaven
 We pray "God keep her safe in thy hands"

To our beloved Stacie,

We love the memories of your infancy, even all those nights you climbed head-first out of your crib and screamed until we rescued you. We love the memories of all those trips to dance classes and the recitals that we watched until the very last number. We love the memory of baton lessons and practices when you dropped the baton, picked it up, and continued doggedly on. We love the memories of the early morning rush to band practice and the football halftimes when we tried to find out which one you were before the music ended. We love the memories of teaching you to drive and watching nervously as you left for the first time on your own. All the things you experienced as you grew into a beautiful young woman, we will remember and love always. But most of all we will remember and love you.

Our love 'til eternity,
Dad, Mother, Stephanie, Sara, and Grandmother

I guess all mothers worry about their daughters as they grow older. I know I have wondered if I might have been a little "too hard" on you at times, or maybe a little "too easy" on you at other times. There were moments when I never really knew for sure.

But now as I look back, I am so thankful, I must have done "something" right along the way, for I can truly say----- I am proud to be your mother.

Love, Mom

13...Frightfully Good

Newman Smith closes yet another charming school calendar with all the usual, or unusual, antics of its students and faculty

Dr. Blanton: I'm here to tell you we have some of the most dignified people who teach here and great students who have a firm grip on reality. And no one needs to rely on good luck to find the unique charm in our "bottoms-up" courses.

Dr. Blanton (right); Adam Paul Renee McDaniel, Mrs. Holloway, (below l. to r.)

Dr. Taylor: I don't know. Just knowing it's the thirteenth year has been frightening.

Mr. Sheldon, Dr. Taylor, Mr. Parks, (above); Angela Graffeo, Renee Solis (right).
